HITLER'S FIGHT TO RULE CURBED BY HINDENBURG

Refused Chancellor Job, Report.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader, arrived in Berlin today from his vacation retreat in the Bavarian Alps to talk with Chancellor Franz von Papen tomorrow on the rôle he and his party will play in Germany's political drama.

The political situation has developed into back-stage intrigue. The former Austrian paper hanger's position is unique. His followers are demanding "all the power or nothing," as the Nazi leader fences with his supposed political enemies in the German capital. It was reported tonight that Von Papen on behalf of President Paul von Hindenburg had refused to make Hitler his chancellor.

Nazis in Veiled Threat.

Hitler met with his lieutenants tonight to map their next step. It is possible that the Nazi leader may seek a conference with Von Hindenburg after his conversation with Von Papen.

Instead of appearing personally at the chancellery, Hitler sent the leaders of his brown army, Ernst Roehm and Count von Helldorff, to talk to Von Papen and prepare for tomorrow's conference. Friends said that they hoped the Nazi leader will overcome Von Hindenburg's objections to him as chancellor with the aid of Minister of Defense Kurt von Schleicher. Otherwise, they said, the "brown army might grow restless." Roehm and Von Helldorff are reported to have voiced this threat in their conversation with Von Papen.

A peek behind the scenes reveals a strange political situation in this struggle to dominate Germany. It follows:

Hitler, after the reichstag elections in which his party became the strongest in the republic, promised President von Hindenburg and Gen. von Schleicher that he would permit several of his moderate lieutenants to assume governmental responsibility by becoming members of the cabinet.

Hitler's Aides Panicky.

Von Hindenburg, Von Papen, and Von Schleicher believed this would "cleanse" Hitler's party, leaving only the "idealist" Hitlerites in the Nazi band wagon and driving the pro-communist element back in the communist party.

But Hitler's friends became panicky. "These old aristocrats are sly foxes who know how to put it over on the other fellow," a prominent Hitlerite said. "By giving us posts in the cabinet they want to force us into line and drop some of our reform plans. We cannot carry out everything we have promised, but we must enforce a few of our measures. Otherwise, the people will not continue to stand by us and the party would be smashed."

It has been learned that Hitler's "storm troops" would have marched on Berlin to seize the government on election night if Hitler had ordered it. Instead, he sent them home.

Sign of Weakness.

The "storm troopers" interpreted this as a sign of weakness and are giving their leaders considerable trouble. Last week commanders of the "storm troops," called them the "flower of German youth." This week after the rioting in east Prussia the same leaders refer to them as "unemployed rowdies."

"We picked them up from the streets to save the younger generation which never has been taught to work," one Nazi chieftain said. "We taught them discipline for the sake of the fatherland. They don't want to work. When the party asked for volunteers for labor service only 47 responded."

This proved a shock to the idealist elements among the Nazis and the city politicians. The latter insist keeping the "storm troops" in ... Hitler, apparently, must step ...ily and cannot announce a simple ...promise with Von Papen if he ex...ts to keep his army behind him.

Tries to Sway "Storm Troops."

Capt. Hermann Goering, Hitler's military adviser, is attempting to ...wing the grumbling Nazis back into ...ional military obedience.

If he succeeds the Hitlerites will enter the government. If they balk, Hitler's aides want him to continue to clamor for "all of the power or nothing." Hitler himself is playing into the hands of Von Papen, who is urging him to become the chief of a new anti-communist movement and drop his own more revolutionary followers.

ONE DRY GROUP BACKS HOOVER; OTHERS SILENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

To judge by the reaction shown by hundreds of laudatory telegrams which poured into the White House the more conservative wets and drys of the party were pleased, at least for political working purposes, with the presidential plea for a radical revision of the 18th amendment. Those that for a dry reason or a wet one did not like the modification program found solace in some other section of the President's speech.

They promised an enthusiastic support of the Republican national ticket that gave Mr. Hoover a pleasure he took no pains to conceal.

Wonder About Extremists.

Behind this obvious optimism, however, there was still a source for worry. Reports from the prohibition extremists had not yet come in in enough volume to warrant a safe prediction of their loyalty. Where the professional drys will land and where the outright repealist wets will light were questions that it was still too early to answer.

Officials of the Flying Squadron foundation, a national dry organization with headquarters at Indianapolis, were the only professional drys who had wired the President that they would support him notwithstanding his assertion that he could no longer tolerate prohibition's regime of "subsidized crime and violence" and that he favored control under a federal guarantee protecting dry states and prohibiting the saloon.

Dry Leaders Peevish.

Counterpoised against this lone note of fealty were the reported plaints of dry spokesmen that their once steadfast leader had gone back on them.

Equally lacking was any enthusiasm from ultra-wets of the stamp of those who have openly preferred the straight out repeal plank of the Democrats and their Roosevelt.

Word from the less demanding wets was cheering. Representative of the feeling of this group was a statement issued after an interview with President Hoover by Representative James M. Beck [Pa.], leader of the Republican wets in the house. The house wets, he was confident, would be satisfied with the Hoover solution of the prohibition problem.

Call for Funds Monday.

It was on the strength of such hopeful predictions as this that the party workers who gathered for the notification ceremonies dispersed to their homes carrying with them the parting warning from their party treasurer, Joseph R. Nutt, that the real job would begin next Monday. That job consists in raising a campaign fund of around a million and a quarter dollars.

The 1928 campaign saw four millions gathered and expended, but the gathering in those boom times was a different matter from what it is expected to be this year.

Silas H. Strawn of Chicago is to be chief collector for the central area. Jeremiah Millbank will gather in the east.

Many Dry Chiefs in Doubt.

For the most part, the dry leaders simply stalled along during the day interviewing each other without reaching any decision as to whether to stick with President Hoover, to attempt to knife him by setting up a third candidate, or to stay away from the polls in November. There was much evidence of widespread dissatisfaction in the dry ranks with the President's recommendation that liquor control be returned to the states subject to restrictions barring a return of the saloon or the shipment of liquor into dry states.

Daniel A. Poling, chairman of the executive committee of the Allied Forces for Prohibition and Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, secretary of the national board of strategy, together with the other professional drys who waged a stubborn fight to persuade the President to oppose a prohibition change remained uncommunicative throughout the day. Many Republican leaders believe they will eventually support the Hoover-Curtis ticket in preference to the Democratic platform calling for outright repeal of the 18th amendment.

The day's batch of telegrams to the

Milk Drivers Insure Chiefs Against Gangs

The Milk Wagon Drivers' union, it was learned yesterday, has set aside $15,000 of the $800,000 in their treasury, to be paid within 24 hours to the family of any of their officials slain by gangsters.

The action was taken at the regular monthly meeting of the union Thursday night at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium, 328 South Ashland avenue, with about 500 members in attendance. Through the many years of Chicago labor strife it was said to be the first occasion on which any union deemed it necessary to insure the families of their leaders against murder.

Fear for Three Officials.

The fund, it is understood, is intended principally for the protection of three officials—Robert C. Fitchie, president; Steve C. Sumner, business agent, and Ray Bryant, trustee. Mr. Fitchie is 63 years old, the father of four children, and lives at 642 North Lotus avenue. Mr. Sumner is 83 years old, father of two daughters and lives at 7348 Constance avenue. Mr. Bryant is 60 years old, has one son, and lives at 5649 North Maplewood avenue.

The regular order of business was the election of delegates to the forthcoming convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor. Mr. Fitchie, who was kidnaped last December and for whom the union paid a $50,000 ransom, was presiding. Mr. Fitchie is a past president of the state federation and was a member of the governor's unemployment relief commission.

Union Offices Armor Clad.

"You men know what happened in December and you know what's happening now," he said. "If you have called at headquarters recently you have seen the armor plated doors, steel shuttered windows, and bullet proof peepholes. You know the police have a machine gun nest across the street for our protection."

Mr. Fitchie then alluded to two murders which have stained the record of Chicago teamster unions in recent years—the machine gun killing of John G. Clay, secretary of the Dye House Drivers, in November, 1928, and the killing of Patrick Berrell, vice president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Charge Gang Seeks Funds.

"Of course, we know what's going on," the member said. "Three Fingered White, Murray Humphreys, and their gang are trying to grab our treasury. Bob Fitchie, Uncle Steve Sumner, and Ray Bryant are the only ones standing in their way. They're fighting our fight and I make a motion that if they go down the union will do the right thing by their families."

Sumner, although he has for years advocated the insurance of labor officials by their unions, in favor both of the unions and the bereaved families, was for postponing the vote until the next meeting. With only 500 of the 4,600 members present, he argued that the balloting would not be representative.

The sponsor of the motion refused to yield. A vote was called and the motion carried with only a scattered few dissenting.

GIRL PERFORMER DIES IN A FALL FROM TRAPEZE

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 12.—(AP)—A 21 year old trapeze performer plunged to her death and her companion was seriously injured in a 125 foot fall at the steel pier tonight. They were performing without a net beneath them.

Irene Berger suffered a broken neck and died in the hospital a few minutes before midnight. Roxy La Rose, 26 year old wife of the act's principal, Orville La Rose, received fractures of both legs, back, and a punctured lung.

Orville said he had finished his part of the act and stood watching the finale. He said Miss Berger was hanging to a trapeze by her feet, reaching to catch his wife, who was hanging by her teeth. Miss Berger's foot slipped, he said, and she fell, taking his wife with her.

"We have taken this act all over the world since 1922," the star remarked, "and this is the first accident. I am through with the show business."

H. McCormick Visits Ex-Wife in Sick Room

Harold F. McCormick, former husband of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, called on her in her sick room in the Drake hotel last evening. Mr. McCormick, who returned to Chicago Thursday morning from the west coast, had refused to state whether it was the news of her serious illness that brought him back from California where he had been for several months.

Common knowledge of the friendly feeling that had persisted between the couple since their legal parting in 1921 had caused friends of both Mr. and Mrs. McCormick to expect last night's call.

Sends a Rose Each Year

Even since their divorce it had been her former husband's custom to send Mrs. McCormick a single rose each birthday morning.

Carrying a number of small parcels and a florist's box Mr. McCormick came into the hotel through the passage from the Drake Towers, where his son, Fowler McCormick, occupies an apartment. He did not descend to the lobby of the hotel. He remained in his former wife's rooms for more than an hour.

Except for the younger daughter, Mrs. Max Oser, who is on her way to Chicago from her home in Switzerland aboard the liner Majestic, all members of the patient's immediate family have thus been brought to a reunion around her. Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard of Middletown, Conn., who was Muriel McCormick, arrived some days ago and has been a frequent visitor, as has her brother, Fowler McCormick, whose home is here.

In No Immediate Danger.

Mrs. Oser is expected to land in New York on August 16, and to hurry to Chicago without halting in the east. She is reported to be accompanied by her two children.

Despite the obvious anxiety of her close relatives, physicians reported yesterday that Mrs. McCormick's condition is unchanged. They added that she is in no immediate danger, although the seriousness of her ailment is acknowledged.

Engineer of Limited, Fatally Hurt, Stops Train

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 12.—(AP)—As the Golden State Limited, passenger train of the Rock Island railroad, roared eastward yesterday near White City, Kas., a driving rod broke loose from a locomotive wheel and struck David J. Tamblyn, veteran engineer. Although rendered unconscious, Tamblyn shut off the power and applied the air brakes. Today Tamblyn died of his injuries in a Topeka, Kas., hospital.

Guilty Bandits Win Probation; 2 Jailed Again

Three confessed shotgun bandits were arraigned yesterday before Judge James J. Kelly in the Criminal court and their lawyer, W. W. O'Brien pleaded that they be placed on probation on their plea of guilty to four robberies. Such phrases as "give these boys another chance" and "think of their poor old mothers" were used by the lawyer.

JUDGE KELLY.

Then Sergt. Tim Dwyer stepped forward and protested to the judge.

"These men are hoodlums of the worst type," he told the court. "They are known to the police and they have records. They stuck up places with a sawed off shotgun and they were so bold that they'd pull off two stickups in one day. They ought to get the limit."

Lists Their Crimes.

Sergt. Dwyer gave the history of the case. The defendants were St. Clair McInerney, 24 years old, 227 Hill street; George Dilley, 35 years old, 7209 Lafayette avenue, and Ralph Trimble, 30 years old, 8810 South Troy street. McInerney recently was arraigned for robbery in the Boys' court, the policeman said, and the others are known as vagrants with no visible means or occupation.

The three confessed to the four robberies for which they were arrested. On April 16 they held up the Citizens Loan association at the crowded corner of 63d and Halsted streets, obtaining $1,100. On May 4 they held up the same place, obtaining $600. On May 27 they held up the Household Finance company, 9130 Commercial avenue, in the morning and obtained $200. Not content with this small haul, the trio held up the Local Loan association, 1212 North Ashland avenue, the same afternoon and got $531.

"Just Innocent Boys."

"They're just innocent boys," interjected Attorney O'Brien. "Don't brand them as felons."

"I sentence these men to one year to life," said Judge Kelly. "But I suspend the sentence and put McInerney and Trimble on four years' probation and Dilley on three years' probation."

The robbers were smiling when they emerged from the county jail later. Their faces fell when they saw Sergt. Dwyer waiting for them. He displayed a warrant charging McInerney and Dilley with the robbery of Randall Prieze, 4830 Cottage Grove avenue, on Aug. 14, 1931. Prieze had identified the two.

"We're being railroaded!" protested the two men as they were taken to the detective bureau and locked up.

Find Another Robbery Charge.

Later, the sergeant unearthed another charge of robbery pending against Trimble and sent out an order for his arrest also.

Judge Kelly was acting chief justice of the Criminal court yesterday in the absence of Judge Fisher. In addition to the three men named, he put twelve other confessed robbers on probation, an examination of the court records showed.

Those placed on probation were D. Bastas, Bart O'Connell, 3 charges of robbery; J. Dalton, J. Babbin, J. Bouzide, W. N. Janiga, Anthony Latteri, F. Weist, two charges; Daniel Buvidas, four charges; Frank Karris, three charges; Walter Bartz, two charges; Walter Buvidas, two charges. All had pleaded guilty.

The only man sentenced yesterday by Judge Kelly was L. Taglia, charged with robbery. Judge Kelly changed the charge to larceny and sentenced Taglia to one to ten years, denying probation, which was asked.

FORCED TO FACE ROOSEVELT IN A LONG INQUIRY

Decision Will Await Legal Opinion.

His Path Is Rose Strewn

Mayor Walker returned to New York from Albany last evening in a private car and was greeted as a conquering hero, roses being scattered along his pathway from his car through the Grand Central station. One man said he had a $100,000 a year job awaiting Jimmy in case Gov. Roosevelt severs him from the mayor's office. Details on page 2.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 12.—A worried and a sober mayor of New York, unlike the merry quip maker who made the name Jimmy Walker famous, spent an entire day today under a barrage of questions.

His questioner was Franklin D. Roosevelt, the governor of New York, who is also the Democratic candidate for the presidency of the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt is passing upon the question of whether Mayor Walker has committed wrongs many and serious enough, as have been charged, to cause the governor to remove Walker from his post as the mayor of the nation's first city.

Asks Court to Halt Action.

A suit to enjoin a decision by the governor, filed by a home rule enthusiast, failed to halt the inquiry, although Gov. Roosevelt indicated he would make no announcement prior to Aug. 19, the date of return made by the court. In the meantime the question of the court's jurisdiction will be considered.

Sidney Levine of New York, acting for George Donnelly, an advocate of home rule for the metropolis, went before Justice H. J. Hinman of the Superior court, asking an injunction based on the home rule section of the state constitution. He charged that under the section the governor was without power to remove Mayor Walker.

The matter was set to come before Justice E. J. Staley in Albany Aug. 19.

Waits on Court Decision.

Gov. Roosevelt probably will not announce his decision until the court ruling is given. It is known, however, that the governor does not believe the court has authority to restrain the executive.

Friends of the governor say he will make no attempt to maneuver the court into delaying decision until after the November elections. Those who claimed that might be done said that Mr. Roosevelt, by such action, would avoid an insult to Tammany Hall before election by removing Walker, or would, if acquittal is given, avoid the charge he feared to remove Walker.

The idol of Tammany Hall had a sorry day of it. He was confused; he couldn't remember; he fought to explain contradictions in his own several stories.

Not a Single Wise Crack.

There wasn't a single wise crack in his whole day, at least there was none on the record of this most extraordinary proceeding which is being conducted in the hearing chamber of the governor in the state capitol building at Albany.

Gov. Roosevelt was not a tyrannical cross examiner. He didn't bellow, nor did he once point an "accusing finger." But his pleasant smile, wrinkling the crows' feet at his temples, didn't relieve much the insistence he showed in getting direct answers from a witness who seemed not to want to be so direct.

It appeared to many observers in the chamber that the governor had a great deal of sympathy for Mayor Walker, and he showed patience in listening to long discussions by the mayor which didn't go directly to the points in question.

But if the governor was outwardly kindly toward Mayor Walker he was not so solicitous of the feelings of the mayor's chief counsel, John K. Curtin, who had been approaching more and more toward personalities and affront directed at the governor. Mr. Roosevelt took them good-naturedly for a while, but finally he told Mr. Curtin flatly that "I'm not interested in your opinions on my decision; you will please keep to the facts," and there was no no mistaking the tone of warning in the governor's voice.

It is too bad that most of the testimony given by Mayor Walker today has been told by him before, for otherwise the drama of this situation would have run high. The mayor told of receiving hundreds of thousands of dollars from Paul Block, the publisher, without ever putting up a penny. He told of his trip to Europe on a letter of credit for $10,000—which was overdrawn by $2,000 additional—the letter being issued through J. Allen Smith, who had just succeeded in putting through a bus franchise on New York City.

The mayor lamented today the fact that he had used the word "beneficence" when months ago he testified concerning the manner of Paul Block giving the mayor profits aggregating $246,000 through the opening of a joint stock account. Without laughing himself, and without exciting any laughter from his hearers, Jimmy Walker said:

"When I used the word 'beneficence' I didn't think I would be on trial for my selection of English. If it had been years ago I probably would have been convicted, as most men who speak that language. Evidently the word beneficence has been subjected to a very keen mind, with very subtle reasoning, coupled again with inference and innuendo.

Questioned on Liability.

"By beneficence I mean good nature in managing the joint stock in which Mr. Block and I participated. Using his best judgment, with the result that followed, it is obvious that if there was any default in the account, any losses—whether I called it Mr. Block's beneficence or otherwise I would be liable to the broker."

But the mayor's liability to pay any losses which might have occurred in this account in which he had nothing invested was seemingly disputed by Gov. Roosevelt, who questioned the mayor at length. The governor brought out that Mr. Walker had never signed anything making him liable to pay losses and he made Walker admit, through a circuitous and lengthy course, that his only activity in the account was to ask Mr. Block for money and to get it in cash.

Paves Way for Appeal.

Defense Counsel Curtin, by his tactics in interposing frequent objections to rulings and questions of the governor, showed clearly that he is paving the way to a court attack on the finding of the governor if that finding should be the ouster of the mayor.

While the constitution seemingly gives the governor the broadest powers possible in ascertaining to his personal satisfaction, without any legal restraints whatever, whether an official should be ousted from office Mr. Curtin has been raising questions of jurisdiction and procedure which could have no purpose other than to provide the groundwork for a court appeal.

Samuel Seabury, chief counsel for the legislative committee which investigated charges of corruption against city officials, the man who presented the charges against Mr. Walker which are now being tested, got active in the case today for the first time. He has sat in his chair, holding mostly aloof, letting the governor run the proceedings almost entirely alone.

Today, when questions were raised requiring the production of documentary evidence, Mr. Seabury rose repeatedly to produce them.

At the close of today's session Gov. Roosevelt announced a recess until 1:30 o'clock Monday. He went to his estate near Hyde Park, on the Hudson.

Trip to Europe Aired.

When the afternoon session opened Gov. Roosevelt launched without delay into the issuance of the $10,000 letter of credit which financed the mayor's trip to Europe in August, 1927.

The mayor repeated his previous explanations, telling how Rodman Wanamaker had thought it would be advantageous for the mayor to study municipal conditions abroad and had offered to finance the trip. The members of the party, including other city officials, decided they would need funds for their personal expenses and decided to arrange for a letter of credit.

The various travelers each contributed portions in cash, and the letter of credit was finally issued to Mayor Walker personally in the sum of $10,000. The point of the investigators' interest was that it was issued by the Equitable Trust company through J. Allen Smith and Senator John Hastings, who had just put through a franchise, signed by Mayor Walker the day before, giving the Equitable Coach company the right to operate buses on the streets of New York.

Asks About Letter of Credit.

Q.—By the governor: When did you learn that J. Allen Smith was the actual purchaser of the letter of credit? A.—Not until the time of this investigation.

Q.—The letter was overdrawn in your name by $3,000. Do you know why J. Allen Smith should have paid the overdraft? A.—I do not. Not at my request; not by any reason advanced in my behalf. I know nothing of it.

Picking up a photostatic copy of the overdraft, and noting it was signed by James J. Walker, and drawn on the Equitable Trust company, the governor went on:

Q.—Well, in effect, it was a promise to pay $3,000, on your part, to the Equitable Trust company? A.—Well, technically, yes, because my name was used. I just signed it because I had signed the original letter of credit.

No Account in Bank.

Q.—You had no account with that bank? A.—I had no account there.

Q.—Do you know anything of the payment of that o.erdraft? A.—I do not. I did not pay it. Senator Downing did.

Q.—In other words, this is a check on a bank in which you didn't have an account. It is irregular. Its irregularity is evidenced by the fact that you had no account. The document apparently impeaches itself.

Mayor Walker then made a voluntary statement about the letter of credit.

"The inference, your excellency, or the purpose of this—which of itself I assume was a legitimate transaction—is to show that this $10,000 letter of credit was the influence that ruled the franchise for the Equitable company. I think the following inference is equally strong: That all those who voted on the board of estimate for this franchise must have been influenced by it too."

Takes Up Block Matter.

Then the governor went on to the Paul Block matter, and, reading from his prepared minutes, Mr. Roosevelt said the testimony "is fairly clear that the mayor received from Paul Block nearly $250,000, less deductions for income taxes." Mr. Walker, invited by the governor to explain, delivered his comment on his own unfortunate use of the word "beneficence" in describing Paul Block's service to him.

He told of the opening of the joint brokerage account, saying:

"It was opened on credit, without a dollar from either of us. Not an uncommon thing. Opened on credit. Progressed under Mr. Block's administration. Mr. Block's selection of investments, not mine. That is what I mean by the word beneficence. He managed it, he handled it. He used his experience and his knowledge and he suggested it.

"But one thing I do deplore and resent most deeply, and that is the broadcasting of any inference that Paul Block opened this account either with the intention or afterwards made use of it for any profit for himself out of the City of New York. I will go farther and say he never attempted to.

Two Versions of Deal.

"I think I set forth some place that he is a publisher of a great many papers; a well established philanthropist; a man who testified himself that he carried a great many people—and I think put it that way—in stock accounts, something that was very generally carried on at that time, in which the most careful men in any community participated.

Gov. Roosevelt broke in.

"There seems to be a confusion," he said, "between your conception of the account and Mr. Block's. He stated in testifying to counsel that he was 'going to try and make a little money for you.'"

GOV. ROOSEVELT [continuing]—Now, of course, there has never been any allegation that you put up any collateral, that you put up any money to start the account.

MAYOR WALKER—Nor did he.

GOV. ROOSEVELT — But at the same time I think it appears in the record that you got money out of it, cash, once or twice before there was that amount of profit in the account.

Denial Refuted by Testimony.

The mayor was most indignant at this suggestion and avowed loudly his denial that this was so. The governor read from Mr. Block's testimony to the effect that the mayor had received "profits" to the extent of five or six thousand dollars before the account earned any profits.

Mayor Walker started to quibble at the language, but the governor broke in again, saying, "It is perfectly plain English," and reread the Block testimony. Finally Mr. Walker protested that "whatever the discrepancies in the testimony, the fact remains that it had nothing to do with any official conduct of mine—Block didn't get the benefit of that through the city or through any official source."

Q. [by Gov. Roosevelt]—How did you receive money in payments from this account? A.—I received money in cash. And there was an equal amount drawn by Mr. Block for both of us—as he explained, to keep the account even.

Seabury Enters Contradiction.

Mr. Seabury got up at this point to give a direct contradiction to the mayor's explanation. He said the record showed that the mayor received $102,000 in cash from the account between March and June, 1927, before Mr. Block had taken anything from the account.

Mayor Jimmy jumped to his feet at that. It wasn't true at all, the mayor cried out.

"Well," said the governor, "let's see what Mr. Block says." And the testimony of Block, showing that Mr. Walker had taken $102,500 from the account without Block's receiving anything from it, was read into the record.

The governor then brought out that Mr. Block had paid the full amount of the income tax on all the profits, including those he gave to Walker. Mr. Walker said Block had informed him that he paid the tax and had deducted it from Walker's share.

Mr. Curtin objected to records being received in evidence and this brought an end to the patience with which the governor has endured the defense counsel's impertinent remarks.

"Mr. Curtin," the governor said, "I happen to be a lawyer, and remarks of that kind are wholly unnecessary to the governor of this state. Don't try to instruct me about the difference between putting a thing into evidence and marking it for identification."

The governor went into the inference made by the accusers of the mayor that Block had been interested in getting the city to use a certain type of building tile in the subways. Walker admitted he and Block, with certain other city officials, had visited a laboratory of a tile company in which Block was interested, but he denied that there had been any definite proposals for manufacturing the tile for city usage.

The Morning Hearing.

A reference from the Bible, quoting the wisdom of the Prophet Daniel in rescuing the maiden Susanna was made at the outset of the morning session.

Gov. Roosevelt reannounced his previous decision that he would consider all the evidence given before the Hofstadter committee as being formally before him at this time. If the mayor wanted to present any other testimony, or to cross-examine any previous witnesses, he might do so upon applying for that privilege to the governor.

This decision invoked an outburst from the mayor's chief counsel, Mr. Curtin, who during the course of the morning visibly roiled the governor.

Gov. Roosevelt kept an even temper.

"We have had no right or opportunity to cross-examine any of these witnesses and at this time, somewhat hesitantly, I wish to cite to your excellency one of the earliest proofs of the value of cross-examination," Mr. Curtin said.

"It is written in the Bible that two elders, becoming enamored of the maiden Suzanna, were wrathy when she repulsed them and, in revenge, they accused her falsely of improper relations with another elder.

"She was brought to trial for the crime and tearfully denied the allegation, but the word of the elders prevailed and she was condemned to death. But Daniel, wise prophet, appeared and said, 'Wait, not so fast,' and he asked for the right to cross-examine the elders.

Reference Accepted.

"He asked the first of them had he seen the act alleged, and the elder said he had, with his own eyes. 'Where did it occur?' the prophet asked, and the elder replied: 'Under the mastik tree.' Then Daniel called the other elder, who also related that he had seen it with his own eyes, but when he was asked by Daniel where it had occurred the elder declared, 'Under the yew tree.'

"And it was not Suzanna who was put to death"—and here the lawyer's gaze moved from the defendant, Mayor Walker, over to where the white haired Seabury sat with his assistants. The lawyer repeated:

"And it was not Suzanna who was put to death, but her accusers."

There was just a ghost of a smile playing over Mr. Seabury's face, but he gave no other sign of emotion.

Gov. Roosevelt found the biblical reference good and turned it aptly against its sponsor.

"Very well, Mr. Curtin," he answered him, "I accept your reference. You are the prophet Daniel, and just as he summoned the elders who accused Suzanna, so may you summon the witnesses who accuse the mayor."

The governor launched without more ado into a detailed cross-examination of Mayor Walker.

Asked About Bus Franchise.

The first subject for discussion with the mayor was the charge that he had used his influence to secure the awarding of a franchise for city bus service to the Equitable Coach company for the benefit of a group of friends, one of whom was Senator John A. Hastings, and that the company was wholly unfit to carry out the terms of the franchise.

Q.—By the governor—The franchise was granted by the transit board on July 28, 1927. On the following night did you attend a celebration over that action? A.—I was at no celebration as a result of the issuance of that franchise. It is a misrepresentation made out of whole cloth. It happened that on that night I attended a party, but no one there had any connection with that franchise.

Q.—Was Hastings there? A.—He was, with his wife.

Q.—Was J. Allen Smith there? A.—I never saw him in my life knowingly.

Smith is alleged to have negotiated the Equitable bus franchise and has figured in the Walker case as having procured for the mayor the letter of credit for $10,000 upon which the mayor and Mrs. Walker and several friends went upon the now well known European vacation.

About Letter of Credit.

Q.—The $10,000 letter of credit was brought to you by Senator Hastings on Aug. 9, was it not? A.—I don't know the date; it was a day or two before I left for Europe.

Q.—And you signed the franchise on the following day, did you not? A.—I believe so. I may add that I am here to defend this and any other franchise I ever signed as mayor.

After a few more questions, Gov. Roosevelt turned to Mr. Seabury, indicating that he might question the mayor on the Equitable matter if he chose. Mr. Seabury was stopped by an objection from Attorney Curtin, who demanded again that Seabury produce his own witnesses before being allowed to cross-examine any of the mayor's. The governor overruled the objection.

MR. SEABURY—Mr. Mayor, when you voted for the franchise, didn't you know there was no firm commitment from the J. G. White Management corporation? A.—I wouldn't be able to see the actual commitment. Things aren't done just that way.

MR. SEABURY—Well, if you won't answer the question——

MR. WALKER—I won't have that inference. We've had enough of that all these months. I won't answer. I want to say to you that the executive mind is not subject to cross-examination upon its acts any more than your excellency is subject to my cross-examination as to why you made the decisions you have given here.

The mayor cooled off, and finally said, "O, well, I'll waive it. I'll answer the question."

New York, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Over a carpet of red roses, strewn the length of the station platform, the mayor of New York returned home tonight, leaning on the arm of Morton Downey, radio crooner, while a brass band played the Democratic national campaign song, "Happy Days Are Here Again."

A crowd fully as large as that which saw him off Wednesday afternoon cheered Mayor James J. Walker as he passed through Grand Central station on his return for the week-end from Albany after the first two sessions of the hearing before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of charges on which is demanded his removal from office.

From the entrance to the station down the platform to his private car at the end of a long train, some one had dropped a trail of fragrant, crimson roses, and women passengers stopped the traffic as they stooped to gather them up, all broken and dusty from trampling feet.

Gets Offer of Job.

The mayor came back to spend the week-end resting on the estate of his friend, A. C. Blumenthal, real estate and theatrical magnate, at Larchmont, in Westchester county.

On the train coming back from Albany Mr. Blumenthal confirmed a report he was ready to offer the mayor a $100,000 a year job should he be removed from office—a prospect that, it appeared tonight, he may not have to worry about for some time, since the governor has promised to withhold his decision until the courts have passed on his jurisdiction.

"No, not in the movies," Mr. Blumenthal said when the report was put up to him.

"What, then?" he was asked.

"Why not as a lawyer?" he retorted.

He refused to expand on the matter.

Mr. Blumenthal, who had been in Albany with Mayor Walker, left the train at Harmon, the only stop between Albany and New York.

He said then he expected Mayor Walker at Larchmont some time this evening to spend the week-end.

Refuses Interviews.

John J. Curtin, his chief counsel; Morton Downey, who boarded the train at Harmon; several other friends, and some of his office staff were with him.

Mayor Walker sent out word that he had nothing to say on the train. A member of his staff said:

Mrs. Walker did not return with him, although the mayor brought back her dog, a Japanese spaniel named "Admiral Togo."

She did not appear at the hearing today, and a member of the mayor's staff said that, weak from her recent operation, yesterday's session had apparently tired her more than she had expected it would, and that she remained in bed today and would spend the week-end in Albany resting.

FILIPINOS FIGHT SENATE BILL TO SET THEM FREE

Want Independence, but Oppose Trade Bars.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, Philippine Islands, Aug. 12.—Public opinion in the Philippines is increasingly desirous for freedom, but at the same time it is increasingly anxious over the economic aspects of autonomy.

The Hawes-Cutting measure to grant the Philippines independence, now pending in the United States senate, is meeting with bitter opposition from leaders here, who condemn it in private and are beginning to voice resentment at its economic features in public. Filipinos consider the grant of eventual independence the only good feature about the bill and question whether this legislature will approve it.

Question Fairness of Bill.

The Philippines probably will take the road to independence offered by the bill if the American congress will give no other terms, but they question the fairness of the measure and are casting about for a formula that will not handicap the islands.

(The Hawes-Cutting bill would grant the Philippines freedom following a probationary period of from fifteen to eighteen years. During the trial period Filipino immigration into the United States would be placed under quota restrictions. During the first ten years imports into the United States of Philippine sugar, cocoanut oil, copra, and cordage fiber would be limited; during the next five years all Philippine exports would be subject to an export tax equal to a gradually increasing percentage of the American tariff rates.)

Not Ready for Freedom.

The islands are not prepared for economic independence and only a minority now demands immediate and complete separation from the United States. Politically the islands are capable of running their affairs with order and stability and a measurable degree of enlightenment and social justice. They cannot be held much longer on that ground, although another generation of training, education, growth of public opinion and the press would produce better results.

What would please the Filipinos and postpone independence indefinitely would be the appointment of a Filipino as governor general instead of the constant changes of men and policies in that office as a result of American politics.

Dominion status, statehood without a vote for president, or some sort of political partnership on the basis of equality and by the will of the people here are talked of privately by leaders, but without much hope and without abandoning the public stand for independence.

Depend on U. S. Market.

Competition which Philippine products are offering American products in the home market and the treatment of Filipino laborers in the United States are found as bars to a solution by the autonomous state plan, as is also the American objection to assuming responsibility without authority over political and financial matters. Therefore, the people are being prepared to expect independence, both economic and political, within a few years and to plan to meet it, however difficult.

An analysis of the present economic structure shows that the islands are greatly dependent on the American market for the sale of a large proportion of their crops. The investment of 200 million dollars in sugar here is felt to be jeopardized by the demands of American farmers and American investors in Cuba for restrictions on sugar imports. It will take ten years to work out that problem here with any degree of fairness.

Plan to Diversify Farming.

If free trade were abolished now the effect would be disastrous to all sections of it, the archipelago. The ten year plan to educate Filipinos to take over economic control, into which the whole nation will throw its energy now, is proposed to meet the emergency of the withdrawal of free trade. This would mean direct development of agriculture to supply the home needs first, and second, to diversify commercial farming to retain the United States' market in competition with Java and other tropical countries. In the long run the Filipinos vision through diversification, a more stable market than under the present arrangement.

Politically the government, under the stimulus of Gov. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, is meeting the financial emergency. A reorganization bill is being framed, under which many bureaus will be consolidated and economies will be effected to balance the budget. Already there have been 10 per cent salary cuts all around and the new plan will dispense with thousands of public servants in overstaffed departments.

Spanish Republic Ponders Fate of Ex-King's Pawn in Revolt

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Aug. 12.—To shoot or not to shoot? That is the dilemma confronting the ministers of the Spanish republic in the case of these fallen and tarnished generals of former King Alfonso—Jose Sanjurjo & Co., who are now in the military prison here awaiting trial for treason after their 18 hour rebellion.

The country demands above all the death penalty for Gen. Sanjurjo, who was once its hero. The parliamentary party met tonight and sent a solemn appeal to Premier Manuel Azana asking for prompt application of the law. It referred to the military statute of 1919, which provides a firing squad for rebellious soldiery.

But for the ministers of the republic, who are writers, lawyers and professors and humanitarians, it is a real dilemma. None of them believes in the death penalty. They wanted it abolished from the constitution, but the constituent fathers thought best to leave it in the penal code, realizing the inconvenience of abolishing the death penalty in the army.

Recall 1930's Executions.

These ministers remember, too, how blithely Alfonso's drumhead court-martial executed Capt. Fermyn Galan and Capt. Garcia Hernandez on Dec. 14, 1930, after the march from Jaca against the king, and how they themselves had used this execution to speed up the oncoming revolution. Everybody realizes that this case is different. Gala. and Hernandez rose against the illegal dictatorship of the king. Gen. Sanjurjo and his friends rose, though comically and pathetically, against the country, constitution, and parliament.

But Spaniards have a horror for execution in cold blood. The ministers of the republic, aside from their inner convictions, have apprehensions. They do not care to supply martrys.

The clamor arises from the country, not alone from parliament. The great newspapers of Madrid are doing their best to appear to argue against bringing pressure on the government, but throughout the country there are massmeetings. Telegrams are pouring into Madrid. They want the life of Sanjurjo, a puzzled clown lying in a cell in Madrid, jumping at every noice from the street.

Cabinet Keeps Hand Off

The government, scrupulously thus far, has kept its hands off. The entire case is in the hands of the high court, which is composed of the supreme military and civil tribunals. All the government can do secretly is to expedite the proceedings. But everyone realizes that if Sanjurjo comes before them within a week with the country wildly indignant the death sentence is inevitable. A reprieve, however, is possible.

There is a threat of serious trouble if the people do not get the head they are asking for. Throughout southern Spain, feelings are running dangerously high. The new governor, Senor Calvino, who has succeeded in humoring the reactionary Basque country, has been sent to Seville to try to restrain the republican mob which is still intent on burning buildings of the monarchists. At Granada today a republican youth began a sport, which is destined to spread to the rest of Spain, by tearing from the breasts of monarchist ladies the particular kind of crucifix they wear. Spanish aristocrats are being thrown into jail. The duke of Medinaceli, one of the first grandees of Spain, was among the recruits today.

For the first time Spanish aristocrats are being put in cells like commoners. Preferred quarters, for which an extra charge is made, have long since been taken up. Figures given out by the ministry of interior tonight showed 486 new arrivals in the country's overcrowded jails since the uprising. Evidence against all but the military is slight, but authorities are inclined to believe that the grandees are safer behind the bars in event of the indignant public running amok.

May Hear Clemency Pleas

Sanjurjo and his fellow generals made such a sorry showing that their pleas for clemency are inclined to get a hearing. Emiolo Herrero, press secretary for President Niceto Alcala Zamora, was heard arguing in the halls of parliament today that Sanjurjo "really is a very good fellow." The government is faced for the first time with the necessity of punishing a member of a class that terrorized Spain for a century. Executions have been plentiful, but generals have been immune. The last general was executed in 1842.

In the military prison Gen. Sanjurjo met Col. Mangada, now a national hero, although he is still imprisoned for making a scene when Gen. Godes, who is also in jail, failed to show properly the republican feeling to the troops.

"Do you think they will shoot me?" Sanjurjo asked.

General Is Dejected.

The illustrated papers today published pictures of Sanjurjo, the aging playboy, as he arrived dejected and travel worn. His clownishness robbed the proceedings of much of their traditional dignity. Politics aside, everybody from an officer down to a taxi driver expressed themselves vividly that if Sanjurjo had possessed a pistol he should have shot his way to freedom or shot himself.

Monarchist officers around the bars are threatening tonight that if President Azana permits Sanjurjo to be shot he will pay with his own life within 24 hours.

Find Roads Muddy

Ninety-eight bonus marchers, who were furnished free transportation from Chicago by the Alton road arrived at Springfield last evening. Today or tomorrow they will move into a new encampment just north of the city.

Heavy rains which had waterlogged roads leading to the new camp made it necessary for the veterans to bivouac in Springfield for the night. They were taken by truck to a coal company's grounds in the west section of the city. It is planned to move them as soon as possible to the new camp where 118 men already are gathered.

The movement of the main force of the Chicago bonus army to Springfield was prompted partly by reports that Mayor John W. Kapp Jr., of Springfield, had set aside a 75 acre tract of land for bonus army headquarters. The mayor denied he had made any such provision.

The breakup of the Chicago contingent followed evictions from two rickety structures, one on the north side and one on the west side, which the army had hoped to use as headquarters. The few remaining veterans here are Chicagoans and they will seek shelter with relatives or friends, it was said.

WORRIES MORE OVER PHONE TOLL THAN REBELLION

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MADRID, Aug. 12.—An amusing incident of Wednesday's royalist rebellion was related today by the newspaper Ahora. Alvarez Del Vayo, the Spanish ambassador to Mexico, got Minister of Public Works Indalecio Prieto on the trans-Atlantic telephone Wednesday afternoon.

"Is the revolt succeeding?" the ambassador asked.

The minister's reply, in a despondent tone, was not heard by Del Vayo.

"Why are you sad? Is the revolt succeeding?" the ambassador reiterated.

DEMAND RETURN OF CAPT. PTACEK TO LAWNDALE

Residents Say Mayor's Aid Caused Shift.

Protests among business men and residents in the Lawndale police district over the transfer three weeks ago of Capt. John E. Ptacek to the Austin station culminated yesterday in arrangements for a committee to petition Commissioner of Police Allman on Monday for his return.

The committee will submit petitions, bearing nearly 30,000 signatures, urging Commissioner Allman and Mayor Cermak to return the captain in view of his "impartial and efficient police service." The petitions also seek permission for Capt. Ptacek, who has been a member of the police department for over forty-eight years, to "round out a half century of service amidst his friends and well wishers."

In Command Twenty-eight Years.

The Lawndale district is bounded by 16th street, California avenue, the sanitary canal, and the west city limits. Its residents include a large percentage of Bohemians, people of the same stock as Capt. Ptacek, and in the twenty-eight years that he has been in command there he has gained, the business men say, a reputation for courage, tact, and ability. He has acted as more than a police captain, they say, and has been a friend, adviser, and peacemaker for his people. They say they regard his services, without detracting from the ability of Capt. John Ryan who now is in command, as invaluable to the district.

In the district the transfer is laid at the door of Henry Sonnenschein, secretary to Mayor Cermak, who was elected alderman of the 22d ward last June to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Ald. Joseph Cepak.

Residents Blame Sonnenschein.

"Since Sonnenschein became alderman," said Emil Denemark, automobile agency and race horse owner, and a cousin of Edward J. Denemark, superintendent of the Bridewell, "he has endeavored to disturb the quiet conditions in the district and bring about a condition of unrest that the people won't tolerate. Under Ptacek the police affairs in Lawndale were singularly free from politics and partisanship."

In reply to the charges that he had effected Capt. Ptacek's transfer, Ald. Sonnenschein said:

"I have nothing to do with the police department. I understood that the transfer was made at the captain's own request. He lives only two blocks from the Austin station."

Democrats Postpone Visit to Gov. Roosevelt

Illinois Democratic leaders who had planned to call on their presidential nominee, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, at Albany on Monday, have postponed their trip, it was announced yesterday, because the governor expects to be occupied with the Mayor Walker case for some time. "We shall go to Albany as soon as the governor finds it more convenient to see us," said P. A. Nash, county chairman. The delegation also includes Thomas F. Donovan, state chairman; Bruce A. Campbell, state campaign manager, and Judge Harry M. Fisher.

KREUGER BONDS SPREAD OVER U.S. IN LIBERAL LOTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 12.—Attention shifted today from the tangle in which the late Ivar Kreuger left his one billion dollar organization after years of unchecked manipulation to the names of buyers of his securities.

A 200 page list of 15,000 names of creditors of the bankrupt holding concern, the Kreuger & Toll company, was filed here in the United States District court. It shows how $47,596,000 outstanding of that company's 5 per cent secured sinking fund gold debentures, due in 1959, were distributed among institutions, traders, investors, and banks. This is what became of some of them:

The president and Fellows of Harvard university, commonly known as the corporation, had $100,000, and another $100,000 was held by the Harvard-Yen Ching institute, administering a fund established under the will of Charles M. Hall for research and education in Chinese language, etc.

Large Individual Buyers.

Mrs. Percy A. Rockefeller, whose husband was a director of International Match company, bought $100,000. John A. Morris took $497,000; M. J. Meehan, $200,000; Charles K. Nichols, $116,000.

Greater New York took blocks; the Brooklyn Trust, $300,000; the Chase National bank, $265,000; the City Bank Farmers' Trust, $230,000; the New York Trust, $198,000; the Bankers' Trust, $114,000.

The Sherman corporation, care of the Chase Securities corporation, took $650,000; the Corn Products Refining Co., $130,000.

In Chicago, the Foreman State corporation bought $371,000; the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Co., $281,000; the Northern Trust, $113,000, the Continental Chicago corporation, $100,000.

More Banks Purchase Them.

In Pittsburgh, the Sterling Investment corporation took $250,000; the First National bank of Pittsburgh, $120,000.

In large amounts and small, these bonds were sold in Orange, N. J.; in Muscatine, Ia.; in Mishawaka, Ind.; in St. Paul, Kansas City, Jacksonville, Fla.; in Quincy, Ill., and many other points.

At Natrona, Pa., J. Francis Jankowsky took $334,000; in Duluth, H. C. Dudley, $225,000. The Western Surety company and Sioux Falls, S. D., took $101,000.

In Cleveland the Midland corporation $140,000, and the Union Trust company, $100,000. In Baltimore, Alexander Brown & Sons took $100,000; in Philadelphia, Cassatt & Co., $100,000; in Syracuse, the Syracuse Trust company, $179,500, and the First Trust and Deposit company, $113,000.

Lots of Foreign Pledged Bonds.

The list filed today was certified by Javits & Javits, attorneys for the creditors, as obtained from Lee, Higginson & Co., trustee for the debentures. It was subject to correction if any of the purchasers had since disposed of the securities.

The attorneys told the court that these debentures were direct obligations of Kreuger & Toll and were additionally secured by a pledge of bonds of the Hungarian Land Reform society, the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, republic of Latvia, Rumanian Monopoly institute, Ecuador, and the German republic, the exact value of which was uncertain, but said to be at present prices from 20 to 25 per cent of their face value. Under the terms of issue, the pledged securities were to be not less than 120 per cent of the par value of the secured debentures.

STREET CAR AND AUTO COLLIDE; BOY BADLY HURT

A 13 year old boy was severely injured and four other persons were bruised when their automobile crashed into a street car at Chicago and Michigan avenues this morning. Police said that the signal lights are turned off at midnight and that accidents are not uncommon there after that hour. No one in the surface car was hurt. The automobile overturned.

The injured boy is Joseph Field of 3509 North Marshfield avenue. Those bruised are Albert Rochassky, 19, and his sister, Rita, 20, both of the Marshfield avenue address; Elaine Hart, 16, of 3506 Bosworth avenue, and Clyde Hollars, 28, of 2101 South Michigan avenue. Joseph suffered a broken arm and several rib fractures, and was taken to Passavant hospital. The automobile belonged to Hollars. A pistol was found in the car, which Hollars said he kept for protection. He was held.

Mrs. Louise Marro, 70 years old, 603 North Western avenue, was fatally injured yesterday by an automobile while on her way to mass at the Holy Rosary church, across the street from her home. The driver, Morris Reis, 29 years old, 3514 Leland avenue, was held.

The death of Mrs. Marro and three others increased the Cook county motor fatalities since Jan. 1 to 706. The other victims:

Frank Strok Jr., 10 months old, 1321 North 5th avenue, Maywood. Died in the county hospital. He was thrown from the automobile in which he was riding in his mother's arms by a collision in Elmhurst July 31.

Le Roy McDowell, colored, 10 years old, 4545 Evans avenue. Died in the Chicago hospital. Earlier in the day he fell from a truck on which he was hitching a ride at 7855 St. Lawrence avenue.

Unidentified man, about 60 years old. Died late last night in the county hospital. He was hit by an automobile earlier in the day in La Salle street, near Ohio.

Mitchell, Ind., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—The body of a man was found in a woods near here today by Virgil Holt. A pistol lay near the body and there was a bullet wound in the head. The man had been dead two weeks.

Prisoner May Face Mann Act Charge.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Federal authorities yesterday began an investigation of the activities of Harvey Raymond Spencer, 31 years old, arrested on a charge of inducing girls to pose in the nude for photographs on his promise to hire them as models.

Memoranda and letters found in Spencer's apartment in the Hyde Park Manor hotel, 5510 Harper avenue, and in a second apartment he used at 4914 Quincy street, which was raided yesterday by Sergt. P. Naughton of the Scotland Yard police detail, interested federal authorities. Notations by him indicated he engaged girls to go to what he described to them as a "millionaire's estate" in Lakeside, Mich., for week-end parties.

Court Hearing Today.

Spencer will appear in the Morals court this morning. He was booked at the detective bureau late yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct, contributing to the delinquency of a 16 year old girl, and having in his possession obscene photographs.

A list of 140 names of girls whom he had induced to pose in the nude was found in his possession, Sergt. Naughton said.

Letters from several politicians and senators were also found in Spencer's correspondence, and since his arrest a number of calls have been received by police from politicians seeking his release.

Police and government authorities are working on the Lakeside, Mich., evidence to determine whether there is basis for a Mann act charge, Sergt. Naughton said that many of the girls who had answered an advertisement of Spencer's purporting to offer artist's models work had revealed that Spencer asked them if they would be willing to go to the so called "millionaire's estate" in Lakeside to pose for motion pictures over week-ends. Postal authorities also are working on the case to determine if he used the mails to defraud.

Notations After Names.

Among his notations following girls' names was the following: "O. K. for Lakeside any week-end." Other notations were: "She won't do. She does no nudes." "Dark, short, 5 feet 4 inches. She's shy." "Slender boyish figure." "Excellent figure. A distant pesonality." "Figure O. K. Will use her for films, 'Among the Nudists.'" "Believe she will do with a little coaching."

Many of the girls located by Sergt. Naughton, who has been working on the case since July 23, are only 15 years old, he said, the average being from 15 to 18 years old.

The statutory charge placed against Spencer is based on evidence that he has been living with Miss Constance Selbach, 23 years old, an alien from Belgium, for the past three months. She was arrested with him. Miss Selbach acted as his secretary and lent reassurance to the girls by persuading them to pose.

Secretary Makes Appointment.

"Spencer's method was to make appointments with the girls through Miss Selbach," Sergt. Naughton said. "They then called at the 5510 Harper avenue address, where he met them in her presence. He told many of the girls that he was selecting models for a prominent Michigan avenue artist who was to make a painting, 'The Perfect Girl,' to be shown at the World's Fair. They would have to pass inspection before him in the nude, but another face would be used in the painting, he said.

"These girls were almost destitute, jobless, and were told they would earn $1 an hour," said the sergeant. "Only one or two were professional models. Only two girls of the 140 were paid, one receiving $2 and the other $3 after threatening to go to the state's attorney and expose him.

"Some of the girls were taken to the Quincy street address, which was equipped with peepholes where unseen men could watch the girls as they posed for motion pictures."

Hunt 3 Other Men.

Police are looking for Walter W. Pearson, T. R. Jones, and D. G. Zcynotch, who operated with Spencer from the Quincy street address.

Possibility that Spencer may have engaged in blackmail was suggested by police, after they had found in a list of suggested "stories" he proposed to write a notation to make an "exposé of campus life at the University of Chicago from Friday night to Monday morning." Spencer attended the downtown college of the university in the fall and winter of 1927-'28.

Sergt. Naughton said that he had evidence that Spencer had supplied girls for various stag parties at clubs and elsewhere.

BRITISH REPORTER IS SENT TO JAIL FOR GETTING NEWS SCOOPS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The entire power of the Northcliffe press, aided by the best legal brains procurable, has been unable to save a member of the editorial staff of the Daily Mail from a police court sentence of two months in jail imposed in July for contravention of the official secrets act. The case, which concerned the early publication of wills, has aroused great interest in legal and newspaper circles.

Frederick Henry Budgeon, a senior reporter of the Daily Mail and for many years secretary of the London Press club, is charged by the prosecution with receiving details of wills of important people from an official in the probate department a day before such wills were officially issued to the press. The offending official was caught and sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment.

Sir Thomas Inskip, attorney general, resisting Budgeon's appeal against the severity of the sentence in London sessions today, said Budgeon had pleaded guilty to tampering with official sources of information to the prejudice of the trade of competitors, and with corruption of civil servants. Sir William Jowitt pleaded that Budgeon was a first offender, with an outstanding journalistic record, and suggested that what had been done was a result of the reporter's excess zeal to obtain early news. Sir Herbert Wilberforce, chairman of the court, said it was his public duty that the sentence should be confirmed. He dismissed the appeal with costs.

Patient Leaps 3 Floors to Death in Hospital

Charles Jorga, 32 years old, leaped three floors to his death last night at the Illinois Research hospital, 1819 Polk street, where he had been a patient with a nervous disorder since last June. Dr. William H. Haines, a staff member, had invited him to go for an automobile ride and they had reached the third floor landing, when Jorga suddenly leaped into the circular space within the spiral stairway and fell to the first floor. Jorga was a clerk and lived at 3624 Oriole avenue.

WIDOW POLLAK WANTS A VEIL; LIBBY HAS ONE

Mrs. Dorothy Pollak, who shot and killed her husband, Joseph, in their home at 1936 Garfield boulevard, was arraigned yesterday in the Felony court on the original murder warrant. Judge Leon Edelman nol prossed the case in view of the grand jury indictment.

Mrs. Pollak shielded her face from photographers and refused to speak to reporters, reversing her earlier attitude. She asked a policewoman to get her a heavy black veil to wear during the court appearance.

"They're out of style," she was told. Mrs. Pollak insisted she must have one. Jail attachés said that Mrs. Pollak had shown unusual interest in pictures of the heavily veiled Libby Holman Reynolds when the latter was arraigned recently on a charge of slaying her husband.

GUARD TRUCKS ON IOWA ROADS IN MILK STRIKE

Le Mars, Ia., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Pouring out of 300 pounds of cream from a Cherokee Creamery company truck and the mounting of sheriff's deputies on cream and milk trucks tonight focussed attention on a farmers' strike in this vicinity.

Action was being considered against two Plymouth county farmers who dumped the cream from the truck when the driver refused to accede to their demands that he observe the farmers' nonselling movement.

Farmers who joined a strike inaugurated Monday by the Farmers Holiday association had been stopping trucks between Kingsley, Pierson, and Sioux City. The trucks were allowed to proceed, however, when sheriff's deputies accompanied some of the drivers.

FORBES AND RUTH CHATTERTON GET NEVADA DIVORCE

Minden, Nev., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Ruth Chatterton, actress, and her husband, Ralph Forbes, actor, were divorced here today, it was revealed by H. R. Jepsen, clerk of Douglas county.

The county clerk said the suit was filed by Forbes and was heard by District Judge Edgar Ether, who granted the decree. Judge Ether ordered all papers in the case sealed and details of the complaint and decree were not available.

Forbes has been residing in Reno and drove here by automobile to complete the divorce plans. He took advantage of a Nevada law which permits filing of suit at any county seat, regardless of the county in which residence is established.

DIXMOOR HIRES 5 MORE COPS IN SPEED TRAP FEUD

Boycotts J. P. for Being Too Lenient.

The village board of Dixmoor, where a speed trap is said to exist, has hired five more special policemen to watch for traffic violators and has "fired" Magistrate Charles Rajsl for being too lenient with autoists arrested by Chief Thomas Leuther. The new order gives Dixmoor seven policemen to patrol its two miles of primary highways.

This became known last night when Magistrate Rajsl freed Rayburn Ross, 32 years old, of Stickney township, who had been arrested on Aug. 5 for a traffic violation and then beaten by Chief Leuther.

Motor Counsel at Hearing.

The Ross hearing was attended by Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club which has been waging a fight against all speed traps in the county. Ross and Chief Leuther were the principal witnesses.

Ross, who is unemployed, testified that Chief Leuther arrested him for driving a truck without a rear view mirror. Mrs. Ross and their infant child were with him. Unable to furnish bond, Ross protested against the detention of his wife and baby, and a fight started in which Chief Leuther, Ross charged, struck him ten times. Magistrate Rajsl dismissed the traffic charge but fined Ross $1 and costs for fighting. This penalty was later remitted on Attorney Braun's plea.

One Trustee Dissents.

The village boycott order, passed Thursday night, failed to reach Magistrate Rajsl in time to prevent his hearing the Ross case, which, it developed, will probably be his last traffic case. The boycott was agreed upon by five trustees, the sixth, Fred Kehnast, dissenting. Mayor Charles Special presided. It was said that the trustees resented particularly Magistrate Rajsl's freeing of J. H. Walden, Chicago speed trap foe, on July 27. Mr. Walden is president of the Chicago Printers, Inc.

No explanation was given by officials for adding the five special policemen. Dixmoor is a small village, bounded by 136th and 147th streets and Western and Ashland avenues. The police patrol is maintained principally on Western avenue and 147th street, a distance of about two miles. Dixmoor, until 1929, was known as Specialville.

VILLAGE MAYOR FIRES TWO MAN POLICE FORCE

Mayor Edgar Conant of Hazelcrest announced yesterday that he had discharged the entire active police force of the village, consisting of Policemen Charles W. Smoots and Clarence Ream.

The policemen were dismissed, the mayor said, for failure to account for license fees which they had collected. The two man police force was charged with the duty of collecting vehicle, dog, and business licenses in the village. When its members were requested to account for their collections recently Ream was $240 short and Smoots $10 short.

"Certainly I kept the money," said Ream when asked about the charges. "The village hasn't paid me or Smoots since March 15. I have to live some way. When I get my pay I'll turn the collections over to the village."

Boy Emperor Sails to Take Throne

Is 19 Years Old

MARSEILLES, France, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Emperor Boa-Dai, 19 year old ruler of Annam, in French Indo-China, sailed today in the steamer D'Artagnan to become the active head of the government in his native country.

For eight years he has been living in France, attending school here and absorbing western culture. Now he goes back to the dragon throne as successor to his father, Emperor Khai Dinh, who died in 1925. He rules under French supervision, for Annam, about the size of the state of Ohio, has been a French protectorate since 1886.

One of the first things he intends to do, he said, is to end caste rule. He intends to reform the judicial system in Annam and to open more schools. He will be assisted by his cousin, Prince Vinh, who also was educated in France.

Holdup Man Wounded by a Policeman Dies

Archibald Cheocy, 25 years old, of 712 Aberdeen street, died yesterday in the Augustana hospital of wounds which he received July 3 when he was shot by Policeman John Sirovy of the North Riverside force. Policeman Sirovy interrupted Cheocy and three companions in an attempted robbery of A. Strosky, owner of a fireworks stand at 22d street and Harlem avenue, North Riverside.

SHOOTS WOMAN, KILLS HIMSELF IN LOVE TRIANGLE

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Miss Frieda Meyer, 22 years old, 3655 North Francisco avenue, lay in Belmont hospital yesterday with four bullets wounds, the outcome of her two year flirtation with a man whose former wife had accused Miss Meyer of wrecking their home. Michael Decker, 4034 Bernard street, 42 years old, after shooting Miss Meyer yesterday morning, shot and killed himself.

The tragedy occurred while the couple were riding in Decker's automobile when Miss Meyer told him finally that she would not become his wife. The auto careened over the sidewalk and smashed into a fence in front of 2911 Roscoe street after Decker fired a shot into his own head. He died at the hospital without regaining consciousness. Miss Meyer's wounds are not considered serious.

Police Find Ex-Wife.

Albany Park police, who took charge of the case, found his former wife, Mrs. Clara Decker, and their 20 year old daughter, Edna, at 4208 North Sacramento avenue, where Decker had lived with them prior to his divorce last May 3.

Mrs. Decker informed the police that her former husband and Miss Meyer became acquainted two years ago through the girl's father, Hans Meyer, who was employed by the same concern as Decker. When she objected to the friendship and to Decker's driving the girl to work each morning, he refused to cease his attentions, and she obtained a divorce.

Some weeks ago Miss Meyer's father learned that Frieda had been seen in Decker's car by a member of the family, though she had been forbidden to meet him because he was still married.

Girl Tells of Meeting.

"I never loved him," she said at the hospital. "I had told him that starting next week I wouldn't see him any more. He said that unless I did something would happen, so this morning I met him at the usual place."

FIGHTS INVADING BEES FOR YEAR, THEN KEEPS 'EM

Perry, N. Y., Aug. 12.—(AP)—After trying unsuccessfully for the last year to oust an army of bees which invaded his home, Clyde Hendricks has resigned himself to living with them.

A recent fall which left him a virtual cripple handicapped him in his battle. The bees now have invaded every room in the house. Honey drips from the ceilings and walls, although three times carpenters have been called to caulk up cracks.

COUNTY G. O. P. IS JUBILANT OVER HOOVER SPEECH

Britten and Swanson See Republican Victory.

President Hoover's speech accepting renomination Thursday night continued yesterday to occupy the attention of many Chicagoans.

Republicans of wet persuasion kept cheering, while the Democrats and many of the drys continued to insist that the speech included no immediate or definite solution of the prohibition issue.

Reports in advance of the speech that radio dealers on Thursday were flooded with orders for immediate installation of sets in order that the speech might be heard were corroborated by information yesterday tending to show that practically every loud speaker was in use for the Washington program that evening.

A Universal Audience.

This information that Hoover had an almost universal audience came from such gatherings as the one for Republican day at the Cook county fair. Not only did two speakers—Congressman Fred A. Britten and State's Attorney John A. Swanson—dwell on the Hoover address, but hundreds among the rank and file of the party said they had listened to every word of it.

A dozen county nominees at the fair were jubilant over what they considered Mr. Hoover's boost for the party's chances in November.

"President Hoover's speech was the most forceful utterance he has made during his tenure of office," said Congressman Britten, who acted as chairman. "He told the world that there must be a change in the silly and costly Volstead act by definitely proposing a state option law whereby each state shall determine its own alcoholic beverage traffic.

Doom of Speakeasy.

"His suggestion would put Illinois back where it was in pre-prohibition days with the exception that drinking would be done in regularly constituted clubs, restaurants, hotels, and homes and not in the old saloon or the modern speakeasy."

"The impression I got from the speech," said State's Attorney Swanson, "was that I was listening to a conscientious man trying to find the best method of solving the great problems of our people."

Other county candidates, while they were merely presented to the crowd at the fair and did not speak, joined informally in the jubilation over the President's utterances.

They included John H. Passmore, Jacob D. Allen, Judge Robert E. McMillan, John T. Dempsey, A. W. Komarked, Guy Guernsey, ad Henry Nowak. Julius Klein, nominee for congressman-at-large, also participated and Postmaster Arthur Lueder was presented.

Criticized by Democrats

Statements criticizing the Hoover speech were issued by two Democratic leaders, P. A. Nash, chairman of the Cook county committee, and Thomas F. Donovan, chairman of the state committee.

"The only definite statement by the President," said Chairman Nash, "was that he is opposed to the repeal of the 18th amendment. His vague proposition was that somehow, sometime, by somebody there should be provided some way of letting some states be dry and other states be wet.

"Coupled with that, however, was a proposal that the federal government be given more extensive police powers in preventing the movement of alcoholic beverages from a wet state to a dry one. In effect this is to propose that the number of coast guards, dry agents and snoopers be multiplied by 48 and that at every state boundary citizens would run the same risk of being shot down by mistake as they now take at international boundaries. And the expense of enforcement would be multiplied similarly.

Calls Party Insincere.

"The President's speech increases the belief that the Republican party is insincere on this issue and is trying to carry water on one shoulder and beer on the other."

"President Hoover's position on prohibition has satisfied neither wets nor drys," said State Chairman Donovan. "The only method by which each state can be given the right to deal with the problem is by repeal of the eighteenth amendment. But President Hoover's statements show he is opposed to repeal. Although he recognizes the evils due to prohibition, he carefully avoids committing himself to any definite program to remedy those evils."

The President's speech was also criticised by Leigh Colvin, chairman of the national committee of the Prohibition party, who was in Chicago during the day.

"The change he advocates," said Colvin, "would wipe out prohibition. It would provide an incentive for the liquor traffic to reorganize and pour out millions of dollars to corrupt the states, one by one."

HOOVER TO CALL PARLEY TO WAR ON DEPRESSION

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—President Hoover stated today he would soon be ready to begin the series of conferences with industrial leaders which are to be a part of the rehabilitation program which Mr. Hoover announced on June 29.

On that date in speaking of nine fields in which the administration was working to bring the country out of the depression the President said:

"When this program is more fully developed I shall confer with the business and industrial committees created in each federal reserve district and other groups in the country that are primarily interested with a view to establishing united and concerted action on a broad front throughout the country."

Mr. Hoover already has conferred with several railroad and manufacturing heads. He set no specified date for the holding of the more general meetings, but said they were to begin shortly.

RAGWEED CUTTER DROPS DEAD.

Henry Modigal, 52 years old, died yesterday of heart disease while working in a vacant lot at North Marmora and Grand avenues. Modigal was one of the 750 men employed to cut ragweed in the campaign against hay fever.

HOOVER CHEERED BY RESPONSE TO STAND ON LIQUOR

One Dry Group to Back Him; Others Silent.

White House brought commendatory messages from many industrialists and manufacturers, including Henry Ford, Walter P. Chrysler, automobile manufacturer, and John Hays Hammond, internationally known engineer. Many senators and representatives, including Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.], a lifelong dry, telegraphed congratulations.

Most of the messages dwelt in generalities and few of them, especially those from the drys, touched on national prohibition. Indications were that it will be some time before it will be definitely known whether the President's attack on the 18th amendment has gained or lost votes for the Hoover-Curtis ticket. Republican leaders tonight asserted that developments thus far showed that the President's chances for reelection had been enhanced by his action in going a step further than his party in proposing that the voters modify the 18th amendment.

Message from Drys.

Oliver W. Stewart, head of the Flying Squadron foundation, signed the telegram which arrived from that organization.

"Notwithstanding our conviction," it read, "that no proposed alternative to the 18th amendment can prevent the return of the former evils of the liquor traffic and destroy those from which we now suffer, your manifest sincerity and high purpose enable us to entrust the cause of prohibition in your hands.

"As Lincoln declared not for abolition but against the further extension of slavery and was driven to abolition by the evils inherent in that institution, so we believe that those of the drink traffic will lead you and the American people to its complete destruction. We hail you not as the William Lloyd Garrison or the Wendell Phillips of prohibition but as its Abraham Lincoln."

Representative Beck's Attitude.

In predicting approval of the President's stand by the house wets, Representative Beck said:

"A democratic government must necessarily be one of compromises, and as long as such compromises refer to details and not to fundamental principles they are not objectionable. The President recognizes the fundamental right of any sovereign state to enforce, within its borders, the most rigid prohibition and to be protected by the federal government in the exercise of such right. He now recognizes that another sovereign state should have an equal right, within its borders, to permit, under reasonable regulation, the use of alcoholic beverages.

"Upon this reasonable recognition of the basic principle of local self-government wets and drys should unite, to the common end of solving this problem and removing it as an obstruction to the path of progress.

Saloon Ban Called Futile.

Representative Beck did not take kindly to the Hoover insistence that the saloon be specifically outlawed. He believed it a futile task, and the idea that a guarantee against the saloon should be embodied in the constitution would not add, he said, to the dignity of that instrument. It reminded him of Shakespeare's phrase, to "suckle fools and chronicle small beer."

"The mistake of the 18th amendment was in attempting to embody in the constitution a rigid police prohibition, and if a substitute amendment attempts by any specific and inelastic method to protect the dry states the error will be repeated," he declared.

With both parties committed to rectification of the prohibition mistake, Mr. Beck concluded, the campaigns should address themselves to the pressing economic problems of the day.

Telegrams to President.

Among the hundreds of telegrams that poured into the White House today appeared the following comment:

Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.], ardent dry—Please let me congratulate you heartily upon your masterly speech of acceptance. No fair minded man can fail to appreciate the soundness and the sincerity of your program.

Representative Burton L. French [Rep., Idaho]—Powerful and convincing.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.]—It is a straightforward report upon a desperately difficult trust by a vigilant steward.

Praise Dry Law Stand.

Representative Ralph Horr [Rep., Wash.], prominent house wet — The courage you have manifested will be rewarded again.

A. C. Goodyear, southern manufacturer — Your position on prohibition will command support.

To the telegrams were added many statements by Republicans and Democrats, wets and drys, here in Washington. Among these were the following:

Representative Samuel A. Kendall [Rep., Pa.]—He demonstrated his fitness for reelection by the masterly manner in which he presented the great problems before the country.

Speech Warrants Confidence.

Representative Frank Crowther [Rep., N. Y.]—The President's acceptance speech warrants continuing confidence in his administrative policies. The President's attitude on the prohibition plank should meet with the approval of all our citizens who are broadminded enough not to allow prejudice to override their good judgment.

Representative William E. Hull [Rep., Ill.], house wet—The President's address on the liquor issue pleases those who are in favor of a change in the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law.

Representative Willis Hawley [Rep., Ore.]—The address illustrated his especial qualifications for the presidency and his ability to solve the problems with which the chief executive has been and will be confronted.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart [rad. Rep., Ia.], extreme dry—The Hoover acceptance speech is an entire desertion of the prohibition cause. He deserted it when he retained Andrew W. Mellon in charge of enforcement. Now the President makes the humiliating admission that he has been whipped by the speakeasies and the bootleggers. This is the most humiliating admission ever made by a President of the United States in a speech. There is now no choice of candidates in the major parties upon this question.

Democrat Cries "Alibi."

Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah]—The speech as a whole was an effort to prove an alibi for the Republican party and his administration. It was an attempt to lay upon Providence a domestic situation which neither Providence nor Europe had anything to do with. His statement on prohibition shows that he is floundering and has no courage. It is a confession that the position he has taken heretofore was wrong. It was an attempt, obviously, to satisfy the dry and not dissatisfy the wets.

Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.]—President Hoover made the same promises yesterday he made four years ago. The chances of their fulfillment are about what they were then and are entitled to no more respect than those pledges which so tragically miscarried.

FARLEY SAYS HOOVER ADDRESS IS VAGUE; SEEKS PARTICULARS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—As the official Democratic answer to President Hoover's acceptance speech last night, James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee and Roosevelt campaign manager, today issued a charge of vagueness on the President's part and demanded a bill of particulars.

Republicans have asserted the Democrats have no program, he asserted. How about Mr. Hoover?

"President Hoover enunciated a lot of policies with implied promises that were as indefinite as they were virtuous, as intangible as they were emphatic," said the Democratic chairman.

"It is to be hoped that the President will tell us how he proposes to maintain the security of the nation against the rapacity of monopolistic and favored interests which have done so well by themselves and so ill by the people during his administration so far.

"The President also advises that the nation 'is building the initiative of men toward new fields of social cooperation and endeavor.'

"That's fine, but the people would certainly be happier if they knew what it meant.

"Then, of course, there is his prohibition idea of repealing the 18th amendment without repealing it and giving the states full authority over liquor while forever banishing the saloon by federal law," Mr. Farley concluded. "A good many people have sought a formula for this without much success. If the President has found this formula it is still his own secret."

"Election Document," Press Calls It.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 12.—British opinion is distinctly irritated by President Hoover's attitude on war debts and tariffs as expressed in his acceptance speech.

Officially the speech is minimized as an electioneering document, but in the press it has brought forth sharp, indignant retorts. There is widespread disappointment over the President's stand against cancellation of war debts and for a high tariff.

The News Chronicle asserts: "The whole speech reeks of politics; its economies are thoroughly bad and, regarded as a contribution to world settlement it is not helpful."

"Ignores Causes of Panic."

The London Times, in polter language, is just as critical, accusing the President of "determination to ignore the main causes of the depression, while lamenting its effects."

"It would be discouraging, indeed, if a policy which may be described succinctly as 'protection at home and no cancellation abroad' were to be taken as a final definition of the American attitude toward the political debts and strangling of international trade by prohibitive tariffs, which the rest of the world is agreed are two of the chief causes of monetary collapse and of what Hoover himself calls 'the greatest economic emergency in all history.' Indeed, in that case the projected world economic conference would be condemned in advance to futility.

"But, after all, this is an election address, intended primarily to influence American votes, and there is no need to examine it too closely in any other light."

The only portion of the speech the British approve is its call for strengthening the Kellogg pact and its insistence on what is known here as the "Stimson doctrine."

French Reaction Mixed.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Aug. 12.—Both warm approval and hot disapproval marked the commentaries here on President Hoover's acceptance speech.

In the more moderate press the fact which is signalized as being above all in importance is the President's endorsement and even amplification of Secretary of State Stimson's speech of Monday, in which Stimson said the Kellogg pact implies consultation by the powers in case of a threat of war. That speech yesterday received Premier Herriot's complimentary approbation, and Hoover's confirmation of the United States' assent to the principle of consultation, which only a few years ago, during the London naval conference, was regarded as much too compromising, has caused great satisfaction.

Praise Defense Stand.

President Hoover's declaration that the United States' land and naval forces must be maintained at a sufficient level to prevent any foreign soldier from ever landing on American soil is welcomed as exactly corresponding with France's desires for herself.

The presidential pronouncement on war debts and the general European situation is less agreeable to the French, but it is discounted here as being part of an election speech.

In the Nationalist press, whose doctrine it is that the whole world should be linked with France against her potential enemies, there is criticism that the President's attitude and words are banal and give no security whatever.

Japan Sees Slap at Her.

TOKIO, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Reading into President Hoover's speech of acceptance an indirect reference to the Manchurian trouble, a spokesman for the Japanese foreign office said today that the government cannot see how the President's doctrine of refusal to recognize territorial gains acquired by force can apply to Japan's position in Manchuria. A spokesman said:

"We object to having the anti-war pacts constantly poked under our noses with charges that we are violating them.

"Both the United States and Great Britain signed the Kellogg pact with reservations covering their right to resort to war in self-defense. Therefore, they are hardly in a position to deny our right to resort to arms in the defense of interests vital to the well being of the empire."

Germans Are Satisfied.

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Official circles declined to comment today on President Hoover's speech of acceptance, but they indicated special satisfaction at the President's intimation of a possible revision of war debts.

W. C. T. U. MAKES 18TH AMENDMENT ITS COVENANT

Will Seek to Prove Law Has Been Success.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Faced by the most severe attack upon its dry policies since prohibition became effective over a dozen years ago, the Women's Christian Temperance union tonight began a campaign to convince the United States the eighteenth amendment has been an asset and not a liability.

The fifty-eighth annual convention of the union opened with a keynote speech by Mrs. Ella A. Boole, in which she asserted the organization "cannot accept either the repeal amendment proposed by the Democratic platform or the amendment proposed by Mr. Hoover."

"It may be your convictions on other great questions," she said, "will help you in reaching a decision as to how to vote."

Urges Dry Congressmen.

The Brooklyn leader urged the delegates to vote for dry congressmen and dry candidates for state legislatures. She said the time was too short to attempt to revive the old Prohibition party for the 1932 election.

The executive committee issued a statement officially adopted as the union's reply to the letter of John D. Rockefeller Jr. (to Nicholas Murray Butler) in which he announced his abandonment of the prohibition cause.

The committee alluded to the philanthropist as a "pitiful case of a good man overcome by the headlines." The statement, intended for use in the union's campaign, denied there had been an increase in drinking, or in crime, or in the number of speakeasies over saloons in pre-dry days.

"Spirit of Saloon."

In a statement amplifying her attitude expressed last night toward the President's recommendation that the states deal individually with the liquor question, Mrs. Boole insisted that even if liquor returned without the saloon, the "spirit of the saloon" would still exist because of the presence of intoxicants.

She declared the people have forgotten the tremendous evils of the years before the eighteenth amendment, "when we sold two and a quarter billions (not millions) of booze every year."

The convention, which is being held in the Plymouth Congregational church, will end Thursday. Reports of committees and the treasurer will be given tomorrow.

RETURN VERDICT IN MURDER.

A verdict of "murder by persons unknown" was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Anton Bakaitis, 47 years old, 2900 Poplar street, who was shot to death by five bandits on July 23.

DR. BUTLER PRAISES HOOVER DEMAND FOR CHANGE IN DRY LAW

New York, Aug. 12.—[Special.]—In a message sent today from Southampton, L. I., Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university commended the stand taken on prohibition by President Hoover in his acceptance speech. In his message Dr. Butler said:

"President Hoover's declaration regarding the eighteenth amendment fortunately goes far beyond the paragraphs in the party platform which the administration cohorts supported so vigorously a Chicago.

"With this formal statement by the President and the Democratic platform plank on this subject, the quick end of the disastrous folly of attempting nation-wide prohibition is in sight. Indeed, we should now all unite to urge the submission to the states of a repeal resolution by the present congress when it meets again in December."

REFERENDUM ON DRY LAW WINS IN INDIANA SENATE

Fate of Measure Now Up to House and Leslie.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—Unless the Democratic majority in the Indiana house of representatives and Gov. Harry G. Leslie, a Republican, repudiate their reputations for liberal views regarding prohibition, it is certain that Indiana voters will get a chance to vote at the November election on a referendum as to whether they desire abandonment of Indiana's technical aridity.

The Indiana senate, where lame duck members staved off any prohibition law change in the regular biennial session of the present legislature in 1931, and, where, heretofore, in the present special session, efforts to liberalize the state bone dry law have been delayed or defeated, this afternoon voted 33 to 14 for a referendum.

Referendum a Compromise.

The submission of prohibition to the voters was offered as an amendment to a house bill which gained only a 26-22 senate vote before it was revised. The referendum is a compromise, the original house bill having provided for modification of the Indiana bone dry law to make Indiana prohibition no more strict than national prohibition laws and also to permit prescription of medicinal liquor.

The house, which passed the original bill 58-38, will undoubtedly accept the referendum amendment. The referendum will not be binding or final, but will be regarded probably as a mandate to the 1933 legislature meeting next January, members of which will be elected at the same time the referendum is conducted.

How Senators Voted.

Membership of the present house in Indiana was elected in 1930. Some members of the present senate are holdovers from 1928 when the prohibition modification tide had not yet turned in Indiana.

The senate defeated, 27-17, a resolution memorializing congress to pass a substitute amendment for the eighteenth amendment which would give states the right to regulate prohibition. A twin resolution passed by the house was referred to a senate committee.

Some liberals are disappointed with the referendum bill, having held out for direct and immediate modification of the state bone dry law.

W. S. GIFFORD QUITS AS HEAD OF HOOVER RELIEF COMMITTEE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—The resignation of Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, from the directorship of the President's organization on unemployment relief was announced at the White House today.

Mr. Gifford, who took over the management of the relief organization a year ago, pleaded that other obligations required his full time. In a letter of acceptance President Hoover congratulated Mr. Gifford on "the notable contribution to public service you have made during these difficult times," and added:

"I am greatly indebted for your willingness to be helpful in an advisory and consulting capacity in setting up coordination work for next winter and will depend upon you. Early in the fall we shall be able to see more clearly the problems before us and the measures of coordination which will be required for the winter. I trust the national and state members will hold fast."

No announcement of Mr. Gifford's probable successor has yet been made.

REVEAL TAXES EATING INCOME OF SMALL FLATS

Account for 23 Per Cent of Expenses.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Burdensome taxes are crushing the owners of small flat buildings in Chicago, according to an analysis of the income and expense of 15 flat buildings for last year, which will be printed in today's issue of Real Estate, the weekly publication of the Chicago real estate board. These buildings are two and three stories high and contain two to six apartments each. The data regarding income and expense was supplied by members of the board.

The buildings contain 57 apartments, with a total of 304 rooms. General taxes and special assessments ate up 25.5 per cent of the gross income. If the buildings had had a 100 per cent occupancy the gross income would have been $43,241; but vacancies and rental defaults caused a loss of 17 per cent, making an actual gross of $35,903.

Taxes Largest Expense.

Of the gross income, $34,320 was paid out in expenses before the owners reached the point of paying any interest on mortgages or any part of their loans. Taxes on the buildings totaled $8,164, or 23 per cent of the expenses and constituted the largest single item of outlay.

For interest on loans and annual payments on mortgages, the owners of these 15 buildings received an average of only 43 cents a room per month. Even if taxes had been reduced the 20 per cent which the committee on public expenditures predicts for 1931 assesments, the owners would have averaged only 88 cents a room per month.

Five of the buildings are in the south shore district, two in Rogers Park, and one each in Jackon park, Marquette park, Douglas Park, Irving Park, Ravenswood, uptown, and north town areas. Seven of the 15 buildings had a loss before they reached the point of interest and mortgage principal payments.

Expense Exceeds Income.

One of these is a three flat building of from four to seven rooms to the apartment in the Rogers Park area. Its total income was $1,298, and its outlay was $1,364, a loss of $66 before interest and principal charges. The taxes on this structure amounted to $548—42 per cent of the gross income. With a 20 per cent cut in taxes this building would have had an income of $3.56 a month before interest and mortgage principal charges.

A four apartment building, with flats of five rooms each, in Marquette Park had a gross income of $1,954 last year. Its taxes were $573.06—29 per cent of its income. Altogether, the disbursements were $214.30 larger than the gross income. If this building had a 20 per cent cut in taxes, it still would have been $99.69 in the red before interest and mortgage charges.

Tax Figures on Buildings.

Evidence that the 15 apartment buildings were not selected because of their high taxes, is shown by the fact that three are south shore apartment building, two having three apartments each and the third six apartments, and the taxes on each are only $51.23. Another south shore building with three flats of only five rooms each, however, paid $404 in taxes.

One of the three flat south shore buildings finished with $599 before interest and principal and charges had been met, and another with $694. The six flat building, however, finished with a deficit of $318.95 before charges for interest and mortgage, despite its $51.23 tax bill.

Another six flat building in the south shore district, four and a half years old, and having 4 and 5 rooms per flat, had a gross income of $2,849. Its taxes were $586, or approximately 20 per cent of the gross income. That building finished with a deficit of $118 before charges for interest and principal. If this structure had had a 20 per cent cut in taxes it would have had $3.64 on the right side of the ledger, before interest and principal.

Building Has $287 Loss.

A three flat building in the Douglas park district had an income of $1,281, but its expenditures were $1,568, a loss of $287.

A two flat building in Rogers Park had an income of $1,574. Its tax bill was $612—nearly 40 per cent of the income. It finished the year with a deficit of $162.47. If this structure had been allowed a 20 per cent reduction in taxes, it still would have ended with a deficit of $40.

In Garfield park a 7 year old six flat building with apartments of five rooms each paid $808 in taxes. Its income was $3,240 and its outgo was $213 in excess of its revenue. Even with a 20 per cent tax cut, this property would still have ended the year with a $50 deficit.

The total income of the 15 buildings was only $1,583 after other expenses had been paid, before deducting any charges for interest and mortgage debts. The analysis shows that 95.6 per cent of the gross income was consumed in expenses. The insurance on the buildings cost only 2.7 per cent of the gross income.

WILL AND LAKE COUNTY OFFICERS PREDICT TAX CUTS

D. H. Landis, chairman of the board of review of Will county, announced yesterday that a 10 per cent reduction in real estate taxes is being contemplated to apply within the next few months.

"The people cannot meet the present taxes," he said, "and a reduction is imperative. Tax spending bodies must reduce their expenditures."

At the same time Lake county officials announced themselves as "hopeful" that a 10 per cent reduction in real estate taxes could be made in the near future. Complaints being heard by the Lake county board of review have increased 50 per cent over last year. The board has been bombarded by demands from taxpayers associations for reductions in taxes. The Central Lake county taxpayers association, and associations in Benton, Deerfield and Newport townships have passed resolutions asking a 40 per cent reduction. The Waukegan taxpayers association have gone on record for "a heavy reduction."

N. Y. DRIVE TO CUT 100 MILLION OFF BUDGET GROWING

Plan Definite Program of Economy.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 12.—[Special.]—Every time a municipal wheel turns in this town somebody pays for it and usually pays double. The wheels are turning every second, for this is a 24 hour city and right now the taxpayers are contributing approximately seven hundred million dollars a year to watch them spin.

There is a feeling in points north of the city hall that the municipal machinery could be made to spin just as efficiently if not quite as merrily for about six hundred million dollars a year. In fact, spokesmen for the taxpayers said today that the suggested hundred million dollars reduction in next year's budget would have to be made if the city expects taxpayers to provide the money. The six hundred million dollars represents the limit of the property owners' ability to pay and keep going.

Have Economy Program.

The city budget commission, the Citizens' union, and other civic and business organizations formed to force the municipal authorities to curb their extravagance, will have ready for publication the first week in September a complete program of municipal economies for recommendation to Mayor James J. Walker and his alds. Until that document is completed most of the economy statements will deal in generalities rather than specific savings, the idea being to decide on a program first and then hammer it into the budget.

Savings Suggested.

Among the economy plans which are likely to be incorporated in the taxpayers' program are:

The passage of new laws by the legislature repealing statutory salary mandates which would effect a saving of more than $40,000,000 next year on city salaries alone.

The consolidation of overlapping bureaus and departments and the elimination of overhead wherever possible in the consolidated branches of the city government to effect a saving of approximately $10,000,000.

The reduction of budget requirements for virtually every city department to the bone, but with due regard to their needs for an allotment sufficiently large to permit them to continue to give satisfactory public service. It is believed possible to cut another $10,000,000 from last year's drain on the taxpayers and still not undermine any of the vital departments.

Seven Cent Fare Looms.

The revamping of the present short term subway financing, with a possible adoption of a 7 cent fare instead of the present 5 cent fare. It is believed that this would effect a saving of approximately $30,000,000.

The remaining $10,000,000 would be clipped from the new budget by trimming corners and eliminating such extravagances as limousine service for city officials at all hours, one and two months' vacations on full pay, overstaffed offices, favoritism in letting city contracts such as the paying of $8.59 for seat and desk units for public schools when other cities buy like units for $5.41.

Voluntary Cuts Rejected.

The idea of legislative action to permit the readjustment of all city salaries came as a result of the row brought on by Mayor Walker's plea for "voluntary salary cuts," the city employés to turn back a part of their pay of their own accord. The plan was too idealistic for this world.

Under existing legislation, according to the Citizens' union, the city has no control over about $200,000,000 of the $700,000,000 written into the budget. Almost half the budget total—$312,000,000—goes for salaries and more than $8,000,000 of this amount has been included since 1927.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, at a recent state economy meeting with the heads of taxpayers' organizations, expressed himself as favoring legislation to permit the cutting of salaries controlled by statutory mandates.

Find Stowaway

ABOARD S. S. MANHATTAN AT SEA, Aug. 12.—After a day of rain and fog, the weather cleared today and the new liner Manhattan, largest ship ever built in the United States, continued to average more than 21 knots with only five boilers in use. Three stowaways have been found. They are Arnold Ronner, 19, of Hartford, and Steve Bohnensteuger, 22, of Manheim, Germany, in the tourist hold, and Charles Lake, 21, of Clinton, Ia., farmer boy, in the first class hold. They were put to work as deck hands.

ROOSEVELT, GARNER CONFER TOMORROW ON CAMPAIGN PLANS

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—Snatching a week-end interlude from the hearing on Mayor Walker, Gov. Roosevelt will turn attention to the national campaign. On Sunday he will confer with his running mate, Speaker John N. Garner, at his home in Hyde Park.

They will sit down together for the first time since they were nominated at Chicago and will compare notes on plans for the campaign.

The speaker is expected at Hyde Park early in the afternoon, and he and Gov. Roosevelt will probably spend some hours going over the programs prepared for the political battle. Mr. Garner is expected to make an active speaking tour of the country. The governor also will make speeches in pivotal states.

16,000 AT CIRCUS SEE STAR AERIAL PERFORMER FALL

An audience of 16,000 at the Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey circus last night gasped as Alfredo Codona, aerial star, husband of the late Lillian Leitzel, performed his most famous stunt, an intentional miss and fall after a triple somersault in the air. The trick is performed only once a year because it is so dangerous.

Miss Lietzel, who was also a famous performer, would never permit her husband to perform the stunt while she was alive, it is said. Codona last night flung himself into the air, high up near the top of the tent, turned rapidly three times and then intentionally missed the hands of his brother, Lala Cadona, catcher of the act, and fell into the net. From the net, Alfredo bounced to the ground, which knocked the wind from him and bruised him.

COMMISSIONS FOR GEO. E. Q. JOHNSON AND GREEN ARRIVE

Commissions from Washington elevating United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson to the federal bench and his assistant, Dwight H. Green, to the position of district attorney were received yesterday at the Federal building. Plans were made yesterday for Attorney Johnson to drive to Chicago Monday morning from his summer home at New Troy, Mich., where he has been recovering from a major operation. He will resign formally at that time. In the afternoon both he and Green will take oath and be inducted into their new offices.

SUPERHIGHWAY PLAN TAKEN UP BY COUNTY BOARD

16 Million Project Would Serve 60,000 Motorists

The county board yesterday received with favorable comment a resolution advocating the construction of an elevated superhighway from the loop to the western limits of the city, to be constructed alongside the elevated tracks of the North Western railroad.

PETER M. KELLY.

The resolution, introduced by Commissioner Peter M. Kelly and seconded by Commissioner Dan Ryan, proposed a method of financing which would make it unnecessary for the county to add to its bonded debt or to put additional burdens upon Cook county taxpayers. The plan was referred to the roads and bridge committees of the board for detailed consideration.

Commissioner Kelly proposed an elevated highway from Canal street to Austin boulevard, a distance of 6.8 miles, with ramps leading down to the principal intersecting streets. An 80 foot pavement would provide four express lanes, two local lanes and two lanes for trucks and buses.

Cost of $16,000,000.

The cost was estimated at $16,000,000, the number of cars served in a 24 hour period at between 60,000 and 88,000, the average saving in time to a motorist using the highway at 13 minutes for the seven mile trip, and the value of the time saved to motorists, taking the lower estimate of 60,000 cars a day, at $5,704,000 a year.

The resolution proposes that half of the cost of the improvement, $8,000,000, be borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance corporation under the provisions of the enabling act empowering it to make loans for self-liquidating public improvements to states and cities. To amortize this loan, it is proposed that a 10 cent toll be levied on cars using the highway. At a minimum figure of 35,000 automobiles a day, this would bring in a revenue of $1,300,000 annually, paying off the federal loan in slightly more than six years. Thereafter the toll charge would be abolished.

The remaining half of the construction cost, it is proposed, would be met out of state gasoline tax receipts, which the legislature would be asked to appropriate at its session next year. The resolution asks Gov. Emmerson to make application for the R. F. C. loan immediately.

Employment for 5,000.

The federal government has assessed new gasoline and other taxes on motorists to bring in an annual revenue of $260,000,000 a year, the resolution points out. At the ratio of $10 per car per year, it is estimated that Chicago motorists will pay between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 annually of these taxes.

The proposed superhighway will provide employment directly for 5,000 men for two and a half years, and will give part time employment to 5,000 more, the resolution states.

The county board yesterday approved contracts on twenty road and bridge projects throughout Cook county, at a total cost of $1,160,524, to be paid out of the county's share of the state gasoline tax. The contracts are for the construction of twenty-six miles of paving and a number of bridges.

Adopted Son of Menjou Sued Over Auto Crash

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—Harold Menjou, son of Adolphe Menjou's ex-wife and adopted son of the actor, who is awaiting trial on charges or reckless driving while intoxicated and manslaughter in connection with the auto death of his fiancée, today was sued for $10,000 damages. Vernon Wiles, a boy chum, charges that Menjou turned over a car while driving recklessly last April and Wiles received broken ribs and other severe injuries.

BYRD'S S. POLAR CREW YEARNING FOR OPEN SEAS

Five members of Admiral Richard E. Byrd's south polar expedition are spending their time guiding tourists about the City of New York, the exploration ship, anchored off the World's Fair grounds at Twenty-third street. All five have been promised places on Byrd's next trip.

"This life is too dull," asserted Lieut. Harry Adams, U. S. N., retired, chief officer and navigator on the polar dash. "We want to get back on the open sea, starting for somewhere with Byrd."

The City of New York has been discarded by Byrd and will remain as a lake front polar museum for the exposition next year. Byrd has purchased another ship, The Bear, for his next trip.

Members of the expedition acting as guides are: Jack Bursey, dog driver and now first mate; John Buys, able-bodied seaman, acting second mate; Lloyd Grnil, radio engineer, and Arthur Berlin, fireman.

Exposition officials announced that contracts for construction of a children's "wonderland" have been signed and work will start early next month. The project will be called "The Enchanted Island" and will be on five acres of ground on Northerly island.

ASK BATHHOUSES ON SO. WING OF OAK ST. BEACH

In a letter addressed to W. H. Beckman, attorney for the Lincoln park board, Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton yesterday asked if the strip of parkway running east and west, north of Streeterville, is included in the area in which the riparian rights of property owners prohibit the erection of buildings on Oak street beach. Mr. Sexton and persons living in the 42d and 43d wards want the park commissioners to erect bathhouses on the beach.

According to the opinion of Attorney Beckman, when the proposal was first made, no buildings of any kind can be constructed on the beach between Oak street and North avenue. Mr. Sexton raises the question of whether these rights extend to properties on Lake shore drive running east and west, an extension of Oak street. If not, the conveniences may be installed there.

Attorney Beckman is now at Camp Grant, but is expected to offer an opinion next week on the strip adjoining the east-west section of the drive.

SPEED ORDERED ON ROOSEVELT RD. GRADE DIVISION

Highway Engineer Pushes Glen Ellyn Project.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—Responding to complaints of delays and poor progress, State Highway Engineer Sheets this afternoon ordered S. J. Groves & Sons of Libertyville, contractors, to speed construction of a grade separation in Glen Ellyn at the intersection of Roosevelt road and Ill. 53, a new north and south highway.

Mr. Sheets wrote the contractor, pointing out the importance to traffic of a rapid completion of the project and urging that work should proceed "with all possible dispatch." While the builder is not required by his contract to finish the job before Oct. 1, the request from the highway department is tantamount to a mandate, since the state holds a club over the heads of contractors through the department's discretionary power in awarding contracts and regulating construction.

Compliment Contractors.

The state engineer waved his club this afternoon notwithstanding a report on the Glen Ellyn situation from his superintendent of construction, C. M. Hathaway, that was complimentary to S. J. Groves & Sons, crediting the Libertyville firm with making costly changes in normal working schedules to minimize the inconvenience to Roosevelt road traffic. The report added that the recent two weeks shutdown enabled the contractor to avert a strike by his union labor.

Mr. Sheets was spurred by the growing impatience of motorists who saw construction in Glen Ellyn start last September, who saw the equipment lying idle for months at a time, and who today see that the simple two level crossing is still only about 50 per cent complete.

Sentiment in Du Page county, as reflected by a resolution recently passed by the board of supervisors, censors the highway department and the contractors on this and other state projects in the vicinity for lack of diligence.

Predict Completion on Time.

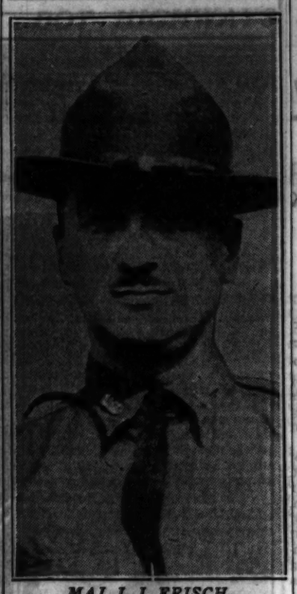
Eric Bolander, general superintendent of S. J. Groves & Sons, in an interview with THE TRIBUNE Monday night, said that traffic will be moving over the Glen Ellyn structure before the completion date of Oct. 1, notwithstanding delays due to changes in public construction laws, difficulties in acquiring right of way, and labor trouble. This week he started working a double shift of men on the job.

During construction the heavy traffic of Roosevelt road is using a narrow, slow, and dangerous runaround on a pavement that will serve as ramps for the grade separation when it is completed. Automobiles using the forty foot arterial highway are forced on to a twenty foot slab with six ninety degree turns in half of a mile. There is no traffic on Ill. 53, since it is incompleted. There probably never will be much traffic on the new highway, since, according to the Chicago Motor club, it was promoted to benefit real estate subdivision interests rather than the interests of the motoring public that will pay for the concrete with gasoline taxes and state license fees.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Mrs. Walter Plummer Jr., 625 Franklin avenue, River Forest, objects to the statement in yesterday's TRIBUNE that her automobile struck another causing the death of Jean Rued, 5 years old, 4045 North Leamington avenue. Deputy Coroner Matthew Tychsen said that testimony at the inquest failed to disclose which car struck the other. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

Gets Medal Today



MAJ. I. J. FRISCH.

The medical detachment of the 108th engineers, Illinois National Guard, will be presented with the Robert U. Patterson cup at the review of troops today at Camp Grant. Maj. Gen. Patterson, donor of the cup, is surgeon general of the United States army, and the cup is given annually to the winner of the first aid contest in which both regular army and National Guard troops participate. The engineers' medical unit, commanded by Maj. I. J. Frisch of Chicago, is the first National Guard unit to win the trophy. The award will be made by Col. Gilbert Fitzpatrick of the army reserve medical corps.

MAYOR ORDERS NAME PLACED ON TAX WARRANTS

Authorization to place his signature on school board tax anticipation warrants to the extent of $6,750,000 was mailed yesterday by Mayor Cermak from Prague, Czechoslovakia, according to dispatches. The warrants have been held in trust to secure participation certificates, or scrip, and will be used to redeem this paper, which was issued in lieu of salaries last year.

Fifteen hundred persons, a majority of them school teachers, received 1931 tax anticipation warrants yesterday for salaries for April, May, and June of 1931. Tax warrants with a face value of approximately $1,500,000 have been handed teachers and employés of the playgrounds and building funds during the last week at the old City State bank building at Randolph and Wells streets.

According to quotations at the brokerage house of Clark, Childs & Keech, the 1931 tax warrants yesterday were bid at 75 and offered at 78. The scrip was bid at 70 and offered at 75.

CANDIDATE HAAS DEFENDS NAME CHANGE IN COURT

Joseph F. Haas, who was Joseph F. Mall until August, 1930, defended his change of name before Superior Judge William J. Lindsay yesterday. Haas was nominated for Municipal court judge on the Republican ticket in last April's primary. He received the smallest number of votes of any of the nominees. Attorney Edgar B. Elder, who was just below Haas in the primary, charged that Haas had changed his name only for political purposes.

Haas testified he changed his name because his wife had been held to the grand jury for manslaughter following an automobile accident in which a woman had been killed.

Judge Lindsay said he would render a decision early next week.

STATES URGED TO SPEED LAWS FOR U. S. HOUSING AID

Federal Funds Ready for Slum Rebuilding.

Governors of all the states and the mayors of large cities were advised yesterday by E. M. Craig, president of the American Construction council, to speed up housing legislation in order that they may request loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for the rebuilding or modernizing of tenement and slum districts.

E. M. CRAIG.

As the law governing loans of this type now stands, Mr. Craig said, New York is the only state with proper enabling legislation in effect. The outlines of a $45,000,000 slum clearance plan in New York City already is being considered by the corporation.

Housing Made Public Utility.

"It is interesting to note," said Mr. Craig, "that the Wagner relief bill [a portion of the legislation governing the acts of the reconstruction corporation] writes into federal law for the first time a recognition of housing as a public utility. Senator Robert F. Wagner, the author of the bill, represents New York. New York is the only state fully organized to regulate housing.

"New Jersey is partially organized. In Illinois and all other states, legislative action is necessary before the machinery of state housing regulation can be set up. Illinois can take action on this either in the contemplated special session to be held in the fall or in the next regular session scheduled in January, 1933."

Urges Civic Groups to Act.

As a part of the construction council's program to speed building activities of this type, letters were also addressed to several hundred local civic, business and welfare groups in various cities urging their active participation in the movement to effect such legislation.

"It should not be difficult," Mr. Craig wrote the goverorns, "for officials and legislators of the various states to determine speedily a desirable course of action for their states, in view of the fact that the whole problem of slum clearance has been consistently kept before them and the public generally for nearly three years through the efforts of the American construction council which, upon detailed survey of the entire economic situation immediately after the crash of 1929, became convinced that there was a huge market for low priced housing through the clearance of slums and blighted tenement districts in various parts of the country.

Promises Jobs for Thousands.

"Rebuilding programs of this character, it was then shown from careful investment analysis, would not only bring back large scale business with employment of hundreds of thousands of workers in construction and allied industries but would also be a great social benefit.

"Early in 1930, under the auspices of the American construction council, a national convention devoted solely to the subject of slum clearance and attended by representatives of important cities and industries from all over the country was held in New York which formulated plans for setting a program of activities in motion and the council has been pressing the issue relentlessly since that time."

STATE ATTACKS BAIN'S SON IN BANK LOAN QUIZ

Repeats Charges of Blank Signed Notes.

Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber reiterated his charge yesterday that directors of Bain banks signed and approved in blank the applications for loans of John Bain and other officials of the defunct bank chain, giving Bain carte blanche as to the amount of the loans.

His charge was the opening gun of his cross-examination of John H. Bain, son of the banker. The father and son, another son, Robert A. Bain, and W. Merle Fisher, son-in-law of the elder Bain, are on trial without a jury before Judge John M. O'Connor on charges of conspiracy growing out of the bank chain's collapse on June 9, 1931.

Unable to Explain Action.

John H. Bain was asked to explain why two applications for loans to officers of the bank, dated three months apart, bore the directors' signatures in identical order. Young Bain said he couldn't explain it, and the examination continued thus:

Q.—Isn't it because they were both signed at the same time? A.—It is not.

Q.—What did the directors do, always drop into the bank in the same order? A.—O, they were very active. They came around often.

Then Prosecutor Raber questioned Bain about a report by the state auditor on June 2, 1931, on the condition of the Chicago Lawn State bank, of which the witness was cashier until shortly before the crash.

Q.—I notice a $45,000 loan to your father deemed doubtful. A.—Nobody ever told me it was doubtful. We didn't discuss my father's loans.

On "Doubtful" Loan.

Young Bain was also questioned about a $14,000 loan to himself, deemed doubtful in the report; a loan to John Bain, Inc., of $74,300, and a loan to Edward C. Barry, a Bain bank official, which was marked "slow." He replied that he never saw the report at the bank, seeing it first in the state auditor's office.

Asked about the sale to the Chicago Lawn bank, in 1926, of a new building of which the elder Bain was one of the owners, the son asserted that the directors of the bank thought the $400,000 which they paid was a reasonable price. His father spoke at the directors' meeting at which the purchase was authorized concerning the possibilities of enhanced value of the corner at Keeler avenue and 63d street, where the building was situated, he testified.

"The following July," said Prosecutor Raber, "the Chicago Real Estate board appraised that property at $56,000. Did you think then you'd made a mistake, as a director of the bank, in paying as much as you did for the property?"

"No," answered Bain.

Reveals Meacham Rôle.

The witness testified that many of his actions at the bank were taken at the direction of Charles Meacham, an employé in John Bain's downtown office. That brought on this conversation:

Q.—What did Meacham have to do with that bank? A.—He was running all the banks.

Q.—[In a high and surprised voice] —Meacham? A.—Well, Meacham and my father. They were as close as two peas in a pod.

"Pep Talks" His Job.

John H. Bain was the only witness of the day. His direct examination by Francis X. Busch, defense counsel, occupied the morning session of the trial. Among the younger Bain's duties were the presentation of pep talks before all of the security salesmen employed by the Bain banks and their affiliated companies.

"Did you ever tell your salesmen to put out the bum stuff and get in good mortgages?" asked Attorney Busch. "Never at any time," replied Bain.

It was the prosecution contention that at one pep meeting John H. Bain made a statement to the effect that any salesman could sell good bonds but that if the crew before him could not dispose of Bain securities the Bains would get salesmen who could.

Young Bain told Attorney Busch that bank examiners visited the Chicago Lawn bank on June 2, 1931.

"I talked to the examiner who was out there and asked him his opinion of the condition of the bank," he said. "And he told me, 'It's as good as any other outlying bank in town.'"

New York, Aug. 12.—[Special.]—Elvy Kalep, 27 year old Esthonian girl who for three months has been paraded about the eastern seaboard as the co-pilot of Roger Q. Williams on a projected flight to Athens, withdrew from the flight today upon orders of her husband of a month.

The husband, W. E. Hutton Miller, a grandson of W. E. Hutton, a broker, telegraphed from San Francisco that he would not have his bride risking her life upon such a dangerous venture.

Mr. Hutton Miller's decision was announced with some regret by press representatives of the flight, whose disappointment at the loss of a potential Ruth Elder was mitigated only by recollections of the hundreds of photographs of Miss Kalep in flying costume which already have advertised the project.

Shortly after the marriage Mr. Hutton Miller went to San Francisco to take charge of a branch office of W. E. Hutton & Co. The aviatrix said today that she was leaving immediately to join him there.

2 WOMEN TRYING FOR ENDURANCE WORLD RECORD

New York, Aug. 12.—[Special.]—Two ambitious women flyers, Mrs. Louise M. Thaden of Baltimore and Mrs. Frances Herrell Marsalis of Centerville, Mo., took to the air at Curtiss field, L. I., at 4:17 o'clock this afternoon in an attempt to set a new world's endurance flight record for women. They said they hoped to remain aloft for five days or more.

The plane, a Curtiss Trush, powered by a 240 horsepower engine, is to be refueled in flight, twice daily. It carried enough gasoline today to last twenty-four hours.

In the fuselage of the machine, the women took an air mattress for sleeping and said they would take turns at the controls both night and day.

3 Men Hold Up Currency Exchange; Get $1,760

Three bandits yesterday held up three employés in the Logan Square Currency exchange, 2955 Milwaukee avenue, and escaped with $1,760. The exchange is operated for the convenience of merchants in the district whose banks have been closed. Bills are changed for a fee, and checks are cashed for persons known to the officials of the exchange.

RELIEF BOARD TOURS GARDENS OF UNEMPLOYED

Many Crops Already Harvested.

A study of the progress of the 1,500 garden plots for the unemployed sponsored by the joint emergency relief fund was made yesterday by members of the Illinois emergency relief commission on a tour of the Maywood garden tracts conducted by Warner G. Baird, chairman of the Cook county garden project.

The survey was made with a view to improving such garden relief work as may be conducted next year, according to Mr. Baird, who described the program carried out this summer.

The plots were prepared and completely seeded before allotment, at a cost to the relief fund of 75 cents each. Despite a late start, the harvest has consisted of radishes, lettuce, swiss chard, carrots, beets, onions, kohlrabi, spinach and sweet corn, with squash, beans, parsnips, tomatoes and cabbage still to mature. One of the commissioners, Victor Olander, questioned many of the gardeners on the amount of work done and the results of the harvest.

Guard Plots from Thieves

Because of pilfering recently, tents have been set up on two tracts of ground used in the project, lying along First avenue south of Roosevelt road, in Maywood. Entire families are enabled to have an outing, do their cooking, tend their gardens and keep watch over the acreage after the others have been taken back to their homes in the city.

Joseph Leak, a Negro, has outfitted himself in an army uniform from war service days, sleeps in an army "pup" tent and tends his four plots as they need attention. One of the families living in the tents is that of Christ Frogner, whose son, Clifford, has earned the title of the best gardener of all those working on this project.

Finish Plowing of Land.

The plowing of a plot of ground at Jackson street and Laramie avenue to be used for gardens for the unemployed next year is to be completed today. The gardening will be under the direction of the Good Will Industries. Other plots of ground on which gardening has been supervised by the same institution this year have given employment to 185 men in the production of food for their own and other needy families.

PRUSSIA FORBIDS 'BEAUTY QUEENS' IN SCANTY ATTIRE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—Elections of "beauty queens" displaying themselves in scanty attire before juries were ruled immoral and harmful to the honor of Germany today by Franz Bracht, Prussian minister of the interior, in a decree "against moral degeneration and for safeguarding true Christian culture." It instructs police to take drastic measures to insure morality.

Bracht deplores the "shameless disparagement of German women" in semi-nude shows. He ordered police to prohibit these exhibitions.

Morality on the bathing beaches also must become more strict since, according to Bracht, descriptions of "bathing beach scenes witnessed on the shores of German rivers and lakes is harmful to the German reputation in foreign countries."

Mexico Honors Boy Flyer After Record Hop from U.S.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Robert Buck, 18 year old American flyer who landed here yesterday after setting a new junior speed record for a flight from Newark, N. J., was a luncheon guest today of Gen. Juan P. Azcarate, chief of civil aviation. It was a dry luncheon, as Buck explained he neither drank nor smoked. The youthful flyer accepted an invitation to return to Mexico for the celebration of independence day in September. He will leave Mexico City about 7 a. m. tomorrow for Brownsville and San Antonio.

BRITISH EMPIRE READY TO HELP PUSH UP PRICES

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 12.—The first official document to emanate from the British imperial economic conference was issued to a waiting world tonight. The document is the report of the committee on monetary and financial questions. Its chairman is H. H. Stevens, Canadian minister of trade and commerce, and its membership includes all the financial heavyweights of the conference.

Two Positive Statements.

Among them are Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada; Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer; Stanley Bruce of Australia; W. Downie Stewart, New Zealand's minister of finance; H. C. Havenga, South Africa's financial genius; Sean T. O'Kelly, vice president of the Irish Free State, and Sir Henry Strakosch and Sir George Schuster, British bankers, attached to the Indian delegation.

These gentlemen have been deliberating for three weeks and they have produced a report which contains two positive statements. One is that a rise in commodity prices throughout the world is desirable. The other is that stability of exchange is also desirable.

How they are to be attained the committee does not say, although it points to the success of Britain's experiment with low interest rates and plentiful short term money as an example which it might pay to follow. Further, it admits that nothing much can be done by the British empire and that economic remedies will have to be left to the international economic conference.

What Chamberlain Said.

Regarding monetary problems, the committee recognizes that the United Kingdom, as the largest and strongest unit not only in the commonwealth but in the world, must be the main factor in anything that may be done and it therefore quotes the following statement by Chancellor Chamberlain:

"His majesty's government desires to see wholesale sterling prices rise. The best condition for this would be a rise in gold prices. The absence of a rise in gold prices inevitably imposes limitations on what can be done for sterling. A rise in prices cannot be effected by monetary action alone, since various other factors which combined to bring about the present depression must be modified or removed before a remedy is assured.

"His majesty's government, nevertheless, recognizes that an ample supply of short term money at low rates may have a valuable influence, and they are confident that the efforts which have successfully brought about the present favorable monetary conditions can and will be continued unless unforeseen difficulties arise."

Urges Others to Follow Suit.

The committee advised the other countries of the commonwealth to follow Britain's example in this respect by reducing the central bank discount rate and by providing cheap and plentiful short term money for industry.

It points out, however, that it is undesirable that these conditions should be achieved by the inflationary creation of additional means of payment to finance public expenditures. In other words, the committee thought it would be a bad policy to set the printing presses to work making money to pay government employés' salaries.

On the question of stabilized exchange rates the committee emphasized the necessity of a world-wide stable monetary unit, but, in the absence of this, it suggested the possibility of creating an era of stability among the nations in the sterling group and of trying to avoid wide day to day fluctuations between sterling and gold.

Canada and Britain are still working out their future trade relations, but reports are now that things are going well. The Canadians have abandoned their first figures of what they can do for British trade and are working out a real offer while the British are still struggling with their own dilemma about tariffs on food.

YOUNG DAUGHTER OF U. S. ENVOY KIDNAPED; FOUND

WARSAW, Poland, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Patricia McMillin, five-year-old daughter of United States Consul Stewart E. McMillin, was kidnaped from a public park here today and several hours later was found in a shop in a distant part of Warsaw. She tearfully told her parents she had been taken from the park by a man she did not know.

Patricia and her four-year-old brother spent the afternoon in a public park in charge of their nurse. The nurse said the girl disappeared behind some bushes and did not come back.

Mr. McMillin expressed suspicion that his daughter had been kidnaped in revenge for the fact that a nursemaid had been discharged from the household. Mr. McMillin has been consul here since 1930. He was born in Arkansas City, Kan. He entered the consular service in 1917.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE
THE TRIBUNE'S OWN
STAFF OF AMERICANS!

Years ago much of the foreign news printed in American newspapers came from the pens of foreign newspaper men who supplemented their incomes by working on the side for American newspapers.

The defects in this system were not so apparent in earlier years, when America's place in world politics was more or less isolated. As long as other nations had no particular reason to shape public opinion in America the foreign thinking correspondent wrote up the news as news, with no propaganda one way or the other. There was no need for any.

With America's rise in importance in world politics, the picture changed. Meanwhile, the Chicago Tribune had been building up a staff of American-born, American-thinking correspondents throughout the globe.

That's why today the foreign news you read in the Tribune is different from the foreign news printed by some other American newspapers. For the old system has not been abandoned by all American newspapers.

For instance, in Vienna William Shirer is the Chicago Tribune's American-born correspondent. In the same city the correspondent of one of New York's biggest newspapers is an Austrian official. Another large New York newspaper is represented by two Englishmen—one of whom never has set foot on American soil!

When you read the Chicago Tribune you not only get the complete foreign news first, but you also get it from the American viewpoint, free of foreign propaganda and bias.

INDIANA MINERS URGE SHORT DAY TO AID JOBLESS

Open Wage Conference at Terre Haute.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sullivan, Ind., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—A shorter working day in the mines with a view of spreading employment among more men is being stressed among Indiana union miners, both leaders and the conservative rank and file. It is to be advanced in the conferences which opened at Terre Haute today for the negotiation of a new wage scale between the United Mine Workers and the Indiana Coal Operators' association.

With 10,000 to 15,000 Indiana miners in a state of chronic joblessness for the last five or six years, and more than two miners for every available job in last year's operation, the union men are urging that work be staggered through shorter shifts and more workers.

Likely to Renew June Offer.

It appeared today that the operators will renew their June proffer of a $4 basic wage scale to supplant the $6.10 scale which expired March 31, while the union may present a proposed contract somewhat different from the one just signed in Illinois. Just what sort of a compromise may be struck none of the conferees were willing to forecast today in the initial meeting. From the operators' end, the shorter work day question is involved with the problem of whether it will be economical in application.

Indiana's crippled coal mining industry in the last decade has suffered in two directions. In 1923 the shaft mines employed 35,000; in 1927, 24,000, and in 1931 only 9,839. About one-third of the men employed last year were former union men working in nonunion scale mines or in "coöperative" mines, as the pits are termed which are run on a profit sharing basis, if there are any profits to be split.

Recapture of the old markets of Indiana which have been annexed by the low wage nonunion fields of Kentucky and West Virginia is the problem in which the entire Wabash valley is expressing concern. The coal area used to be a great part of Indiana's industrial and business life—now the towns are stagnant as they have been for years wherever they are dependent upon the coal industry.

Indiana Loses Coal Market.

The remarkable shift in the sources of America's energy supply has been a second factor in the slump. Indiana has not only lost its former markets, but less coal is required because more work is being got out of every ton mined. The great strike of 1922 gave great impetus to the use of coal substitutes.

In 1913 bituminous coal was furnishing 70 per cent of the energy derived from mineral fuels and water power. In 1927 its share had dropped to 55 per cent. Meanwhile oil and gas grew from 12 per cent in 1913 to 25 per cent in 1923 and to 36 per cent in 1930. Water power as a source of energy went up from 3 per cent in 1913 to 6 per cent in 1927.

The total consumption of all energy, including animals and firewood in 1927, the year before the slump, was computed as equivalent to one billion tons of coal. Of the total energy used, bituminous coal furnished 50.3 per cent, anthracite 8.1 per cent, oil 21.4 per cent, natural gas 5.8 per cent, wind mills 0.1 per cent, animals 2.5 per cent, water power 6.3 per cent, firewood 5.5 per cent.

Oil, Gas Consumption Increases.

More than one-fourth of the total energy supply is now furnished by oil and natural gas. As to coal more efficient combustion is making a ton do more work, and this has also decreased the market demands. Typical is the consumption of locomotive fuel, which normally absorbs about 24 per cent of the bituminous supply.

In 1927, before the slump, the railroads did 9 per cent more work than in 1917. But they required 13 per cent less bituminous coal.

Similarly, in the iron and steel industry, with by-product coking and other fuel economy, the ratio of tonnage of coal to tonnage of product was 1.4 in 1927, where in 1904 it was 2.01. Compared with 1916, the year 1926 showed an increase of 2,700,000 tons in volume of steel and iron product, but a decrease of 15 million tons in soft coal consumption. That is a twenty years story in one basic industry.

Some Striking Changes.

Even more striking changes are shown in the consumption of coal by the electric utilities. In 25 years the production of electrical power by central stations and electric railways increased nineteen fold. Part of the growth is due to hydro-power. But the development of fuel power in this period grew thirteenfold. Yet in 1902 the utilities used 11 million tons of soft coal, and in 1928, before the depression, they used 41 million tons.

Against the thirteen fold increase in power production was only a four-fold increase in coal used. This remarkable result was made possible by improvements in fuel efficiency. A ton of coal in 1927 was producing as much work in generating stations as three and a half tons did in 1902.

No Increase Since 1926.

Also the trend of coal consumption in general manufacturing has been a great factor. More and more power is being bought from the electrical companies. From 1909 to 1926 the physical volume of manufactured goods increased 74 per cent, but the consumption of coal in manufacturing increased only 29 per cent. Since 1919 the total coal consumption in manufacturing showed almost no increase up to 1926, but in the same period the volume of manufactured products had risen 30 per cent.

All these trends in improved mechanization and fuel utilization in American industry are used by many of the union leaders as arguments for a readjustment of the working day in the mines on the idea of shorter hours and more men.

CONTEMPT OF COURT FACING WANAMAKER FOR GETTING DIVORCE

Norristown, Pa., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Capt. John Wanamaker Jr., grandson of the late John Wanamaker, was cited today to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for obtaining a Reno divorce in defiance of an injunction.

The order was handed down in Montgomery county court by Judge J. Ambler Williams, who issued a rule July 9 forbidding Wanamaker to obtain a divorce outside of Pennsylvania.

With the injunction still in effect, Wanamaker obtained a divorce at Reno from his first wife, the former Pauline Disston, several days ago. He immediately married Mrs. Elizabeth Peltz Warburton, divorced wife of his cousin, C. Egerton Warburton of Philadelphia and New York.

Today's rule was issued on a petition by counsel for Wanamaker's divorced wife, who contended he should be held in contempt.

Sept. 16, the day a hearing was to have been held on the injunction issued July 9, was set for hearing of the contempt case.

COURT RESTRAINS MAN WIFE BEAT FOR CORNET SOLO

Circuit Judge William J. Fulton granted an injunction yesterday at Wheaton restraining Byron Putman electrical engineer, from molesting Mrs. Adelaide Putman or from disposing of any of their property pending trial of their divorce action.

Mrs. Putman indicated she will soon file a cross-bill to her husband's bill for divorce, which charges her with cruelty. Judge Fulton granted her temporary alimony of $10 a week.

A month ago Putman had his wife arrested on a charge of assault and battery. He charged she set upon him while he was rendering a cornet solo in their Wheaton home—they live in the same house but occupy separate rooms—and beat him over the head with the heel of her slipper. Mrs. Putman was acquitted by a jury in her second trial before Justice of the Peace Bertram Rathje at Wheaton. The first trial ended in a deadlocked jury.

Bandits Give Victim 5 Cents to Phone Police

Clifford Olson of 1121 Wolfram street, attendant at the oil station at 2751 Peterson avenue, met two obliging bandits late last night. They kidnaped him and after driving him a mile away, robbed him of $15. As they motioned to Olson to step out of the car, Olson asked, "I wish you'd give me a nickel back." One of the robbers asked the reason for the request. "I want to call up police," replied Olson. "Okay," responded the bandit, "and here's a dime for a cigar for one of 'em."

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Gilda Gray, stage dancer, said here today she had instructed her attorney to have her father, Max Michalski, committed to an old men's home in Milwaukee where, the news dispatches indicated, he had been receiving county aid.

"My father and I have never been able to get along," Miss Gray said. "Now it is time to put a stop to it. I've been supporting my father ever since I was old enough to work. My son is not dependent on charity. What do you think I am working for now? I put him in a military academy and my father took him out. I'm going to send my son to school in Switzerland."

Approve Walkout Monday at Massmeeting.

Belleville, Ill., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Coal miners decided to call a general strike for all mines in the Belleville district, effective Monday morning, at a massmeeting here this afternoon to protest the new $5 basic daily wage scale agreement.

Approximately 5,000 men would be affected by the strike, of whom about 2,200 have been employed under the old wage agreement which expired March 31.

The miners agreed to propose a state-wide strike at a meeting of southern Illinois miners to be held Sunday at Benld.

A resolution also was adopted favoring a state convention to oust district officers and the members of the scale committee who voted favorably on the new wage scale.

Lewis Warns Pickets.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—Picketing by union miners who are opposed to permitting work under the new Illinois wage agreement in the Springfield and Gillespie area today brought directions from John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, "to comply with the policy and laws of their organization or forfeit its protection."

Meanwhile operators of mines in this district were proceeding with plans to resume work. The Peabody Coal company has prepared five mines in Springfield for resumption of work tomorrow. Panther Creek Mines, Inc., owning five mines in the Springfield territory, intends to resume operation at one of its shafts tomorrow.

Four Peabody mines in the Taylorville region were hoisting coal today without molestation, according to Earl A. McClintock, district manager. The Taylorville groups employ about 2,400 men.

President Lewis' message to the miners was in the form of a telegram to each local union whose members have been picketing or who have not reported for work.

Duquoin Mines Reopen.

Duquoin, Ill., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—The Majestic mine here, owned by the Peabody Coal company, employing 600 men, resumed operations today. The Gayle strip mine, employing 65 men, also has resumed. More than 500 men will go to work at Union Colliery company at Dowell Monday.

RAID BREWERY; PRESIDENT AND 7 OTHERS HELD

Shawano, Wis., Aug. 12.—(AP)—The Farmers' brewery, one of the largest brewing works operated in north central Wisconsin under government permit, was raided and seized by federal prohibition agents from Milwaukee tonight. Conrad Vollant, president, and seven other men, six of them employés, were arrested. All were taken to the jail here and lodged for the night. They will be arraigned before C. B. Dillett, United States commissioner, tomorrow. Agents said search of a truck revealed 27 half barrels of "high powered" beer. At the brewery, the agents said, they found Vollant engaged in loading an automobile with cartons of beer. Brewery vats containing 338 barrels of beer also were seized.

The dry agents said they were working directly under instructions from W. Frank Cunningham, deputy prohibition administrator.

COUNTY EMPLOYES GIVEN PAY CHECKS TOTALING $750,000

County employes were paid yesterday for the last half of April and the first half of May with funds received from the sale of $1,000,000 in 1931 tax anticipation warrants to loop banks. The salaries totaled $750,000. Of the balance $100,000 will be expended in mothers' pensions, $100,000 for the nurses and nurses' training school employes and $25,000 in the children's home placing fund.

Before the funds were made available to County Treasurer McDonough the county board approved the substitution of 1932 tax anticipation warrants for 1931 warrants in the highway funds. Bankers had stated they would not purchase 1932 warrants. The county commissioners commented on the action of the bankers in refusing 1932 warrants at a time when one of the banks, the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, has indicated that it will accept payment of part of a $3,137,379 judgment in 1932 warrants. The judgment represents money advanced to the county when it was first confronted with payless pay days.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Two army regiments and large detachments of armed police conquered 400 students in a battle at the University of Chile today and quickly snuffed out a revolt aimed at overturning the government.

The uprising lasted exactly an hour and a half. It resulted in three deaths—a police officer, a student, and a boy bystander—and there were unconfirmed reports that five others were killed. Twenty persons were wounded.

The purpose of the revolt was to restore Col. Marmaduke Grove in control of the government in place of Carlos D. Davila, former ambassador at Washington, who now heads the Chilean Socialist régime. The rebellion ended as soon as the students, who had seized the university, saw the two regiments of troops. They abandoned their barricades and fled. All except 50 of them were captured.

JAPANESE ENVOY CLEARS STIMSON; EXPLAINS SPEECH

Tokio Abandons Protest for Time Being.

TOKIO, Aug. 12.—Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese ambassador to the United States, wrote finis to the Japanese quarrel with Henry L. Stimson today by reporting to the Japanese foreign office that the American secretary of state, in his address at New York last Monday on the implications of the Kellogg pact, used the article "an" instead of "the" preceding the word "aggressor." Japan had interpreted the speech to mean that Stimson was accusing her of being the aggressor in the recent fighting with China, and was considering a formal protest to the United States. Debuchi declared there is nothing urgent in the matter, so he will report verbally to Foreign Minister Count Yasuya Uchida upon his return to Japan in September.

The foreign office, on receiving the full text of Stimson's speech from Debuchi, declared that the context of the speech infers that Japan was the aggressor, regardless of whether the definite or indefinite article was used, but that the foreign office can do nothing about it now.

Will Recognize Manchoukuo.

The foreign office also hinted for the first time today that Japanese recognition of the puppet régime of Manchoukuo (Manchuria) is likely to come very shortly, as it had obtained information that the league of nations commission of inquiry will not recommend that Japan and China negotiate to settle the Manchurian dispute among themselves. The commission is now writing its report at Peiping.

A Japanese spokesman said the report will contain findings and recommendations utterly unacceptable to Japan. One of these recommendations, he said it had been learned, is that the Chinese government at Nanking appoint a viceroy in Manchuria, thus restoring at least the form of Chinese sovereignty. This conflicts fundamentally with Japan's determination to eradicate Chinese control, he declared.

Another Japanese objection to the report, he added, is that it will deny that China's trespasses upon Japan's vested interests in Manchuria were serious enough to justify the Japanese military campaign and also that the Manchoukuo regime is a product of the will of the Manchurian people.

Chang to Take Long Trip

It is reported from Peiping that Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, former Manchurian war lord, who was ousted by Japan, had announced that he is leaving Peiping within three weeks on a three to five years' trip obroad.

Chang said he will first visit Germany and Turkey to see how those respective peoples are coping with the change of conditions in their countries. He will then enter Russia, where he will stay for some time, and later will visit England and the United States before returning home. In England, Chang said, he will study at Oxford or Cambridge. In the United States he wants to inspect the conditions of commerce and industries.

BOY WANDERERS, BOUND NOWHERE, DOT HIGHWAYS

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Wandering along America's highways and begging their way in towns and cities are thousands of homeless boys, their destination nowhere in particular. They are ill-clothed and poorly fed, the most of them in search of the job that is always just a town or two ahead.

This was revealed yesterday by Prof. A. W. McMillen of the school of social service administration at the University of Chicago. Prof. McMillan has completed a survey of transient minors. He obtained his material last spring in a personal investigation in the southern half of the United States, a mecca for the homeless during the witner months. He visited hobo jungles, interviewed the boys he found there, and obtained the testimony of railroad police and superintendents of flop houses.

Each Wanderer "On His Own."

Unlike the roving children of Russia, the vagabond boys do not travel in gangs, it was learned. They start out "on their own," and often at the request of parents; sometimes because they feel themselves a burden in homes where there already are too many mouths to feed and no income.

"Although the number of vagabond boys has been placed by some at 200,000, that is only an estimate," Prof. McMillen said. "There are only a few places where we can obtain accurate data. However, the number is known to be very large throughout the United States.

"In El Paso, Tex., I found that during a ten months period 11,000 boys under 21 years had passed through the town. In Phoenix, Ariz., from 1,500 to 1,600 were reported in three and a half months. I visited boys in the 'jungles' and found that in a large number of cases they were the normal boy just out of high school who has not found employment.

Few Resort to Crime.

"There was little evidence of crime or criminal tendencies," Prof. McMillen continued. "I went so far as to tabulate police records in different towns, but I found but few cases of crime committed by youthful transients. In fact, the testimony of railroad police and superintendents of flop houses spoke well for the transient boys, whom they must keep on the move."

It is only the minority of wandering boys who go out in search of adventure, Prof. McMillen said.

"But there is a grave danger that these vagabond boys may prove to be a social menace," Prof. McMillen warned. "They will assume, in time, the traditional attitude of the hobo. There is the constant danger of demoralization from the older men on the road."

Only Youth Traveling.

The local situation, according to Robert W. Beasley, director of the clearing house for men for the Illinois Emergency Relief committee, does not reveal great numbers of minor transients.

"Only one-fifth of the transient boys come to the shelters," Mr. Beasley said. "We receive from 50 to 75 boys a month. Many more are cared for temporarily by individuals whose hearts are touched by the youth of the lads. I would say that most of the roving men are the younger men. The old timers—the hobos and tramps—have learned to stay where there is shelter."

SKULL OF SLAIN CLARKE EXHIBIT IN MURDER CASE

Proof of Suicide, Argues Lancaster Defense.

Miami, Fla., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—The bullet pierced skull of Haden Clarke was exhibited today to the jury which is hearing the charge that Capt. W. N. Lancaster, British aviator, murdered the young "ghost" writer, as the basis for the theory of Dr. Arthur H. Hamilton, defense criminologist, that Clarke's death could have been nothing but suicide.

"There is not a scintilla of evidence here to show that Clarke was murdered," Dr. Hamilton declared. He based his declaration on examination of the skull, declaring that that showed that the pistol from which the fatal bullet was fired had been held close to the skull, which was an indication of suicide.

Exhibit Causes Sensation.

The production of the skull and its exhibition to the jury caused a sensation in the packed courtroom. One woman fainted. Beverley Clarke, brother of the dead man, sat unmoved at his post beside State's Attorney Vernon Hawthorne. Mrs. Ida Clyde Clarke, mother of the young writer, who has been called as a witness, was not present.

State's Attorney Hawthorne started a vigorous cross-examination designed to destroy the value of Dr. Hamilton's testimony to the defense. He demanded if Dr. Hamilton had not been charged, when he was a witness in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, with switching Sacco's gun, an exhibit in the case, with one of his own weapons. Hamilton retorted that the charge had never been made. He admitted that the exchange of barrels had been made, but asserted that it was done without his knowledge.

Volunteer, He Explains.

Dr. Hamilton explained that he entered the case at his own suggestion, after reading of it in the newspapers. Following his testimony, the jury was taken to inspect the scene of the shooting.

Clarke was shot to death in the home of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviatrix, in whose affections he is alleged to have succeeded Capt. Lancaster. The British flyer has admitted that he wrote and signed the suicide note which bore the name of Clarke, but asserted that he did it in a moment of panic after he discovered that Clarke had wounded himself fatally.

Earlier in the day testimony of defense witnesses had branded young Clarke as a narcotic addict who had frequently mentioned suicide to his friends.

Suicide "Discussed."

Dick Lavender, former roommate of Clarke in New Orleans, and Richard Richardson, Miami writer, testified that Clarke had discussed suicide with them and that he had elaborated upon the theory that shooting was the best method—"to go out in a big way."

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

MR. HOOVER'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH.

In his address formally accepting the nomination of the Republican party to the presidency Mr. Hoover achieved his purpose "to speak so simply and so plainly that every man and woman in the United States that may hear or read my words cannot misunderstand." The address, we believe, has impressed the nation with its sincerity, its freedom from narrow partisanism, and its sense of solemn responsibility. In this alone it is a most important and timely contribution to the public morale and the clarification of the nation's thought and purpose.

Of chief significance to the American people, as a future generation may realize more clearly than our own, is Mr. Hoover's assertion of American principle and its reference to the measures with which the American government and people have sought to defend their existence and recover their well being. We are still in the midst of the destructive forces and heavy consequences of the great disaster, and, as the President said, we must continue the building of our measures of restoration. In this effort the pressure of shortsighted and unsound demands will continue and must be defeated. In this situation there is need for the reassertion of American principles of public action. "The spirit and devising of this government of the people," as Mr. Hoover reminds us, "was to sustain a dual purpose—on the one hand, to protect our people amongst nations and in domestic emergencies by great national power, and, on the other, to preserve individual liberty and freedom through local government. The function of the federal government in these times is to use its strength for the protection of citizens and local governments by support to our institutions against forces beyond their control. It is not the function of the government to relieve individuals of their responsibilities to their neighbors or to relieve private institutions of their responsibilities to the public, or of local governments to the states, or of state governments to the federal government. In giving that protection and that aid the federal government must insist that all of them exert their responsibilities in full. It is vital that the programs of the government shall not compete with or replace any of them but shall add to their initiative and their strength. It is vital that by the use of public revenues and public credit in emergency the nation shall be strengthened and not weakened."

This was the underlying issue of our whole policy of public action in emergency relief, an issue that remains and will continue to distinguish the viewpoints, pressures and tendencies of public opinion and political action, especially in the present period of excessive strain. It is an issue raised acutely by the demands for enormous federal loans and expenditures, regardless of local or individual responsibilities, by undiscriminating proposals for money payments to the needy and the unscrupulous exploitation of class and sectional self-interest through the distribution of pork. The conception of government as a guarantor of individual livelihood and felicity, an infallible insurer against individual error or mishap is not the American conception. As Mr. Hoover puts it:

"The solution of our many problems which arise from the shifting scene of national life is not to be found in haphazard experimentation or by revolution. It must be through organic development of our national life under these ideals. It must secure that coöperative action which builds initiative and strength outside of government. It does not follow, because our difficulties are stupendous, because there are some souls timorous enough to doubt the validity and effectiveness of our ideals and our system, that we must turn to a state controlled or state directed social or economic system in order to cure our troubles.

"That is not liberalism; it is tyranny. It is the regimentation of men under autocratic bureaucracy with all its extinction of liberty, of hope, and of opportunity. Of course, no man of understanding says that our system works perfectly. It does not. The human race is not perfect. Nevertheless, the movement of a true civilization is toward freedom rather than regimentation. This is our ideal."

It is one of the most serious consequences of the American crisis that it not only brings about an extraordinary extension of the central government's intervention but that the wise limits of its responsibilities are likely to be obscured and broken down. It may be said for Mr. Hoover that he has tried to maintain the vital distinctions he emphasizes in his address while employing the power within his control and exercising his influence to energize those individual and local agencies upon the survival and effective action of which not only our restoration but the preservation of the American democratic order depends. That there have been inconsistencies and failures in this effort probably he himself would not deny. The most serious failure was in respect of retrenchment, and though the greater responsibility rests upon the shoulders of the congress the lack of wholehearted action in the executive departments contributed to this failure. Both the President and the next congress must make it their chief responsibility to meet adequately this paramount need. However, in the main, American principles have been recognized and the most radical and hurtful departures successfully resisted. This effort the American people must maintain.

The President's specific declarations of policy and intention there is not space at this time to comment upon, but reference should be made to two issues of major importance, that of foreign debts and that of prohibition. The President's discussion of the international debts was gratifying. He recognized that circumstances might arise which would make it difficult if not impossible for a debtor nation to meet an annual installment. He is willing in such circumstances to take, instead of cash, "some other form of compensation such as the expansion of markets for American agriculture and labor and the restoration and maintenance of our prosperity."

But there is to be no cancellation. "It is a certainty," says the President, "that these debts must not be canceled or the burdens transferred to our people."

Mr. Hoover's position is substantially that of Al Smith, who proposed that the debts be written down in proportion to the consumption of American goods in the markets of the debtor powers. The difference lies in the fact that Mr. Hoover contemplates cash payment as the rule and trade arrangements as the exception, while Mr. Smith thought of trade arrangements as the rule.

Mr. Hoover is to be commended for his strong-minded opposition to the cancellationists who for years have been importuning him and all those around him to give away American money. Mr. Hoover has no use for the sentimentality which proclaims that the money borrowed by the allies was a gift and poor payment at that for the services which the allies rendered us in the war. America, by swinging the balance in favor of the allies, enabled them to divide among them Germany's merchant fleet, her colonies and her gold reserve. America is certainly under no further moral obligations.

Mr. Hoover's declaration may not have been pointed at the Ottawa conference, but it must have been read there with considerable interest. Great Britain, as a sovereign power, has the right to make any trade arrangements she may care to set up with Canada and the other dominions; but when Great Britain in due time pleads for a reduction of her annual payments to the United States the fact that Great Britain may have injured American export trade through various agreements reached at Ottawa cannot be overlooked. Concessions to American exporters should be viewed in relation to pre-Ottawa rather than post-Ottawa regulations.

Mr. Hoover's starting point for his views on the eighteenth amendment was the Republican platform. The party resolution was born dead. Mr. Hoover actually puts some life back into it by supplying convictions of which the convention avoided any manifestations. The President asks for a change, and gives as his reasons for wanting it such observations as the average opponent of the Volstead act would present to support his position. There was a genuine surprise in what he said. His mind on this subject had not been read generally, and no one would have been astonished if he had stood rather tepidly by the party statement.

So far as a candidate can make the issue, Mr. Hoover has changed the pale neutrality of the party into a positive demand for correction of prohibition mistakes. He says the expectations of the friends of the eighteenth amendment have been defeated. The country fled from evils it knew to evils of which it knew nothing. National prohibition ignored the complexities of American political and social order. It violated the principle of popular sanction which law must have. Consequently it brought in the inevitable warfare the consequences of which Mr. Hoover observes and condemns. "I cannot consent," he says, "to a continuation of this régime." No one could ask for a more definite severance from the dry oligarchy which has dominated congress and which four years ago was supreme in the Republican party.

Mr. Hoover becomes a champion of the change which the party merely said the people could have if it was discoverable that they wanted it. He adheres to the general method of change proposed in the platform, with the difference that he advocates it and the party only threw it in as a limitation if anything at all was to be done. The states shall have restored to them the control of alcoholic beverages with two conditions, both requiring federal supervision—one that states remaining dry shall be protected against their wet neighbors; the other that the saloon shall not be permitted in any state.

Opponents of prohibition have been willing to concede that the federal government should use its control of interstate commerce to prohibit the transportation of liquor into states where it is forbidden by law. The purer doctrine of state sovereignty would require and permit the state to protect itself, but the opposition may pass the point. The retention of federal interest in how beverages are to be sold will make trouble. The question here is more than academic. It is loaded with realities which may fall anywhere. Nevertheless, we have in Mr. Hoover's proposal, if adopted, the end of an era of repression, interference, maladministration of law, mutiny, and lawlessness. The highest authority in administration has been won over to that end, but it is to be kept in mind that this is only the statement of a candidate. It pledges him but it does not pledge congress, the last obdurate stronghold of intolerance in the United States.

Political pledges are one thing and legislative performance is another, as we have seen in Washington since the national conventions, and in Indiana nearer home. The opposition to fanaticism only seems to have swept the field. In the congressional districts this November there will be elections in which the decision lies. The opposition to prohibition cannot rest on its arms. It must win roll calls on Capitol hill.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE-LINE: Raising a building by jack-screws first took place in Chicago in 1858. Blair's heavy hardware store was a four story stone building at the northwest corner of Wells and Lake streets. The floors were filled with stock and, cramped for room, the firm often displayed some of its wares on the sidewalk on Lake street.

Then, to gain more room, the firm raised the building by placing heavy timber bracers with jack-screws. With the screws set, the signal was given to begin at a certain time, each workman with an iron bar placed in the base of the jack-screw.

At the time a fence was placed around the building with the sign: "Danger, Keep Away." Raising so large a building with the stock still in it caused protests by some business men against the venture. They feared the building could not be kept intact and its collapse would be dangerous to adjacent property. No mishaps occurred.

JOSEPH COLLOSKY JR.

In 1899 Chicago, by annexation, had the greatest territorial expansion in its history. The towns of Lake View, Jefferson, Hyde Park, and Lake were incorporated in the city limits.

Newspapers in the east made great sport of the event. They pretended to clip advertisements from Chicago dailies offering for sale ranches and mines within the corporate limits. They invented all sorts of stories about the dangers of delivering the mails from one part of the city to another. One New York daily printed a pretended telegram substantially as follows:

"John Nimrod had an exciting experience while hunting in the 189th ward yesterday. He was out only for deer, but encountered a panther near the junction of 492d street and the Blue Clay trail. The beast sprang upon him and inflicted a painful wound. He dragged himself three miles to the nearest house, where his wounds were dressed. Police of the 203d precinct were notified and a squad of the most skilled hunters on the force immediately were set upon the animal's trail, as panthers are prohibited within the city's limits by ordinance of Jan. 15. Up to going to press the police had not been heard from since they plunged into the jungle at 510th street." F. R.

About 1860-'65 Former Mayor Levi D. Boone had a grocery store at the northwest corner of State and Monroe. Next door west was the Boston Coffee Mills. On the far side of the alley Dan Boomer had a blacksmith shop, with Henry Brinkman next with a butcher shop. This latter plat later was the site of Chapin & Gore's famous sports resort and eating house, famed for its corned beef and cabbage. Behind in the alley was the Dake bakery. 1853.

PIMPLES AND PORK.

WHILE diet is not the most important factor in acne, or infected pimples, it is of some consequence. A British skin specialist gives it as his opinion that one-fourth of all the bad cases of acne that have come under his care resulted from eating hog fat. By hog fat he referred to bacon, pork, middling, pork chops, and other forms of fat hog meat. If he charges any of the trouble to eating the quantities of lard used in making bread and pastries and in cooking other dishes, he did not say so.

In his judgment some become slightly sensitized to hog meat. The nose lights up, the face becomes red, and the pimples fill with pus and appear red and angry whenever the breakfast has consisted of bacon or fat meat and greens that have been cooked with hog fat in the evening. When a case of acne is of this periodic flare-up type the possibility that something eaten, and, particularly, that pork is the cause, should be investigated.

The authority bases his understanding on a theory that has considerable basis, whether it is right or not, in this connection. Fats vary considerably in their solidity. Some, such as olive oil, are fluid at ordinary temperatures. Others, such as tallow, are solid and firm at these temperatures. There are many variations in the solidity of fats. Cottonseed oil is changed by treatment from a fluid oil to one that has about the solidity of other cooking fats.

The grease in the grease glands of the skin normally is near enough to being liquid to ooze readily at ordinary temperatures. On a hot day, or while in a Turkish bath, the grease becomes more liquid and pours out on the surface. In a blackhead the grease is so solid that it does not readily flow out of the grease glands. If we ever find a diet or a drug that will increase the liquidness of the oils in the glands of the skin, and thus cause these glands to discharge readily, we will have a remedy for pimples. The theory of the British skin specialist is that when we eat fat hog meat the excess grease is excreted by the skin glands. This fat is more solid and less liquid than that which these glands normally secrete. Therefore it accumulates in the glands, causing blackheads. These overfilled glands become infected, causing pimples and boils.

Those who are subject to acne that is made worse by eating pork will do well to change the diet.

RESTRICTIONS ON DRUGS.

P. C. writes: You state that there are no legal restrictions as to the sale of barbaturic drugs.

In New York City there is a department of health regulation prohibiting the sale of these. They may be dispensed only on a written prescription of a physician, dentist, or veterinary. In spite of this regulation these drugs can be bought in practically any store in the city because no one has to keep records as under the narcotic laws, and therefore there is no means of checking up.

I think congress ought to pass regulations making the sale of drugs of this kind as prohibitive as narcotics.

PEPSIN COMPOUNDS.

E. B. writes:

1. When foods, such as liver and lettuce, disagree, is it a sign that they should not be eaten?

2. Are elderly people, around 70, better without meat or eggs, or should they eat one or both in moderation daily?

3. Are the pepsin compounds [pepsin tablets, etc.] advisable for those with weak digestion where many food items that most people like are not well tolerated by the stomach or digestive organs?

REPLY.

1. The term "disagree," used in this connection, has no definite meaning. Probably we should decide to eat or not eat certain foods on other grounds.

2. People 70 years old and older need very little meat and eggs. Meat twice a week is ample unless the person is working actively.

3. No. Pepsin is rarely used now. Such a person should try to find out why he has what he calls weak digestion. He should regulate his habits, including his diet, and he should take such treatment as is indicated by what he finds.

REPLY.

If, by weak lungs, you mean that you have consumption you should not go. If you mean something else, possibly your mother would change her mind.

M. A. L. writes: Can you tell me the cause of an eruption on the face, of small, watery pimples and redness when they dry up? I watch my diet and elimination carefully, and use creams on the skin very seldom.

There is always a suspicion that an eruption of this description is due to chemicals, though possibly you are giving a poor description of acne.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 13, 1916.

WASHINGTON.—The war department today issued orders to all department commanders that all remaining National Guardsmen are to be sent to the border as rapidly as they can be equipped and transportation obtained. Specific instructions are sent for the immediate completion of mobilization of the Kentucky, Vermont, and Ohio troops. There are no specific instructions for the great mass of southern troops, whose retention at home has been arousing criticism of the administration for further sectional favoritism, but the general orders are expected to take care of them. The order affects approximately 32,000 Guardsmen and will strip the country clean of every militiaman who might be of service in local emergency.

PETROGRAD. — Gen. Letchitsky's forces have crossed the Ziota Bistritza river near Stanislau in their pursuit of the retreating Austrians and also the Czarna Bistritza river in the region of Nadvorna, 22 miles southeast of Stanislau, it was officially announced today. Northeast of Stanislau a Russian force operating north of Buczacz has crossed the Koropietz river, capturing the villages of Folvarki and Slovedkagurna. Further advances have been made west of Monasterzyska.

PARIS. — The French repulsed heavy German attacks on both sides of the Somme last night and made further progress on the front northeast of Verdun, it was officially announced. At 9 o'clock last night the Germans launched an attack against the Hem quarry, north of the Somme, losing heavily. The attack broke down under French fire. The French meanwhile continued to organize their new front in this region.

NEW YORK.—Members of the executive board of the trainmen's brotherhoods will accept an offer from President Wilson to intervene in an attempt to settle amicably the differences between the brotherhoods and the railroad managers, A. B. Garretson, brotherhood official, announced. Mr. Garretson said he had not yet received any proposal from the President. He indicated the brotherhoods would delay taking any step until they confer with the President, if the latter so desires.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. — Nineteen persons were killed and it is believed forty or fifty received injuries in a head-on collision between trolley cars on the Southern Cambria Traction company line at Echo, several miles north of here. The wreck happened in the mountains, but the company officials refuse to give out details.

CHICAGO.—True, even in death, to the dictates of his science, Dr. John B. Murphy gave his last mortal aid to medicine and surgery yesterday when, at the direction of his last words, his colleagues in surgery began a post-mortem examination to determine how closely the great surgeon had diagnosed his own ailment. In Mercy hospital there gathered the scientific men who knew him best. The body of Dr. Murphy reached Chicago over the Michigan Central railway from Mackinac island, where he died, and was immediately conveyed to Mercy hospital, wherein the scientist had given the best years of his life to the study of human ills. The post-mortem was begun in the morning. Dr. W. A. Evans of THE TRIBUNE conducted the examination, assisted by Dr. McArthur, Dr. A. Augustus O'Neil, president of the Chicago Medical society; Dr. George W. Hochrein, and Dr. Philip Kreuscher.

GARDEN CITY, N. Y.—Mrs. Frank Page, 22, daughter-in-law of Walter Hines Page, American ambassador to Great Britain, died this afternoon of infantile paralysis. Mrs. Page, who was a bride of only a few months, had been ill only a short time.

AN OUTRAGE AT PEOTONE.

Peotone, Ill., Aug. 9.—Being a regular reader of your daily paper and of normal intelligence, I have been more or less aware of your fairness in giving your contributors a chance to voice their opinions.

This concerns the most recent and most brutal of attacks on the peaceful and law abiding citizens of this community. Today, as in similar assaults, an old couple were bound hand and foot. The woman of 80 was beaten unmercifully into unconsciousness in an attempt to extort the old couple's life savings. The entire house was ransacked, furniture broken into bits, shelves torn down, without regard to anything sacred.

These invaders are practically demanding hostage. This is the fourth incident. God knows how many more will be committed this winter if conditions stay the same.

We are without press representation out here in the hinterlands, but my forefathers have fought since the revolution to make this country a decent place to live, and I feel that I am only able through an awkward yet sincere pen to do my part in the present predicament.

We are constantly being reminded that we are part of Chicagoland. Won't you convince us by some affirmation of this letter? MAURICE COWING.

ONCE UPON A TIME.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 6.—Reading a short while ago a pæan to the cable cars of the '80s I recalled an incident of those times which it gives me pleasure to relate.

The grip car was regarded by many as the most desirable one of a train, and the front seat was preferred. One pleasant morning, this car filled as usual, we were speeding along Cottage Grove avenue when from a group of children playing on the nearby crossing and sidewalk a child of 3, a plump lad, toddled suddenly in front of the approaching train. Eyes were closed and heads bowed low as we waited for the screams of an injured child and in imagination I saw a little mangled body. No screams, only a hush as the cars ground to a stop, when looking up fearfully we saw a young man on the front seat just as he swung the small adventurer up to safety. He had seen the near tragedy, swooped down, grabbed the youngster and when the conductor and gripman, white faced, sprang to the ground he, too, jumped off, deposited the child with his mates, gave him a gentle slap and was back, receiving hearty expressions of appreciation from the still pallid trainmen. E. F. H.

HE WANTS STALIN.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—My ancestors, for hundreds of years have been Americans. They helped to fell the forests, till the fields, make the laws and fight the battles of this country. But as I listen to an orator of either party I long for Josef Stalin to stand on that platform and turn the flashlight of his harsh intelligence and ruthless logic on world problems.

The donkey and elephant orators do not come within a million miles of anything basic.

AN APPALLING VERNACULAR.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Of late several respectable citizens in the vicinity of Sheridan road and Devon avenue have reported insults in the most appalling vernacular from policemen who evidently think that to be successful law enforcers they must be cave men. I suggest that some one endow a chair of instruction in the police department on the subject, "How to be decent, though a policeman." GARFIELD DAWE.

FLORIDA BATHING COSTUMES.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Aug. 6.—I was amused when I read Mrs. M. Lewison's article of July 28 in regard to people on Florida beaches not being allowed to drop their shoulder straps.

Most of the men and boys make no pretense of wearing anything but trunks. And if by chance a newcomer has an old fashioned bathing suit with shoulder straps, it's only a few days till he has it rolled down around his waist. And it's not only on the beach that they parade in trunks, but up and down all the streets, in the stores, and even in restaurants.

A very nice young man drove up to my door last week delivering goods for a merchant in trunks only.

As for the women, their trunks are so abbreviated that they aren't anything more than a loin cloth, and a skeleton waist or "halter bib" is all that the fashionable women wear above the waist.

This undress parade up and down the main streets goes on all day. My query as to "what we were headed for" was answered at a bathing beauty parade, July 4, here on the Broad walk. The "bathing suit for 1942" was announced and a little girl, about 7 years, paraded down the platform with a big fig leaf, front and back, suspended from a string around her waist.

As to the life guards saying anything about shoulder straps, during my whole summer here I have never but once seen a life guard descend from his elevated perch, and that was to help a motorist whose car had sunk in the sand at high tide. M. E. MACKENZIE.

ON THE PAY ROLL.

Eau Claire, Wis., Aug. 7.—The members of the board of the National Economy league whose main idea is to take away the pensions of the Spanish war veterans include some men who certainly have a lot of nerve. Admiral Byrd, the temporary chairman, draws nearly $5,000 a year, being on the retired list. Maj. Gen. J. G. Harbord, also a member of the board, draws $6,000 a year from the government. Gen. Pershing draws $21,500 a year retirement pay. Rear Admiral Sims draws $6,000 a year retirement pay. These men, living on our government, want to take away the pensions of Spanish war veterans.

Other members are sons of rich men who have no need of pensions, and if good old "Teddy" were alive he would take that precious son Archibald and give him a good spanking and tell him if he really wanted to do some good to start and finish an investigation of the waste of money in Washington by the present administration which has been described so vividly in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE lately. E. C. M.

NORTHERN LIGHTS TO ORDER.

Hamlet, Ind., Aug. 8.—Yes, we saw the light in the sky which Marjorie MacNeill and Maridan Richter describe in today's TRIBUNE as "the northern lights which went on and off as if worked mechanically." We discovered while driving along U. S. 30, which lies parallel to the Pennsylvania railroad tracks here, that the light was from a welding machine used by a night crew of the Pennsylvania maintenance force. FERNE SPENCER.

THE SLUSH FUNDS.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—In THE TRIBUNE this morning there appeared an article by Arthur Sears Henning on slush funds in the army and navy. That article is the worst piece of misrepresentation I have ever read in any print. I shall not undertake to point out why it is so because it is certain that the misrepresentation by THE TRIBUNE is deliberate. Similar deliberate misrepresentation by the same writer occurred a few days ago when he wrote about the Naval academy dairy. J. F. QUINN.

Just as Something Funny Happened

Mrs. John A. Stevenson looks very joyous over something in this picture, doesn't she? Mrs. A. Watson Armour has her head turned so that only a tiny bit of her face shows, but that bit indicates that she, too, is smiling happily. Mrs. Stevenson is remaining in town in her Lake Shore drive apartment for the summer and Mrs. Armour is in Lake Forest.

New Costume Jewelry Just Right for Fall

BY RHEA SERGER.

HOW do you like your costume jewelry—bold, bright, and swanky—subtle, silvery, smooth, and sophisticated—quaint, quiet, and quirky? The collecting shopper will find all kinds, everything new and gleaming with fashion, everything designed very much different from any of last year's successes and distinctive enough to please the most fastidious.

One shop is doing some polite but very audible bragging about their new displays of gold metal jewelry, and you will be doing likewise after some of these good looking pieces do bright things for your new brown fall clothes.

Clips continue to be the best exterior decoration up to date. You can now not only wear your heart on your sleeve, but pin a pair of them at strategic spots on your draped bodice. Two sizes are available, a small size about as small as the heart of a rather cold and calculating little gold digger, the other size a large heart that can well be seen without the aid of a magnifying glass. Another set of clips are made of dull carved and twisted gold in a perfect friendship circle. These can be matched with the loveliest old fashioned twisted gold necklace and a bracelet, all of them priced ridiculously low for such charming copies of somebody's treasured heirlooms.

Big flat gold discs the size of a quarter are used for still another pair of unusual clips . . . these are suspended from a short ribbon like piece of gold, looking for all the world like a visiting fireman's badge or similar badges of identification. Monograms can be engraved on these circle badge clips to sustain the illusion. Earrings of the bobbing and hanging variety also feature this quarter size disc, and an odd old fashioned rigid inch wide gold bracelet is decorated with five flat circles to match the earrings.

Clip collectors will have difficulty in passing the dog clips without investing. Clever new ideas show what you can do with two kinds of canines. These dogs are small but perfect in outline, wee little scotties and airedales are paired in doggy peacefulness at the end of two equally long and light linked chains. These clips are only displayed in dull silver metal, but later they may decide to dust these amusing duets in gold.

Horse shoe clips are not new, but they are still the luckiest things you can buy for yourself if you want clips that will stay where you anchor them and also provide the right glitter and life to a dark costume.

Bracelets that look like gold mesh and silver mesh belts with a business like buckle and plenty of well spaced holes so as to fit around any sized wrist are new and unusually well designed with smooth rounded edges that will not snag threads from your sleeves. Wear them in pairs and with a matching fine meshed metal belt. You will find them in both silver and gold metal, ready for your newest brown ensembles as well as blue, red, and black street dresses that are arriving each day—the new clothes that lure more dollars from deep dark hiding places than any amount of other pleas and lectures or political oratory!

Aid Bridge Benefit

Harbor Point Colony Enjoys a Busy Week

Headdress Party Held for Children.

BY JUDITH CASS.

JUDY WALLER, whose "outside name" [as one little girl recently designated her real name—the nickname being her "inside" one] is Lucia, won the first prize for girls at a fancy headdress party given at the Little Harbor club at Harbor Point, Mich., and Teddy Russell, Mrs. Robert M. Curtis' son, was the first prize winner of the boys.

Judy, who is a daughter of the junior William Wallers, was a picture, so our news gatherer at the fashionable Point writes, with a pansy headdress, big velvet petals surrounding her cunning little face, and Teddy was a dashing Jack of Spades.

Other news from the Point includes the fact that Lowell Chapin and his son are occupying the Howard V. O'Brien cottage at the Harbor Point club; that Miss Emily Woodruff, who has been at the Point all summer, has sailed to spend several months abroad; that Mrs. Clyde Stevens is taking a vacation from her shop and spending it with Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler; that Miss Polly Perry left the Sterling Mortons' boat at Harbor Point and is staying there while the rest of the party, including her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry, cruise through Georgian bay; and that Mr. and Mrs. Earle H. Reynolds have gone to the Harbor Point club to be with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scudder of St. Louis.

The Woman's Exchange of Chicago held a sale at the Point in the cottage of Mrs. George A. Ranney yesterday and Thursday, and the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins had a sale there on Wednesday at Mrs. Joseph E. Otis' lovely place.

Our correspondent writes that Mrs. Otis' house and grounds lend themselves so well to such an affair that it was a social as well as a philanthropic success. The gardens and lawn extend right to the edge of the lake and great groups of birch trees are responsible for the name of the estate, Birchwood Farms.

Assisting Mrs. Otis that day were Mrs. Dexter Fairbank, who went up from Chicago to be at the sale and was Mrs. Otis' house guest; Mrs. Nathaniel Owings [Emily Otis], who is with her parents for a month's visit, and Mrs. Owings' sister-in-law, Mrs. Louis Skidmore, who also is the Otises' guest; Mrs. Helen Woodruff Gardner, Mrs. Harold Eldridge, and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis Jr.

Mrs. Gillespie Visits Parents.

Mrs. George Gillespie [Katherine Thorne] of Phoenix, Ariz., is in Lake Forest visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin of Lake Forest returned yesterday from a five weeks' motor trip to California and to Santa Fe, where they visited Mrs. Laflin's mother, Mrs. William E. Clow Jr., and her sister, Miss Francine Clow. The Clows expect to return to Chicago in October.

Mrs. Wentworth G. Field of 242 East Walton place will return on Monday from a week's trip to Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollister Sturges, who are spending the summer at their estate in Stone Ridge, N. Y., have motored to Lenox, Mass., for a few days' visit with Miss Kate S. Buckingham. Mrs. Ernest Russell of Salisbury, Conn., is another guest of Miss Buckingham, who keeps open house at her Berkshires villa all summer long.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Woodland of Kenilworth eagerly are anticipating the arrival next Thursday of their daughter, Mrs. William T. Heagney, who is coming up from Havana for her first visit home since her marriage last summer. Mr. Heagney will join his wife in about 3 weeks for a fortnight's vacation.

Mrs. J. Waller Marshall of Winnetka has arrived at home from a two and a half months' European trip. She visited Denmark, Germany, and France, flying or motoring from place to place and never taking a train the whole time she was away.

Mrs. Neil C. Ward also has returned from a European jaunt and has joined her husband and daughter at their camp on Batchawana bay in Canada, where they will stay until the middle of September.

Mrs. Rufus Dawes Hostess at Tea.

Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes gave a small bridge party and tea yesterday afternoon at her Evanston residence for her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles C. Dawes of Mobile, Ala., who is visiting at the senior Dawes' house with her two young children. The affair was to have been a porch party, but the tables were set in the living room because the lake breeze was too chilly for outdoor comfort. Col. Charles Dawes, who has been in Pensacola, Fla., with his regiment, will arrive in Evanston on Monday and after a few days' visit will return with his family to Mobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Rew of Evanston today are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Elinor, to Charles M. Price, son of Mrs. L. Morgan Price, also of Evanston. Miss Rew is a graduate of the Roycesmore school and Sarah Lawrence college, class of 1930. She made her debut on Thanksgiving day, 1929, and is a member of the Evanston Junior league. Mr. Price was graduated from Northwestern university and Northwestern Law school.

Flower Show at Lake Geneva.

The garden show at Lake Geneva yesterday was a grand success. The flower displays were unusually lovely and there were many displays of vegetables. A carnival spirit prevailed and one of the principal attractions was the donkey Valencia, owned by Philip Wrigley. The animal was decked out in red plumes, bells and mirrors and packed a load of vegetables.

The first prize for shadow boxes went to Mrs. Frank Porter for figurines and high brush cranberry. Mrs. Harley Clarke won second.

The judges decided that Mrs. Kath-

When you find yourself sitting up eagerly in your seat and mentally urging the players in a movie to hurry up and do this or that before the villain gets an opportunity to play his hand, that movie's got you, whether you know it or not!

Such effect did "American Madness" have on me, and it's a rare and enjoyable experience.

It's all about Mr. Dickson, a kindly, intelligent man, and his bank, which is his personal pride and joy. As president of this institution he meets opposition from his board of directors to his policy of making loans to small merchants who have been hit by the present business conditions. And Walter Huston, in this role, delivers some fine bits of common sense in regard to frozen assets, unemployment, and all the other factors of the depression. So he goes his way, in spite of their objections, saving the small business man whenever possible.

But the bank is robbed of a large sum of money. One of the employés is accused. Rumors about the financial condition of the organization start and travel rapidly, becoming wilder as they go from one panicky person to another. The scenes depicting the disastrous spread of misinformation and the resultant bank run are expertly and excitingly photographed.

Mr. Dickson is unalarmed until he discovers that his board and other big financiers to whom he appeals for temporary assistance are unwilling to gamble on the soundness of his bank. At the same time he learns that his adored wife's name is associated with that of the man who proves to be the thief. Sorely wounded, he decides to give up the ship.

Then the manner in which the tide is turned and confidence restored is thrilling to see.

Mr. Huston is at his finest in this film and that's saying something! Pat O'Brien is convincing as the young assistant cashier whose great devotion to his employer is instrumental in the salvation of both Mr. Dickson and his bank. Constance Cummings, as the youth's fiancée, fits nicely in her rôle, and Gavin Gordon is entirely satisfactory as the sly, weak villain.

Kay Johnson, as Dickson's wife, was the one person who struck me as being stilted and artificial. It was only in her last few scenes that she seemed at ease and able to perform naturally.

I did think, too, that a man so broad-minded and tolerant as the banker was portrayed would not have judged his wife so hastily and unjustly under the circumstances.

But these are minor flaws. The film on the whole has vigor and suspense. Frank Capra, the director, shares honors with Mr. Huston for intelligent work.

"American Madness" is 75 minutes of excellent entertainment, and what more do you want?

Cosmetic Costs CanBeLowered by Thrifty Use

Avoid Slamming on Excess of Powder.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A good many girls are finding it hard going because they can't afford the cosmetics they used to buy. I'm asked often for formulae for beauty lotions that can be made up cheaply at home. Frankly, I don't believe in making face creams at home, nor having them made at the corner drug store. The amateur simply cannot make them well, and as good creams are today she cannot make them more cheaply.

But what can be done is to be more economical in the use of a cleansing cream, let's say. More economical with the powder. More economical with the astringent!

Whether up against it or not, we all could profit by this form of economy. It isn't how much cream you put on your face that counts; it's how well you use it. And that goes for powder and astringent, too.

I'll wager that almost every one of us women take up twice as much cream on our fingers as the face needs when we start cleansing. I do, I know. Many other women agree they do, too. We just got into the habit of taking a large gob of cream when a smaller one would do the cleansing work just as effectively. Also, we slam on much more powder each time than the face needs. We always have to wipe off much surplus powder.

It's simply an extravagance, slathering on cosmetics this way. If you'll note, the professional workers don't weight their fingers or palms down with nearly so much cream as we do.

One light film of cream is all that is neded at a time. Whether you are using it for cleansing or softening the skin, the light film does the work just as efficiently as the heavy. The latter has to be rubbed off later, anyway.

The astringent can be saved by first wetting a pad of cotton in water and then using half the amount of tonic. I daresay half the powder we commonly use is wasted.

Sally to Announce Baseball Guests in Tribune Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

The Cubs have won their way into first place in the National league standing, boys and girls, and we'll all have to keep our fingers crossed until the pennant is theirs. Hasn't their advance in the last two weeks been sensational! Surely it has been baseball history at its most dramatic and we should consider ourselves exceptionally privileged to be able to witness one of the critical games.

The Boston Braves, whom they will play on next Thursday, our party day, have slipped back a notch, but that shouldn't alter the fact that a thrilling and exciting day is in store for us. Just to see the Cubs under their new leader is something to clamor for, and the hundred boys and girls who will have the opportunity of doing it with me on Aug. 18 will find their names in tomorrow's SUNDAY TRIBUNE. They are the baseball fans who wrote winning letters.

If your name isn't listed in the winning list, though, don't be too disappointed, because there will be good news for you anyhow. Another grand party is in store for us, and there'll be news of it tomorrow, so you can put your letter writing talents to a test again.

Children Help Free Ice Fund with Benefits

A lemonade stand, a basement show and golf tournament, and a collection taken by child dancers training for the Chicagoland Music Festival, boosted the receipts of THE TRIBUNE free ice fund yesterday.

A group of neighborhood children put on a show in the basement of the home of Shirley Virginia Wachholz, 9640 South Hoyne avenue. They charged three cents for children and five cents for adults. Not being satisfied with the proceeds they added a miniature golf tournament and charged a penny a round. The other children were Ruth Rebe, Joseph and Jean McCann and Sonny Ernst.

"We hope this little contribution will bring just a wee bit of comfort to the children less fortunate than we are," they wrote. "The show gave us much pleasure, not only giving it but rehearsing it."

Norman Isaacson, Louise and Loramae Billigheim and Allen Kwatnes conducted a lemonade stand, earning $1.40 for the fund. Three hundred south side girls brought their pennies to the Aragon ballroom where they were practicing for the dance pageant to be presented as a part of the music festival. They raised $5.58.

More than $1,800 has been received for the ice fund, but is far below the amount needed to keep babies well during the hot weather in stuffy tenement homes. Hundreds of families have been promised ice on the strength of the support of TRIBUNE readers in the past.

$3.50—Young People's Aid.
$1.50—Show and golf tournament.
$1—Tena Koeser; Anonymous.
Total—$18.98.
Previously acknowledged—$1,791.06.
Grand total—$1,810.04.

In addition to the free ice fund, contributions are received by the cashier of THE TRIBUNE for the Camp Algonquin fund. This fund finances free vacations for tenement mothers and children at the camp, located 45 miles northwest of Chicago. Ten dollars will give a mother or child a two weeks vacation.

Five Summer High Schools End Term; Have 104 Graduates

Students at the five summer high schools ended their studies yesterday. Courses were completed by 104 boys and girls, but they will not receive their diplomas until February. A total of 1,617 students attended the summer session.

The high schools and number of graduates at each were: Lake View, 40; Hyde Park, 33; Schurz, 18; Englewood, 7; and Austin, 6. The salaries of principals, teachers, and janitors were paid out of tuition fees, which the board of education adopted as an economy measure.

Plans for participation of the public schools in the World's Fair next year were discussed yesterday by Superintendent William J. Bogan and other school executives.

Sky Garden Club.

The Sky Garden club is sponsoring the performance of "The Birthday of the Infanta" and "The Goose Man" by the Jack and Jill players on Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 23, on the terraces of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Willett's penthouse at 2130 Lincoln Park West. The program will be repeated on the following evening. Proceeds of both performances will benefit the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Appeal for Girls to Sell "Hot Dogs" at Labor Day Rally

Twenty young women are needed to serve as "hot dog" venders at the Republican rally and picnic at Riverview park on Saturday. Miss Frieda Foltz, who is organizing the committee on "hot dogs" for the Chicago Charities committee, issued an appeal for helpers yesterday. The proceeds of the rally will go to charity.

"Inasmuch as the Chicago Charities committee is a nonpartisan group, the political leanings of the volunteers must make absolutely no difference," Miss Foltz said. "But the 'hot dog' committee must get under way at once, as we expect a good portion of our funds to come from the sale of 'hot dogs.'"

Evan Evans is chairman of the Chicago Charities committee, and Mrs. Joseph B. Long is treasurer. Frank J. Loesch is chairman of the advisory committee.

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent, dependent young waif of other. The doctor offers to give Barney Pierce, a well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty creature who summoned the doctor. Pierce determines to help the plucky young orphan girl. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doria Hathaway, a widow, friend of Pierce, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. The doctor sends Gold to see Mrs. Hathaway and she gets the job. Pierce regrets putting Gold under the demoralizing influence of Doria. He decides to sail himself. On the boat Doria meets David Dorrance, who wants to interest Pierce in a business deal. Gold is angered by Pierce's cynicism and distrust of women. Gip Alen, Gold's half brother, stows away on the boat. Pierce overhears Gip threatening Gold and, unknown to her, arranges to get Gip third class passage. Doria invites a good looking youth from steerage to dine with her and give an exhibition tango. The youth is Gip Alen. Barney again takes Gip in hand and arranges to give him a six months' tryout in his Texas lumber camp. Gold accepts Dorrance's offer of a position as his secretary on the Havana trip. On their arrival in New York he sends her to a small hotel near Washington square. In the evening he takes her out to dine and dance in a colored night club in Harlem. Doria expects Pierce to call and has ordered dinner to be served in her hotel suite. Dr. Elverton calls before Pierce. Pierce arrives in search of Gold. He learns where Dorrance has taken her and follows. He sends Dorrance back for Doria and takes Gold away. They go to his New York apartment. The next day they sail for Havana.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

THE PERFECT SECRETARY.

"Did you know Mr. Pierce is sailing with us again, sir?" the table steward whispered to Dorrance.

It was Doria at whom Dorrance looked quickly when, after glancing down into the body of the restaurant, he saw Barney sitting quite alone at a small table against the wall, and after Barney had declined the invitation sent to join them. "What was all that?" Doria asked, carelessly, turning from her game of dazzling all the men at the table—besides the idle pastime of baiting Mrs. Van Toon.

"Barney Pierce has decided on the cruise after all," he replied. "I wonder why?" he added, smiling at her.

"O!" Her cry was as rapturous as it had been on a former occasion. "What a man! Extraordinary!" She could hardly find breathless voice, half rising from her chair, looking down, seeing Barney all alone, waving to him. "Make him join us!"

"He won't," Dorrance answered. "I've asked. I wonder if I know why that is, too!"

"He'll ask us, one by one, to dinner," cried Doria, her voice still breathless with this new surprise.

When they saw a barefoot girl, her gold head uncapped, her slender body in the skimpiest of black cotton weave swimming suits, dive into the pool very early of an unbelievably heavenly morning, they hadn't always eyes for more languorous beauties.

But Barney invited no one to his solitary table that voyage, save a business acquaintance or two, casually encountered about the ship. And he was tremendously the business man, shut up in Dorrance's big suite with him, in conclave over the terms of the now certain merger, while Gold Franklyn, the perfect secretary, was kept at work many hours a day.

It came about thus, that she worked as much for Barney as for Dorrance.

"Use my secretary, Pierce; my secretary'll take care of that for you; do you want Miss Franklyn for letters?" Dorrance offered often in her presence.

Sometimes, then, she was not in Dorrance's suite at all, but in Pierce's. She had the business sense to know there need be no argument about this; she was in luck to be in personal touch with two such men instead of the one she might have expected only to serve.

But at night she was free. At night there was the dancing in starlit air; early mornings she swam in the open air pool. The second day out from New York the deck awnings appeared; linen suits and Panama hats; silk sport suits on the women. Ah! and Palm Beach suits for the women, too, including Doria. The women—by the time that, somewhere off Nassau, the captain appeared on the bridge in white—were like many colored tropical birds, bare armed, bare backed, bare footed except for the suppliest of sandals; tanning themselves devotedly, and with absorption, in the sun.

The flying fish shot in streaks of silver over the surface of the aquamarine sea; with tiny crashes into wave crests.

When the women began to look like gorgeous flowers under their immense sun hats, Gold's heart knew a pang of genuine envy. She was able to buy a swimming suit in the liner's shops; the plainest and cheapest of them all. Even so, the remnant of her two guineas did not do much more than cover it. The fifty dollar loan from Dorrance had paid her bill at the Tree hotel, a taxicab or two, and had still showed thirty dollars left. But that thirty dollars had been mailed to Gip in care of that Madison avenue office; and in any case it was repayable, week by week, to Dorrance, as her pay envelope came in.

"No!" said Dorrance to this.

"Yes!" flashed a proud determined girl.

"And suppose I fire you before you can repay this vast sum?" he had teased.

She had answered: "I'd get work elsewhere, and pay you."

So then he thought—being composite of tactful kindliness, under his rakish, fat boy, rollicking exterior: "Put her in the way of earning a bit extra; of earning the sort of present that a fellow would naturally give another fellow's secretary who had made herself useful to him." And he "loaned" her continually, as he put it, to Barney Pierce.

He was not reticent on the subject, either, to Barney. "That girl hasn't a spare cent. She's repaying out of her salary a little loan I made her in New York. She might have given me the change—'cos, extraordinarily enough, for a woman, she saved more than half of it—but she had to help some one."

"I'll look after that," said Barney, easily. But he was not easy. He was in a ferment. He was in that state of mind in which a man knows to his own torment that any moment might take a prize from him. This pleasure ship seemed full of admiring men, temporarily or permanently unattached, as well as of the men who were in charge of the gorgeous female flowers, and it was the way of all men to admire most beauty unadorned. When they saw a barefoot girl, her gold head uncapped, her slender body in the skimpiest of black cotton weave swimming suits, dive into the pool very early of an unbelievably heavenly morning, they hadn't always got eyes left for more languorous beauties, who, sandaled and rubber turbaned, wearing their pearls with their bathing kit, and gold anklets, and makeup on their faces, came later on, yawning a little from the night before, to swim.

When Barney and Dorrance, through the hours of work in the drawing room of one suite or the other, greeted Gold as the efficient machine all good secretaries should be, Barney would be thinking of the swim three hours ago; or looking towards the time when the long day faded, the moon rose, the music played, and among the ship's pleasure seekers he and she would be dancing. Yet it took all his strategy, and the curbing of his dominant temper, to get more than one dance with Dorrance's secretary.

So he danced oftener than he might have done with Doria Hathaway, at her most vital, her most exuberant, in the subtropical heat which suited her.

But Elverton danced very often with Doria, too; and on these occasions she became a quieter Doria; and was troubled.

"I hear from Mr. Dorrance," said the Van Toon matron, clearly in Dorrance's hearing, "that his secretary is a very well born young lady, indeed. However that may be, she is desperately shabby," continued the Van Toon. "In the evenings she looks nice—although she seems to have only two gowns. But in the daytime—well, if she's so desirable why doesn't Mr. Dorrance pay her better?"

"You can't answer an old cat like that," Dorrance groaned in Doria's ear as they danced; "besides what does she know about the family claims the girl might have? That girl's got something eating her, you know."

Doria then did a very sweet thing; she had begun to think of late—to think queerly and gently, long unaccustomed thoughts, not only of herself and the pleasures revolving immediately around her. She followed Gold down to her cabin, and she said:

"Listen, honey. You can't go on—not if you're to enjoy life—with those few rags of yours. You don't mind me telling you so crudely? Listen. I've no money—I never have—I love watching money fly too well. But I've always got the collaterals, so p'raps I'm not such a harebrain after all. I've always got jewels; and clothes. Gold, will you have my peach color beach suit? And my red tussore sports suit; and one of my white crêpes?"

"No, Mrs. Hathaway," said Gold.

"'Mrs. Hathaway'! Shucks to 'Mrs. Hathaway'!"

"No, Doria," said Gold. They smiled at each other then, a curiously warm, happy, understanding smile. In that queer, gentle little moment two women knew how they cared for each other in the stanch womanly way in which no man will believe.

"Why not, fool?" asked Doria, affectionately.

"Because I'm afraid, Doria."

More questions today. Glad of it, too, for it's a sign we are getting things really valuable out of this "mutual assistance society" of ours. Please feel free to write any time you lack a particular recipe or some especially tricky problem turns up. We'll be more glad than glad to dash around looking up the answers.

First, from Mrs. K. P.: "I'm interested in making a corn pudding from ordinary field corn. Could you help me?"

My fresh corn puddings seem to be all custards, Mrs. P. Here is one of the best. And if any reader happens to possess a real corn pudding recipe—would she send it for Mrs. P.?

GREEN CORN CUSTARD.

Blend three beaten eggs with one cup of corn, which should be quite tender. If it is a little old, score each row with a knife before cutting off the kernels.

Now add one and one-half cups of scalded milk, one-half teaspoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of onion juice, one-fourth teaspoon of nutmeg, and a dash of paprika. Blend well and turn into buttered moulds. Place in a shallow pan of warm water and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] until firm.

Question No. 2 comes from V. M. K.: "In making meringues for lemon cream pies I have trouble. To three egg whites I add three tablespoons of sugar and beat about fifteen minutes. I then set the pie into the oven to brown it slightly. When the pie is taken out the meringue has either become absolutely flat or there is a watery substance between the meringue and the pie. What causes this?"

I suspect two things are giving you trouble, Miss K. Too much beating, and possibly too much heat. Egg whites are temperamental and require careful handling. Try this method and see if it doesn't improve matters. It works for me.

Turn two chilled egg whites into a dry bowl with a rounded, not flat, bottom. Beat, preferably with a whisk, until foamy, but still moist. Add two tablespoons of water and continue beating until the mixture just holds its shape when the bowl is inverted. Too much beating will break the egg white cells and cause that unhappy liquefying. The water dilutes the egg whites and allows them to take on more volume. Now fold in carefully two tablespoons of sugar, one-fourth teaspoon of vanilla, and a few drops of lemon juice. Pile on top of a filled crust and bake from ten to fifteen minutes in a slow oven [300 degrees F.]. The meringue should be just set and colored a golden brown.

Quarrel Spoils Romance; Girl Won't Forgive

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"When I met him it was love at first sight. We were crazy about each other, honestly. His mother, a lovely woman, liked me. My mother liked him. Everything was wonderful. So was he.

"He treated me just grand. Gee, I was happy! He is a grand person, has a good position and is 27. I'm a couple of years younger.

"Then, proving the gods make supremely happy those whom they are about to destroy, we quarreled over nothing. It was our first and last argument. I refused to see him. He tried to come back a week after our quarrel. But I couldn't see a reconciliation on my part and hung up——"

And that's the way with quarrels. Arguments over nothing smash a beautiful romance. No rhyme nor reason to the refusal to kiss and make up while the desire to make up is on! Then days and nights of sickly regretting. Maybe a whole lifetime of it. Seeing that nice boy or nice girl taken up by some one else. All for a silly misunderstanding that could be patched up with a first call.

Why do girls hold out on the reconciliations the way they do? The men seem eager to let bygones be bygones. But the girls have to have their week or month or year of "spitting." Of mad! Then, by the time they're ready to call quits some other girl has the man enmeshed.

When you get right down to these spats, they don't amount to a row of pins. One strong mind trying to dominate another just for satisfaction's sake. The truth is there's no satisfaction in it for any one. Better cultivate the spirit of the meek and be happier in it. At least, when one volunteers to phone, proving the desire to forget, the other should be big enough to agree that it was all a silly mistake.

Punishing doesn't get you anywhere. Not with men, anyway! They don't take to the kind of punishment easily. Instead, they take to another girl to forget.

And once they've humbled themselves in an effort at reconciliation, it's hard to get them to repeat. So better grab at that first penitential call and be content with it!

Writer Scores Stupid Critic of Children

Calling Them Mental Inferiors Amuses.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

I was amused the other day at something I read in a magazine. The purpose of the article was to advise women how to keep themselves attractive to their husbands. It suggested among other things that a wife and mother "should not have too much association with her children and other mental inferiors such as servants."

I was amused at the author of the article. She apparently thinks of children only as mental inferiors and the care of them as dutiful tasks. One felt quite sure that children were an unknown quantity to her. And by that I don't mean that she didn't have children, because many women and men, too, who have no children of their own have much more understanding and depth of sympathy with children than lots of full fledged parents.

What I mean is that any one who pigeon holes children as mental inferiors hasn't the faintest notion of what childhood is or what children are like. To be sure, we, as adults, must have other associations. Wives should not let the children absorb them, so that they lose the world at large and regard for their appearance and have no common ground on which to meet their husbands and other grown people. But to call children mental inferiors is amusing to any one who really knows and cares about them.

They offer such wealth of interest that the fact of their not being of parallel mental age does not figure much. Children certainly don't seem like inferiors in any way to one who is with them day by day.

Take their questions alone, which sometimes dig down to the bedrock of life and love and science, religion, and human relations. Take their observations, which are sharp or amusing or fresh in viewpoint. Take their naturalness and innate honesty.

Take their intimate conversation, which often reveals subtle or deep or beautiful feelings. Take their thoughts in the rare moments of poetic expression or truly spiritual insight. Or take their joyousness and free, contagious, helpless laughter. Or their physical freshness and often actual beauty. Or their constant change and growth.

If we can really perceive children, not just see them with our physical eyes, association with them is an incalculable gain to us, not only in interest and pleasure and a sense of aliveness, but in our own growth and development. Inferiors, indeed!

Social Leaders Sanction Lace Evening Frock

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Fashionable Parisiennes have been somewhat indifferent to the lace evening dress until recently. This charming type of dress needed the okay of some important woman to get going in Paris styles. When Lady Louis Mountbatten chose Worth's lace dress called Brise Legere, meaning in free translation, Light Wound, the lace evening dress became a style to be reckoned with.

Worth tells me that he has made this frock for many of the most fashionable and aristocratic members of Paris society this summer, and in every color on the style rainbow, as well as white and black. The model is shown in the sketch today. It has the trim, and dainty simplicity for which Worth is famous. It is made of a fine red lace, with a plain bodice having a modest V décolleté in front and a longer, narrow V cut in back. The lace is shirred on top of the shoulders, and on the right shoulder Worth places a knotted piece of the lace.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 12.—There are no hooks, eyes, buttons, or snaps in the gowns Tallulah Bankhead is wearing in "Tinfoil" on the M. G. M. lot. She's simply sewn in every morning and the wardrobe women pull the stitches out of the clothes every evening so Tallulah can go home and sit down. Don't ask me what happens if she wants to sit down before evening; that's the studio's secret.

That lawsuit between Dorothy Lee and her ex-landlady at Malibu Beach, in which Dorothy demanded return of $250 rent money and the ex-landlady demanded $375 for asserted damage to the premises during Dorothy's alleged wild parties, was decided in favor of Dorothy after Marshall Duffield, recent football quarter back at Southern California, took the stand and testified that he was Dorothy's "boy friend," and had himself "swept and dusted" the house when Dorothy moved out.

Marshall did recall sailing phonograph records into the ocean, but said they were broken records, and didn't remember a thing about broken cocktail glasses. Neither did Dorothy.

Eleanor Holm, the good looking women's back stroke swimming champion and world record holder from New York, is thinking of taking up a film career. Chances are that you will see her as an actress before many more months.

Helene Madison of Seattle, America's other mermaid champion, and Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, both were sounded out by emissaries from the studios, but while Helene listened attentively, Babe didn't seem much moved by the movie bait. Perhaps Babe couldn't see herself in frills and fineries, which any actress has to wear at some stage of a picture, and which Babe has seemed to disdain.

Maureen O'Sullivan has been given a new long term contract at M. G. M.

Tells His Experiences as Russian Prisoner.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Between White and Red," by Erich Dwinger. [Scribners.] Published yesterday.

FOR more than a year "Between White and Red" was the best selling novel in Germany. It has already been translated into ten languages. It made its bow yesterday to its American public in a translation by Marion Saunders.

ERICH DWINGER.

"Between White and Red" is another war chronicle which, to me, bears every possible evidence of being fact, not fancy. The author at the age of 16 [in 1914] persauded a regiment of dragoons to let him be color sergeant and he was sent to the eastern front. There he was seriously wounded and later he was taken prisoner. Six years later he arrived back in Germany after having gone from one prison camp to another, from Moscow to Siberia, having watched his comrades suffer execution, death by disease or starvation, or the horrors of insanity.

In his attempts at escape he was captured and drafted into the White army and with them went through the intense civil war of 1919, including the epic retreat across Asia. In the complete rout and disintegration of the White army after Kolchak's death he was captured by the Red army and from them managed to make his escape into Germany.

To keep himself from madness Erich Dwinger kept a complete and detailed journal, the labor of writing which, he believes, kept him sane. "Between White and Red" is the day by day record of the life of just such a boy growing into premature manhood under the horrors of war, written in journal form and recording in the minutest detail his experiences and thoughts. If "Between White and Red" isn't fact, under those circumstances, what book is? The daily records are too intense, too real, too pulsating to have been manufactured even by a skilled novelist with the most photographic and retentive memory in the world.

The author has done in "White and Red" an oddly bilingual book, psychologically. By that I mean that it is at the same time typically German and typically Russian. Those long years of his formative life spent among the Russians must have unconsciously molded his mind into a Slavic pattern, for if the reader did not know that Erich Dwinger was a German he might well believe that "Between White and Red" was written by a Russian. It has exactly the quality of intensity of emotional reactions that the Russian novels have and that every one of the personal records of Russians which have come to us in translation have had.

There is something super-intense about the whole Russian literature, something fateful, passionate, seething under vast pages of description and psychological portraiture. In an almost epic sweep of words the Russians somehow achieve tense passion, while English arrives at that effect with swift, vivid sentences, in English staccato, in Russian legato. All of that typical Russianness is in "Between Red and White."

But there is also in it the typical German thoroughness and plodding interest in detail that is so different from the Russian's interest in detail. A Russian book can be crammed full of detail and be five hundred pages long without making the reader feel that he is being told every possible thing about the event or the person. There is always a depth of mystery in human character or even in events unplumbed in Russian literature. Herr Dwinger gives his readers a feeling that he has missed absolutely nothing on the surface or beneath it, that ALL has been recorded, with absolute fidelity and absolute thoroughness. And that is a characteristic of his native psychology.

It is extremely interesting—quite apart from the book, which is unquestionably a record of importance—to see in it how a young man can be molded intellectually in his formative years by enforced contact with an alien race. Not only would Erich Dwinger never have had the material for "Between White and Red" if he had not spent those six years of horror in Russia [which is obvious], but he could never have written as he writes without that experience. His power as a writer comes from that fusion of influences. If he ever becomes one of the great novelists of the world [as his admirers expect him to] it will be because he has been fortunate enough [in his seeming misfortune] to take to his own literary self the best of two great literary cultures.

"Between White and Red" is, I believe, Herr Dwinger's fourth novel. He lives on a small farm in the Bavarian mountains and married, last year, the daughter of Dr. Karl Wein [deceased], who won the Nobel prize for physics in 1912.

H. R. James Writes Story of Mrs. Mary Wollstonecraft

One of the most interesting women in the 18th century was Mary Wollstonecraft and certainly the most advanced feminist of her day. She is said to be the founder of woman's rights in England. Before, however, she wrote about women and their place in the world she wrote "A Vindication of the Rights of Man" in defense of the French revolution against Edmund Burke.

When she was still a young woman she was forced to help support her family on her meager wages as a governess and a writer. Her character was one of the noblest of her generation and her mind was far beyond her contemporaries—robust, fearless, honest. She died in giving birth to William Godwin's daughter, who later became the second wife of Percy Bysshe Shelley. Her dramatic life is recorded sympathetically and penetratingly by H. R. James in "Mary Wollstonecraft" [Oxford Press].

Frankau Turns to Stage for Writing Field

Energetic British Author Chooses Romance.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Gilbert Frankau has turned dramatist. He has chosen for his subject the celebrated Emma Hamilton, whose romantic history both before and after her association with the great Lord Nelson is good material for stage pictures.

GILBERT FRANKAU.

Mr. Frankau is a really indefatigable man, for he attends all the literary lunches and dinners, speaks often, and never fails to please and amuse. He remains young because he is always (when not rattling the patriotic drum) full of fun and ready for debate upon the most unlikely subjects.

It is quite possible that he may find in the stage a new field for his activity, and if the Emma Hamilton play is a success I should not be surprised to find him writing plays in preference to novels in the future. Meanwhile he is publishing very soon a collection of short stories with the strange title of "Wine, Women, and Waiters."

It is not without significance (at any rate for astrologists) that both Bernard Shaw and Aldous Huxley were born on July 26. Now that Mr. Huxley has taken to the writing of plays the date has a new significance. But whereas Mr. Shaw will be 76 this year, Mr. Huxley will be only 38. Mr. Shaw, by the way, has just contributed a talk to a series broadcast by the British radio entitled "Rungs of the Ladder." This series, which has fluctuated in interest and value, has aimed at giving the early experiences of those who have struggled from poverty to fame and fortune. Mr. Shaw is, so far, its most distinguished contributor.

A very interesting autobiography is promised for the near future. This is "Theatre and Friendship," by Elizabeth Robins. Miss Robins' experiences cover some of the most interesting years of English dramatic history, and we may be sure that she has new things to tell, for she was a pioneer and a woman of great intelligence and distinction.

A new novel by Edwin Muir will be published in the early autumn. It is called "Poor Tom." The scene is a Scottish city, and the book is by no means cheerful in theme; but Mr. Muir is a writer of great ability, as the translations in which he has collaborated with his wife have shown; and I have no doubt at all that he will in due time establish his reputation as an original writer of power.

The veteran Vernon Lee, whose first book, "Studies of the Eighteenth Century in Italy," was published when she was only 26 and is a monument of knowledge, is at work on a very important book dealing with "Music and Its Lovers," but the progress of this book has been delayed by the author's illness at her villa in Florence. She still hopes, however, to finish it in time for autumn publication.

DUCE SHAKES UP ENVOYS; PUTS IN YOUNGER MEN

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Aug. 12.—Premier Mussolini's first act as his own foreign minister was revealed today as a complete transformation of his foreign service. An official announcement said that younger and more technically prepared diplomats must henceforth represent Fascism abroad.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI.

In eight Italian embassies and 14 ministries new men, all of them about 40 years of age, are to be substituted, making practically complete the replacement of the diplomatic system which served the former foreign minister, Dino Grandi. With this change, Mussolini during the last year has "rotated," as it is called here, his party directorate, his cabinet, his provincial governors, and now his diplomatic service.

May Change Foreign Policy.

The present foreign service changes are regarded with interest in Rome in connection with intimations that Il duce might be preparing to change his foreign policy to at least a more vigorous and critical aggressiveness following his displeasure with the league of nations and the recent disarmament conference.

In the present shake-up Augusto Rosso replaces Nobile Giacomo de Martino as ambassador to the United States. Rosso is 46. He has already served in the Washington embassy and has had wide experience in the league and naval conferences during the last three years.

Besides De Martino's retirement from Washington, others of the old school of ambassadors who are being replaced are Count Gaetano Manzoni in Paris, Luca Orsini-Baroni in Berlin, Count Martin-Franklin in Brussels, and Durini de Monza in Madrid.

List of Changes.

Vincenzo Lojacono goes to Turkey, Giuseppe Bastianini to Warsaw, and Mario Ariotta to Buenos Aires. Orazio Pedrazzi and Roberto Cantalupo go to Chile and Brazil respectively, with ministerial rank but with ambassadorial credentials.

Out of eight new ambassadors the following six are new appointees: Bastianini, Ariotta, Rosso, Guariglia, Pedrazzi, and Cantalupo. They were all either deputies or foreign office career men.

Changes Are Listed.

In the ministries changes are effected in the following cities: Cairo, Stockholm, Budapest, Copenhagen Athens, Prague, Lima, Montevideo, Luxemburg, Mexico City, Addis-Ababa, and Tirana. Notable among these changes is the appointment of Grandi's chief of the press bureau, Guido Rocco, as minister to Prague, and of Count Capassa Torre, former chief of the foreign office press section, to Copenhagen.

Mussolini's press tonight says the changes are a good thing. He is not changing foreign policy, just changing instruments, it is declared.

The task of these new implements in foreign fields, as Mussolini sees it, will be getting war debts canceled, naval equality with France, and wider colonial spaces on which Italians can multiply.

Another change in the diplomatic shifting is the bare announcement that Marchese Paulucci di Caboli, ranking minister plenipotentiary and vice secretary of the league of nations, has been withdrawn and placed on the waiting list.

FIGHT PROPOSAL FOR FIXED BRIDGE OVER WATERWAY

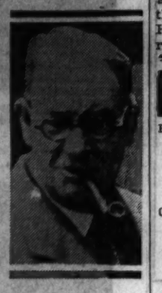
In a letter sent to Secretary of War Hurley, which was made public yesterday, Walter Mills, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee of the Chicago Real Estate board, asked that no fixed bridges be allowed on the Chicago sanitary district canal—a portion of the Illinois waterway—between Chicago and Lockport.



WALTER MILLS.

The basis of the communication was the request of the state highway department for a permit o construct a fixed bridge over the canal at Justice Park. A hearing, presided over by Lieut. Col. Daniel I. Sultan, United States district engineer at Chicago, was held on July 29. Col. Sultan has forwarded his recommendation on the request to the war department, where it has not yet been made public.

Oppose Fixed Bridges.

"We of Chicago," Mr. Mills wrote, "expect that the war department will continue to maintain this canal so as to carry out the intent of the promoters to provide access for lake boats over the canal to the lock at Lockport, and it is inconceivable that the war department will at this time permit the construction of a fixed bridge over this canal."

"One point is not made clear," he said. "This bridge would have a 38 foot clearance, a height ample for tow boats and barges which might pass under it. I have talked to a great many lake shippers and they assure me that they do not contemplate running their freighters down the canal as far as Lockport."

Need Smaller Boats, He Says.

The engineer also explained that a large portion of the waterway has a nine foot depth, which would prevent its use by large boats. Since a number of fixed bridges with sixteen and one-half foot clearance are already scattered along the stream, the larger tow boats in use in other sections would not be able to clear, for some have a height of 22 feet. [There are no fixed bridges now in the portion of the canal between Chicago and Lockport.] It will be necessary, said Col. Sultan, to construct smaller tow boats to clear the bridges now in place along the waterway.

POLICE DELAY KAISER INQUEST.

To permit further investigation, police yesterday obtained a continuance to Aug. 23 of the inquest into the death of Peter Kaiser, who was found shot to death Thursday in his butcher shop at 3138 North Clark street, supposedly by bandits.

DR. J. PAUL GOODE LEAVES HIS $25,000 ESTATE TO SON

The will of Dr. J. Paul Goode, professor emeritus of geography at the University of Chicago, was admitted to probate yesterday before Oscar F. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. Dr. Goode left his entire estate of $25,000 to his son, Kenneth Hancock Goode, 6227 Kimbark avenue.

Dr. Goode directed also that Mrs. Ruth Hancock Crowe, his sister-in-law, who resides at his Kimbark avenue home, is to have possession of all his household goods during her lifetime.

Dr. Goode died Aug. 5 after a short illness at his summer home in Little Point Sable, Mich. He was 70 years old. Dr. Goode resigned his post as head of the geographical department at the university in 1923, soon after the death of his wife, Mrs. Katherine Hancock Goode, Chicago's first woman representative in the legislature.

JAPAN WRESTS SWIMMING LEAD FROM U. S.

CUBS PARADE INTO ST. LOUIS LIKE CHAMPIONS

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 12.—The Chicago Cubs, who are leading the National league by a half game, and the St. Louis Cardinals, still world champions at baseball playing, as titles go, but now in sixth place, seven games behind the Cubs, will engage in a contest tomorrow afternoon, the first of a three game series.

Charley Root will pitch the game tomorrow and he will be opposed by one of three gents, it is said—Paul Derringer, Sylvester Johnson, or Dizzy Dean. The two who don't start tomorrow are slated to go in the double header Sunday.

Both teams rested today, as did the Pirates who were replaced yesterday as league leaders. The game scheduled for today was moved over to make possible the Sabbath double header.

Malone and Bush.

And speaking of that double header, Manager Charley Grimm has made it known that Pat Malone will pitch one of the contests and that Guy Bush will come back for the second game, seeking to continue the excellent pitching with which he wound up the big game in Pittsburgh yesterday.

The Cubs arrived here this morning and many of the heroes were met by their proud brides, who came from Chicago to get a head start on the oral expression of congratulations.

Manager Grimm, whose birthplace is St. Louis, and who has an estate in Normandy, Mo., in St. Louis county, was met at the train by Mrs. Grimm and their 7 year old daughter, Mae Jean. Mrs. Grimm said the Normandy folks had remained in the country to stage their greetings on the home premises.

Grimms Plan Blowout.

Tonight there was an informal blowout for the new Cub manager, just for the neighbors, and tomorrow night Charley will be host to a group of friends. The Grimm family orchestra will play, Charley will do banjo solos and magic tricks and sing a million songs, both in German and English, and his brother, a piano wizard, has promised not to move from the baby grand from 8 o'clock till midnight. At midnight the guests will have to go home, for Charley wants plenty of rest for that double header.

Bush, who was nonplussed yesterday when he first learned of attacks launched against him by Chicago afternoon newspapers, was aided in forgetting the onslaughts by numerous wires from Chicagoans, assuring him the fans did not question his integrity.

So Are We, Guy.

Bush's present attitude is puzzlement as to why he had been the center of journalistic attacks.

"I can't even make head nor tail of those charts showing the history of horses and I wouldn't know how to make a bet with a bookie if some one asked me to," he said.

"I spend an occasional off day at the tracks, but now that some one seems to be trying to ruin me, I've decided never to go near a race track as long as I am in baseball."

This is the last Cub trip to St. Louis, and under the present plan they will return to Chicago Sunday night to spend Monday off in preparation for the final western invasion of the eastern clubs, beginning Tuesday with Boston.

The Cubs could remain here Monday, if necessary, or, by agreement, any games that might be rained out could be played when the Cards come to Chicago to play their final series. The Cards will fill in a scheduled open date with a postponed game on Sept. 1 and will play regularly scheduled single games on Sept. 2, 3 and 4.

White Sox Back to Work Against Browns Today

The White Sox, after a day of idleness, will meet the St. Louis Browns today.

A double header tomorrow will mark the end of activity at Comiskey park until Labor day.

During their present visit on the home lot the Sox have not knocked anybody dead, but they have at least accomplished more than was their habit earlier in the campaign. Since returning from the last severe bouncing in eastern parts of the circuit they have won seven while losing thirteen. Two more wins in the three games yet to be played would leave a fairly respectable record.

So long as there is little prospect of climbing from seventh to sixth, it is probable that in the future the chances of victory will be discounted so as to give some of the young talent an opportunity. This already has been done in a few cases and the results were sufficiently satisfactory to indicate the wisdom of continuing along the same lines.

Pitchers will have to be developed for next season, if the overdue improvement is to be accomplished, and it is Manager Lew Fonseca's opinion that the young men should be put to the test now, instead of being held for judgment during the spring training jaunt.

Landis Keeps Up His Loud Silence on Gambling Rumors

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Commissioner of Baseball K. M. Landis returned home yesterday to find that his one day journey to Pittsburgh, simultaneous with the publication of charges that some of the Cubs had gone over their heads in race track betting, had put him in the middle of a tea pot tempest.

The moment he stepped off the train he was deluged with questions as to whether he actually was investigating something of importance or whether his evasive attitude at Pittsburgh the day before had been misinterpreted. He hustled away from the station like a man who had a big date. Later in his office he was treated to another shower of queries.

Cub Bosses Await Action.

Meanwhile the storm he stirred up by his appearance in Pittsburgh on the day the Cubs needed their morale for a battle involving first place grew with the same speed that the possibility of a scandal died down.

The reaction of Chicago fans was that the $65,000 a year commissioner, even if he had an investigation in mind, should have remained under cover until he had tangible evidence.

In the Cubs office all was quiet except for the reinstatement of Catcher Rollie Hemsley, but rumors persisted that the men financially interested in the Chicago club would demand an explanation if one was not forthcoming from the commissioner's office in due time.

Hemsley went to St. Louis last night to join the Cubs, having served a sentence of one payless week for getting off his prescribed diet.

He Admits It's Embarrassing.

About the only thing the commissioner admitted under questioning was that it was embarrassing to be put on the spot by being asked to make a statement when there was no statement to make one way or the other.

"Did you go to Pittsburgh on a definite mission?" he was asked. There was no reply to this.

"Don't you think that in justice to the Cubs, who are fighting for a pennant, they should be either cleared or definitely charged with some offense?" he was asked.

To another questioner, Landis is reported to have said that any investigation he might be making was not

Tribune Swim Tomorrow! Get Set, Boys and Girls

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicagoland swimmers are ready for the third annual 100 yard championship sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. The meet will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Lincoln park lagoon, the first preliminary heat starting promptly at 1:30. Three hours later the ten sprint champions for 1932 will be decided.

All swimmers must report at the Lincoln Park Boat club between 10 a. m. and 12:30 p. m. to obtain their racing numbers. The clerks will pass these out, arranging the swimmers in their preliminary races as they report.

Publish Entries Tomorrow.

No contestant may swim without a number and no entries will be accepted tomorrow. The official list of entries, together with numbers allotted, will be printed in tomorrow's TRIBUNE. They also will be published in a program which will be distributed to the contestants.

The Lincoln park lagoon parallels the outer drive through the park. The Lincoln Park Boat club is located on the west bank of the lagoon just south of the stone bridge. The Sheridan road buses pass within a hundred feet of the clubhouse on the middle park drive. Clark street affords the nearest surface lines transportation.

The contestants will be adequately protected. Lincoln park guards and life guards from the American Red Cross will be present. The Lincoln park force will be:

Fred Riddle, supervisor; B. Bartoli, captain Diversey beach; W. Goetische, mate Oak street beach; B. Webb, mate Diversey beach; H. Engel, B. Miller, C. Chutro, G. Snow, J. Mansfield, L. Nettlehorst, and A. Heise.

Five members of the reserve first aid corps of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross also will be on hand in case of emergencies. The Red Cross forces were secured through the coöperation of Dr. H. W. Gentles, chairman of the first aid and life saving committee.

If numbers mean anything, the Catholic Youth Organization should win the team championship. Al Kumskis, C. Y. O. swim director, has entered nearly 300 boys and girls. Kumskis knows now, of course, that his youngsters will win the greatest number of merit buttons. Whether they can take enough points in the ten races to capture the cup remains to be seen.

Jackson natatorium, 3506 Fillmore street, will compete for a third time in THE TRIBUNE races. Coach Brown has picked eight to race for the gold medals in classes B and C.

Mozart playground, one of the board of education playgrounds, will have 12 boys in the first three races.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Turfmen from Kentucky, Maryland, New York, and many other points will take to the sidelines out at Hawthorne this afternoon and let Illinois horsemen stage their own little celebration.

The $10,000 Illinois Owners' handicap is to be renewed and overnight 15 horses—some of them stars, others just horses—were named for the race, which is at a mile and a sixteenth and will carry a gross value of $12,250 if all in the field parade to the post.

Last night, while the Illinois owners were scurrying around wagering horse against horse with their neighbors, the entry of Fairbypair and Risque, which will represent Mrs. John Hertz, was installed as the favorite at odds of 5 to 2. Both have worked sensationally for the race, and Fairbypair is considered the more dangerous of the entry.

Charleigh Gets Second Call.

Second choice in the betting was William Schmidt's Charleigh, a reformed selling plater, which earlier in the week whipped a band of the smartest sprinters here. He was held at 3 to 1 and the Reichert Brothers entry of My Dandy and Brown Wisdom was next in line at 4 to 1.

This will be the third running of the Illinois Owners' handicap, it having been added to the annual Hawthorne program in 1930.

Martie Flynn, owned by Stuyvesant Peabody, with Jockey Bob Finnerty in the saddle, was the first to win it. Last year Chief John, carrying the silks of John Marsch, was the winner with Karl Eitel second and Knight Commander third. Charley Corbett was the winning jockey. Finnerty rides the Nash brothers' Evergold today and Corbett will be in the saddle on R. M. Eastman's Cathop, which has been showing brilliant form lately.

The Owners' handicap held the 'nterest of most of the 9,000 spectators at Hawthorne yesterday while a program engaging cheap horses, for the most part, was run off. The Crest View purse at six furlongs was the best race and it brought an upset when Miss Corrinne, a far western filly, turned up as the winner by a neck in a furious finish, with Rehoboth second and Waylayer third.

Watch Him Fails to Click.

Watch Him, sporting the yellow and black jacket of Mrs. John Hertz, was the favorite, but he got into motion slowly and as he started from the inside post position was soon shut off by the horses which showed early speed.

Jockey Steffen was forced to take him back and then tried to circle the field, but the task was too much and Watch Him finished out of the money never being able to menace the leaders.

Miss Corrinne might have been lucky to win, for all through the early stages Rehoboth had trouble finding racing room. When he finally got clear of interference he ran over horses and was wearing Miss Corrinne down at every stride as they neared the line of finish.

When the rush of support went to Watch Him and Dis Dat, Miss Corrinne's price went up and she paid $13.60 in the two dollar market after running the six furlongs in 1:13 2-5.

AMERICAN GIRLS LEAD WORLD IN DIVING

Despite three sprained ribs, this miss, Dorothy Poynton, Hollywood school girl, won the Olympic high diving championship. She's just 16.

You Get Money's Worth at Olympic Swim—In Loveliness

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 12.—The American swimming and diving girls have been puting on a very pretty show in the Olympic pool, winning everything up to date, and perhaps you will have noticed in the pictures that the current model of diving and swimming girl runs less to muscle and heft and more to slender grace and charm than some of the lady dreadnaughts who used to plow the ripples on the captive seas.

This phase of the show, this matter of face and figure, has nothing to do with the point scores and championships, but when the four best divers in the Olympic competition of a sunny morning are all good looking kids, burned to a compromise between a goldish gilt and a rich biscuit brown by many hours of larking in the sun, that is something above and beyond what the price of admission calls for.

Pulchritude Is Profit.

They don't have to be pretty to qualify for the Olympic games and, considering the strenuous and rather perilous nature of the sports, you might expect to gaze upon a flotilla of armored lady stevedores with legs like Primo Carnera's and be content with the actual performances alone. You take your athletes as is and if they are as these girls are, that is net profit.

The four best divers are blondes and the first three of the blondes are American girls, Dorothy Poynton, Georgia Coleman and Marion Dale Roper, all of Los Angeles. Their hair is platinum colored and now you may know how the platinum effect is obtained. It is sun burn, and it seems characteristic of the Los Angeles kids of both denominations who spend their summers lazing around in the open without hats.

The fourth girl in the diving competition was Ingebord Sjoquist, a Swede, pretty much of the same general type as the American girls, who out hopped her from the diving apparatus into the dimpling water, which has brought several spectators splashing into the pool, clothes and all, by its irresistable fascination.

Herr Reichmann Dips.

One of these victims of the lure was young Heinz Reichmann, the wandering German journalist, who bet a landsman of his $100 he would hop overboard, just as he was, within two minutes and did so to the astonishment of the other assembled guests and the puffy consternation of the officials and police. Another was an usher employed at the sports, who not only took to the water, but hopped off the high diving tower and for the bargain price of $2 wagered against another usher.

They fired the diving usher for doing this wrong, but the games are almost over anyway and the chances are that the whole pack of them, after resisting so long, will line up on the brink and go overboard when the last race is run.

I will try to refrain from further comment on the personal appearance of the young women who have either won or run one-two-three in all the competitions so far, their tan, their pretty teeth, their great vivacity, although any one who has been present will have to admit that if they had been ladies of the type of the Robert E. Lee or municipal barge No. 8, the spectacle would have been much less enjoyable.

The Japanese Are Fast

There is some feeling among the officials that charm has been overemphasized in the swimming events and they even went so far as to ask a couple of the darlings to put on a few more threads of suit the other day. I would not wish to be run out of the place for seeming to write too appreciatively until the girls are

Germany Gets 3, U. S. 2 in Boxing Finals

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 12.—Germany and Argentina were tied for honors in providing finalists for the Olympic boxing championships with three each at the conclusion of the semi-finals tonight. The United States, Italy, and South Africa sent two each into the final bracket, while the other four places were divided among as many countries.

The titles will be decided tomorrow night.

Louis Salica, New York flyweight, who had become a favorite with the fans through his tournament victories, went into the discard in the semi-finals tonight when he lost a highly unpopular decision to Stephen Enekes of Hungary. Five minutes of catcalls and boos followed the decision. Salica's best weapons were telling rights and lefts to the head and he had the Hungarian tottering in the second round.

Enekes Bores In.

Fred Feary, 210 pound Stockton, Cal., high school boy, joined the other Americans on the retired list when Luigi Rovatti, 192 pound Italian, danced around him, pecking away with stinging drives to face to gain the

NIPPONESE TEN POINTS AHEAD; 3 EVENTS LEFT

American Girls Win Olympic Relay.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 12.—(AP)—The spell of the orient pervaded the aquatic carnival of the tenth Olympic games today as Japan swept into the team leadership with only one day to go. Olympic records fell in three events.

Strangely, the only record yet to survive the wholesale submersion was that of the men's 100 meter backstroke which was the scoring vehicle on which the Nipponese rode into the team lead over the United States, sweeping the first three places.

On the other hand, Uncle Sam's mermaids continued to better their standing. Suffering from dislocated ribs and a back injury which she sustained in practice yesterday, Dorothy Poynton, 16 year old Hollywood girl, won the high diving championship in the morning with 40.26 points.

U. S. Girls Win Relay

The event provided another sweep for the United States, with Georgia Coleman of Los Angeles, winner of the springboard title, taking second place, Marion Dale Roper, University of California at Los Angeles co-ed, was third.

As a closing gesture, the American women's relay quartet of Josephine McKim, Helen Johns, Eleanor Garatti Sayville and Helene Madison left the rest of the world in its wake as it sliced 9.6 seconds off the Olympic record for 400 meters, winning in 4 minutes 38 seconds.

Masaji Kiyokawa, Japanese high school lad of 16, took command of the 100 meter backstroke race from the bark of the gun, and steadily increased his advantage until he was a yard ahead at the turn and two yards in front before the closely bunched field closed upon him slightly at the finish. His time of 1 minute 8.6 seconds was 4-10 of a second short of the world and Olympic record set in 1928 by George Kojac of the United States. Second was Toshio Irie, with Kentaro Kawatsu third. Robert Zehr was the first Yankee finisher, coming in fourth in 1 minute 10.9 seconds.

U. S. Women Lead.

Triumphs in the relay and diving gave the United States women a total of 30 points for first place in the team standings, with Australia second with 17, Great Britain third with 15, and Holland fourth with 10.

Knsoa Kitamura, the much talked of school boy free style exponent, won the first semi-final of the 1,500 meter race in 19:51:6, cutting two-tenths of a second off the Olympic record set in 1928 by Arne Borg of Sweden in 1928.

The two Japanese won with such ease that there is little hope that Clarence Crabbe, the United States' best prospect, or Jean Taris, flashy Frenchman, can do anything about first place or possibly second in tomorrow's final test.

Charlton Fails to Qualify.

Andrew Charlton, champion of eight years ago, and Australia's greatest hope in the swimming events until he was forced to bed with a bad case of influenza two weeks before the races, failed to qualify today, as did youthful Ralph Flanagan, 14 year old Miami Beach, Fla., boy.

Flanagan's time was 19 minutes 53.1 seconds for fourth place, much faster than second and third place times in the first heat. Charlton was fifth in this, the fastest heat.

Again in the 200 meter breast stroke semi-final, the Japanese displayed the best form, qualifying three men. The United States was shut out of this event in the preliminary heats yesterday.

Reizo Koike, 16 year old schoolboy, won the first heat in 2 minutes 44.9 seconds, reducing the Olympic record of 2:46.2 which he and Yoshiyuki Tsuruta, 1928 winner, set jointly yesterday. Tsuruta was second today in 2:45.4, with Shigeo Nakagawa, Japan's third entry, finishing third in the second heat, which was won by Erwin Sietas, Germany, in much slower time.

MORFAIR WINS BY 3 LENGTHS OVER HOLDING TRACK

Whips Pompeius in Saranac Handicap.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—The Morvich colt, Morfair, impressed observers as a more formidable three year old than ever when he scored his third consecutive 1932 victory by taking the Saranac handicap today over a heavy track and at a distance many felt was not suited to him. Never showing the slightest sign of faltering, Morfair galloped head and head with W. R. Coe's Pompeius for seven furlongs, and then drew off to win as he pleased.

At the end of the mile the margin was three lengths with Pompeius two before Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sunmelius, which led Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Stepentfetchit, third in the Kentucky Derby, by 10 lengths. The winner carried top weight of 124 pounds, conceding from 12 to 5 pounds to each of his rivals, and ran the distance in 1:41 2-5.

Closes at Even Money.

The race had a value to the winner of $7,050 and found Morfair receding in the betting from 3 to 5 to a closing at even money. The fact that Morfair has been known as a horse inclined to stop at distances beyond 6 furlongs and the condition of the track made many fear that his opposition would be too much for him.

The colt ran in the colors of J. V. [Sammy] Smith and after his game showing many expressed the opinion that he was one of the best 3 year olds in training.

Jockey's Goggles Cut Face.

The afternoon also saw an accident to Jockey W. West, who was unseated from the B. B. stable's Dorsays. West wears goggles while riding and the fall broke these, gashing his face painfully. Jockey D. Belizzi, who was astride Alfred Vanderbilt's Sue Jones in this race, was suspended for five days for rough riding.

decision. The Italian started slowly but improved as the fight wore on.

Ziglarski Beats Lang.

The taller and sturdier American entered the third round with a shade advantage, but caught too many swinging lefts to the head and missed too frequently in the last round. Lang won the first round with a series of straight rights to the head, and was able to keep the German out of close quarters, where Hans preferred the milling.

After starting the third round with his two snappy lefts to the head, Ziglarski circled the American collegian and jarred him with a couple more left swings, while Lang was trying ineffectively to connect with rights to the head.

In the first of the featherweight bouts Josef Schleinkofer of Germany scored a three round decision over Gaspare Alessandri of Italy. There were no knockdowns, but each managed to knock the other off balance in the third round.

Argentine Beats Swede.

The German team qualified a third boxer for the championship bouts when Erich Campe, welterweight, won a hard hitting battle from Bruno Ahlberg, a blue shirted, ruggedly built Finn, whose head did not reach far above Campe's shoulders. Ahlberg, who is a devastating infighter, pounded Campe to the stomach in all three rounds, but had to run the gauntlet of a lot of well placed straight rights and occasional hooks to work his way in close.

Judge Landis Maintains His Loud Silence

Veeck Has No Word.

William Veeck, Cub president, who Thursday had termed publication of the charges a cheap, cowardly trick, persisted in repeating that so far as the playing of baseball was concerned, he knew of nothing worth investigating.

"Has Landis at any time recently given you reason to believe he was on the trail of something?" the Cub chief was asked.

"There hasn't been a word of that kind mentioned," Veeck replied.

Veeck claimed he had made no effort to communicate with Landis during the day and that he hadn't received a call from the commissioner's office.

HORNSBY DEFENDS CUBS

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, commenting today on reports that Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, was conducting an investigation of charges that members o the team were "playing the horses" too freely, said that if the Chicago players bet on races it was "their business."

Hornsby asserted emphatically that betting had nothing to do with his being replaced as manager of the Cubs. He added that if Judge Landis started "banishing players or managers because they bet on race horses he'd disrupt the entire league."

All Clubs Bet, Says Rog.

"There isn't a club in the circuit that hasn't got players who bet or have bet on races," Hornsby said.

"If the Chicago players wanted to bet on horse races, they did it without asking me and that was their business. If I wanted to bet on races, I did, without asking the club officials, and that was my personal affair."

Cubs Will Win.

Asked if he thought the Cubs would win the pennant, Hornsby said: "Certainly they will win and I am tickled to death they've got back into first place. But the Cubs would have won the flag under me. I don't see why they think I did so poorly.

"Didn't I rebuild the Cubs with youngsters, make over an infield and outfield and develop Warneke into the best young pitcher in the league? And didn't I keep the club right in the running, even though Cuyler was out eight weeks, English out six weeks and Jurges out three weeks? Yes, I'd have won the championship. But so will the Cubs under Grimm, and if my stepping down helped any I'm glad of it."

Parker, Mako Battle Today for Net Title

Culver, Ind., Aug. 12.—[Special.]—Frank Parker, who began his tennis career six years ago as a ball boy on the courts of Milwaukee, will meet Gene Mako of California here tomorrow for the junior tennis championship of the United States.

Both entered the final bracket today with straight set victories. Parker, with an unruffled steadiness, overwhelmed Jay Cohn, 6—3, 6—2, while Mako found little opposition from Sam Lee, and won, 6—1, 6—0.

Kamrath Faces Leavens.

In the boys' division, where a battle has been raging all week, Bobby Kamrath, a tiny Texan, will face Donald Leavens of Mosinee, Wis., for the championship. Kamrath today eliminated Dunlap Cannon, 6—1, 6—0, and Leavens survived a three set match with Robert Riggs, 6—4, 1—6, 6—3.

Parker stood calmly on the base line today, cutting loose with all of the strokes in his repertoire to baffle Cohn, who was sent scurrying all over the court after a rain of corner placements.

Lee Easy for Mako.

Leavens, ranked second in the tournament draw, barely pulled into the finals of the boys' section. Robert Riggs, another member of the California delegation, slapping the ball across the net with a flat bounce, kept him on the run throughout the match. He lacked the steadiness of his opponent, however, and after tying the score in sets at 1-1, faltered long enough in the final for Leavens to crack his service and run out the match.

Clark Holds Lead Safe; Yields Four Hits.

New York, Aug. 12.—(AP)—William Watson Clark, Joe Stripp, and the rest of the Brooklyn Dodgers overcame a record equaling fielding performance by the Giants today to take the first game of the interborough series, 1 to 0, and to capture third place in the National league from the defeated Boston Braves.

The Dodgers rapped Fred Fitzsimmons and Sam Gibson for 12 hits, but could score only once in the fifth inning, as the Giants completed six double plays to equal the major league record. Clark yielded only four hits.

The record of six double plays was held jointly by the Giants, the Cincinnati Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National league, and the Philadelphia American association club, which first set the mark in 1889. Score:

Klein hit two homers, his 34th and 35th of the season, and the second came with the bases full in the fifth inning. Later Virgil Davis hit his 14th homer and Hal Lee his 16th, giving Philadelphia seven runs by the circuit drive method.

Indians Beat Tigers, 3-1, for 2d Place Tie

Cleveland, O., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Clint Brown's pitching enabled the Indians to hand Detroit its second straight defeat of the series, 3 to 1, and regain a tie for second place today.

Brown held the Tigers to six hits and kept them scoreless until the eighth when he yielded three safe hits. Since Philadelphia lost to Boston, the victory put the tribe on even terms with the Athletics in their battle for second place. The Indians made all their runs off Vic Sorrell in the third inning. Until the eighth the Tigers collected only two hits off Brown, then Schuble doubled to left and came home on Davis' single. Score:

DICK TRACY—Listening In

through. Then they will not have to run anybody out.

The American girls have been winning as the men have been yielding to the Japanese boys. Little Kitamura, the 14-year-old study-boy cracked another Olympic record in the semi-final of the 1500 meter free-style race and seemed to be loafing, for him, part of the distance. Koike, another student, who is only 16, did the same in the semi-final of the 200-meter breast stroke. Kitamura is one of the great men of the Olympic show and the answer to his record, giving with an air of resignation by Mr. Lou Handley, the rwimming coach, is merely that he swims the American way better then the Americans do.

Credit for Posing.

The girls, in their diving competition, do four dives apiece, two from the high platform, which is 33 feet above the water, and two from the low platform, about half way up. Now 33 feet is so high up in the air that when a lady or gent miscalculates the time and distance on the way down and hits the water a spank, the pain is felt to the fourth degree of kin, but the girls poise up there like bronze statues or show girls daubed with radiator gilt in a Parisian review, then sail out into space, spread their wings and spear the water with a little sound like "plup" as they hit. Not exactly "plup," either, but that will have to do. It is a sound as of something ripping.

They get credit for their posturing before the takeoff, for the grace and timeliness of their curlicues on the way down, for distance and for the manner in which they hit the water.

How They Scare 'Em.

From the lower level they give you a running swan dive and a back jack, which is the dive where you stand on the edge of the scaffold with your back to the water, then hop off, bend double, straighten out, and—"plup."

To judge the dives, seven officials sit in seven little cabanas or tents around the pool, each with a series of little wooden flags with numbers on them and as the girl plups, each official is supposed to reach out, pick up a flag and hold it for all to see. The number is his rating for that particular dive and the reason for putting the boys under glass, so to speak, is to prevent any one official's knowing what score another official is awarding. They are supposed to be invisible to one another, an idea which might work an improvement in the jury system as it compels each one to stand on his own judgment, if any. Under this system, no one good man and true could persuade another to hang the defendant merely because the time was getting late, because they couldn't get together to talk it over.

The scorers reject the highest and lowest numbers on the little flags, add the numbers on the others, divide that sum and—there is your score.

Nice Gate, Too.

They had about 12,000 customers for the diving, a very pretty show in themselves, what with all the colors that the girls are wearing for summer, and the Chinese parasols on sale for 50 cents apiece, arrayed in a bright jumble on the steep sunny slopes of the stadium. It used to be that way, in a small way, at the tennis shows at Forest Hills, and the customers probably have no idea how much they contribuite to the spectacles which they enjoy at such outings. A squint around the crowd, blurring out the details, creates an impression of a vast New England flower garden in full bloom. The customers at the swimming always cheer and never boo.

Georgia Coleman, the Los Angeles girl who finished second in the high dives, seems to have more of what you might call zip or ziggety to her diving. She is slightly more robust than the rest of the kids, and I wonder if it would be all right with the committee on deportment and bathing suits for me to suggest that she is also the most magnetic girl in the meet.

Miss Charlotte Epstein, the chaperone of the girls, was remarking about this the other day. Miss Epstein has had dealings with hundreds of girls, and Georgia Coleman is her champion of the world for sportsmanship, spunk and morale. Miss Coleman was the one who took Jane Faunts of Chicago aside between events at the pool the other day and diverted her mind from the grimness of sport by practicing a waltz clog duet.

The policemen's band plays marches between contests at the pool and when the competitive performance is over the Olympic boys and girls pad out the show by jumping joyously off into space, actually as though they care for this kind of thing.

But it is the girls' own show on the American side. Helene Madison of Seattle, big and slim and powerful, won the 100 meters free style, and Eleanor Holm, who was once scouted for Mr. Ziegfeld, the 100 meters backstroke. Then Georgia won the springboard dive, with Katherine Rawls second and Jane Faunts third, and along they came again to glide through the air from the upper stories and capture the first three places in the high dive.

Have I mentioned that they are all very pleasant to peer at?

COME ON, NOW, PUT ONE OVER

Japan Leads Olympic Swim by Ten Points

in the final two races on the program tomorrow there appeared little chance for the United States to save its team title of 1928, even though the high diving trio is expected to place one, two, three.

Miss Poynton, who placed third in the springboard diving championships at Amsterdam as a child of 12 years, turned in the best performances in each of the four dives, although she left the platform for each test in the fear that it might be her last attempt.

She was credited with 9.46 points in the running swan dive from the five meter stand; 9:46 for the standing swan from the 10 meter elevation; and then finished with 10.80 and 10.32 for a running swan dive from the ten meter platform and a jack-knife from the five meter height.

Miss Coleman's score was 25.56, with Miss Roper a close third at 25.22. Ingelborg Sjoquist of Sweden, the leading foreign entrant, was fourth with 24.52 points, followed by Ingrid Larsen of Denmark, with 21.96.

Win Relay Easily.

The 400 meter relay was just another workout for the four American girls. Miss McKin put the team off to a good lead, with Miss Johns, Mrs. Sayville, and Miss Madison increasing the advantage with every stroke. Holland's anchor swimmer was still half the length of the tank from home when Helene finished.

Promise was made of another Yankee victory in the 400 meter free style final tomorrow with three American mermaids in the finals, headed by Miss Madison, who has the world record of 5 minutes 31 seconds at which to shoot. Miss Madison probably will find her hardest race from Lenore Kight, Homestead, Pa., schoolgirl.

Summer Holds Beauty Carnival as Autumn Nears

BY BOB BECKER.

For the outdoor fan who goes afield in Chicagoland the nature calendar records some of the typical mid-August sights in the country.

Big, new strawstacks in the fields because the thrashers have been busy taking care of the grain crops. Nature has reached the floodtide of the summer's growth. From now on it is a steady retreat before the arrival of autumn. This is true of both plant and bird life. The birds are beginning to think about the fall migration.

Tall, gay colored sunflowers along the fence rows and in the field. You can't mistake this one. There are several species in northern Illinois but they resemble miniature garden sunflowers. The goldenrod is beginning its march along the roads and through the fields.

When you pass farmhouses with big barns look for a colony of barnswallows sitting on the telephone wires not far from the buildings. The other morning we counted four of such flocks on one road northwest of the loop. The robins are getting together. We have counted as high as 13 in one bunch feeding on a fairway of a golf course.

The voices of most of our bird songsters now are hushed. August is molting month.

We haven't heard the concerts of the brown thrashers for sometime. The wild cherry trees are loaded with fruit. Ripe, too. Early in the week we took time out on a golf course to eat some. We disturbed five robins that had been feasting in this tree.

Listen for the plaintive note of the bluebird. You may see a single bird perched on the telephone wires along a little-used gravel road. The beautiful American egrets still loaf on scattered ponds which have managed to resist August's usual drying up process. Here is a bird, white as snow, that outdoor lovers should not miss. They have come up since the nesting season and are now found west and northwest of the loop.

May apples—yellow and ripe on the stems of the mandrake. One can find them now in nearly every patch of woods around Chicago. Yellow and ripe is a theme song for nature. There now are yellow fields where grain has been harvested, yellow straw stacks, yellow flowers, even yellow fruit.

Americans Enter Saber Finals at Olympic Meet

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 12.—(AP)—John R. Huffman of the United States fencing team fought his way into the company of the traditional saber victors, the Hungarians, in today's semi-finals of the individual saber competition of the Olympic games. Qualifying among the ten men who will contest for the championship tomorrow, Huffman and Attila Petschauer and Andrew Kabos of Hungary led the pool in which they met, each winning six bouts out of eight. Norman C. Armitage of the United States was another survivor.

France Replaces Holland as Olympic Yacht Winner

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 12.—(AP)—France instead of Holland was awarded the Olympic games yachting title in the monotype class today as the result of a shift in point standings made in final disposition of a protest filed by Jacques Le Brun, French skipper, regarding an incident in the ninth race.

Pearce Keeps Single Sculls Olympic Title

Long Beach, Cal., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Demonstrating his complete mastery over the world's foremost amateur scullers, despite an unexpectedly strong challenge from his American rival, Henry Robert Pearce of Australia today captured the Olympic single sculls championship for the second straight time. Pearce thereby became the first oarsman in Olympic history to repeat in the solo event.

The powerful, rangy Australian, devouring the water of the Olympic lagoon with his long sweeping strokes, stood off the closing challenge of Bill Miller of Philadelphia, United States champion, to win the day's feature by three-quarters of a length, in the slow time of 7:44 2-5.

Four Championships Decided.

Four of the seven Olympic championships were decided during the afternoon, and the United States jumped into the lead for team honors by scoring its first victory in Olympic history in the final for pair-oared boats, with coxswain, when two powerful young Philadelphia boys from the Penn A. C., Charley Keiffer and Joe Schauers, with the veteran Ed Jennings steering, scored a decisive victory over Poland, with France third and Brazil last.

Great Britain and Germany divided the day's other honors. The veteran British pair-oared combination, Clive and Edwards, without coxswain, beat New Zealand, Poland, and Holland handily after Germany's four oared boat with coxswain came from behind with a sensational closing spurt to nip Poland by a foot in the most exciting race of the afternoon.

With four titles decided, the American oarsmen led with 15 points, scored unofficially on a 10-5-4-3 basis for the finalists in each race. Poland and Great Britain were tied for second with 13 each, while Australia had 10, thanks to Pearce's victory, Germany the same, and New Zealand 8.

California Eight Races Today.

The regatta will be completed tomorrow with the University of California's undefeated crew, representing the United States, battling Canada and Great Britain in the feature event for eight oared boat loads. This race is scheduled for 7:20 p. m., Chicago daylight saving time, after the finals for the double scullers and the four oared, without coxswain.

The Americans are one of three college crews in the big race. Italy's blue shirts are from Pisa university and champions of their country. The British entry is the same that rowed victoriously for Cambridge university against Oxford last spring. Canada's color bearers are from the Leander club of Hamilton.

Chicago Golf Faces Busiest Week of Year

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

If the current week has been a busy one in Chicago golf, the forthcoming one promises to be one of the most crowded and interesting of the season. The outstanding event will be presented Tuesday, when fifty-four players will seek the fourteen places allotted to Chicago in the local trials for the national amateur tournament at Bryn Mawr. Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge, who led the Chicago field home in last year's sectional elimination, will be present to defend the honors in the 36 hole medal play over the Morton Grove layout.

The Illinois women's state championship will hold the stage the entire week, from Monday to Saturday, at the new Waveland avenue course of the Lincoln Park Golf club. The qualifying round will open at nine o'clock Monday morning, with match play starting Tuesday and ending Saturday with a 36 hole final match. Among the advance entries are Mrs. V. S. Cooper, defending titleholder; Mrs. Rose Marshall, Cook County champion; Mrs. Rose Long, city parks champion; Miss Marge Roesslein, and Mrs. Harry Langer.

Caddies to Have Tourney

Monday's events include the annual caddies' tournament of the Chicago District Golf association, to be decided at the Oak Park Country club, and the regular weekly pro-amateur tournament of the Illinois P. G. A. at Techney Fields.

On Tuesday Mission Hills will present an innovation in its first annual Little Parade, a new event open to all women golfers in the district. Olympia Fields and Ruth Lake will hold their annual Frolic and Tally-Ho invitational tournaments Tuesday, also.

Wednesday offers more golf in one day than Chicago has seen in a month, what with four invitational tournaments and an exhibition match. In the latter Tommy Armour and Joe Sturm, Glenbard professional, will meet George and Warren Dawson of Glen Oak, in an eighteen hole match at Glenbard. Prior to the match Armour will give a demonstration and lecture.

500 Enter Medinah Meet

Of the invitational tournaments on Wednesday, Medinah's fifth annual Camel Trail will be the largest, more than 500 entries having been received already. The North Shore Silver Tassel will offer golfers a chance to play over the scene of next year's national open championship. The thirteenth annual Old Boys' tournament at Exmoor and the Bunker Hill Frolic complete Wednesday's schedule.

The Prosperity club will hold its regular tournament at Medinah Thursday and on Friday and Saturday Glen Oak will hold its sixteenth annual Roundup, one of the few two day invitational tournaments in the district.

Entries for the thirty-second annual amateur tournament of the Western Golf association, to be decided at the Rockford Country club, Rockford, Ill., Aug. 22 to 27, inclusive, close Monday with Henry C. Bartholomay, secretary of the association, 175 West Jackson bouleward. Entries already received include those of Don Moe of Portland, Ore., defending champion; Robert Cutting of Hinsdale, vice president of the United States Golf association; Chick Evans of Edgewater; Billy Sixty and Gordon Kummer of Milwaukee; Dick Martin of Sunset Valley, district amateur champion; Art Sweet of Ridgemoor, Hank Bowbeer of Riverside, and Ira Couch, R. J. Daly, and John Van Nortwick of Chicago Golf.

Eastern buying orders for hogs increased again yesterday and contributed to the impetus of the market. The top price advance 10c to $5.15, making the highest mark since July 25.

This price is within 40c of the high point of the year and 25c above last Saturday's best price. The general average gained 5c, going to $4.50, which compares with $4.25 at the close of last week. The daily average cost of hogs has moved up 5c on every session since last Saturday. Prevailing quotations are $1.35@1.85 above the low spot in May. Shippers called for better than 20 per cent of yesterday's hog receipts, but encountered plenty of local competition for top classes and were unable to fill out. Buying quickly converged in light and light butchers at the opening with the result that a fairly large supply of packing grades and extremely heavy butchers accumulated and weakened the market for these in mid-session. Prices in the latter classes drifted back to Thursday's level and at the close some local interests reported a slight saving in places. Receipts of hogs have been light all week. The total at Chicago estimating today's supply, is expected to land around 100,000, the smallest weekly total since July 9.

Cattle Action Unusually Good.

The Friday action in the cattle yards was unusually good. Spots were slightly higher in butcher stock and a few steer sales were a little better, considering the quality of the supply. As a rule the Friday clean-up markets are slow, draggy affairs in which it is hard to locate a buyer sufficiently interested to take on stock in face of the prospects of carrying it over the week-end.

Only 1,000 head put in an appearance, making the five day total 29,400, one of the smallest in many years for this season. There have been very few weekly totals below 30,000 in recent years, barring an occasional holiday period. Steers are closing 25@50c above a week ago, with butcher stock showing a similar gain.

Calves have moved up 50@75c. The best steers available yesterday stopped at $9.00, with the bulk at $6.00@7.90. The cattle market this week, as a whole, stands highest since last November, barring one week.

Shippers Buy 37 Per Cent.

Outside buyers were in the lamb market again yesterday and prices advanced to the highest point of the week. On Thursday's session shippers bought 5,182 head at Chicago, 37 per cent of the day's arrivals. Representatives of packing houses in New York were the most aggressive on the bulge. New York Veal, J. J. Harrington, A. Levi, Straus & A., New York Butchers, the Nagle Packing company, and A. Aaron, all New York interests who were out of the Chicago market for several weeks, have been the principal buyers here the last two days. Their purchases account for 60 per cent of the buying on shipping account. Twenty-seven carloads of range lambs were sorted to packers and shippers yesterday at $6.00@6.25, the highest prices of the week. Natives sold to packers and shippers up to $6.25, with a few head hand picked at $6.50. Lambs are closing 25c above a week ago. This advance has come in face of some of the largest receipts in three months. Offerings, however, are below average for this season of the year.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 200 cattle, 4,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep, against 229 cattle, 8,470 hogs, and 2,402 sheep the previous Saturday and 245 cattle, 3,250 hogs, and 2,921 sheep a year ago.

ILLINOIS TURN IN EMPLOYMENT OCCURS IN JUNE

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Employment in Illinois had begun to show signs of stabilizing in June just about the time securities and commodities were at their low point and pessimism was worst, according to figures released yesterday by the Illinois department of labor in its monthly labor bulletin.

The number of persons employed, according to the department's indexes, declined only six-tenths of one per cent from May to June this year. In the corresponding period last year there was a drop of one per cent, and the decline from May to June, 1930, was nearly two per cent.

In a number of Illinois cities employment was already improving in June, the labor bulletin says.

Eleven manufacturing industries in Quincy reported increases over the preceding month of 7.3 per cent in employment and 10.7 per cent in pay rolls. The metals and the clothing and millinery groups in that city reported gains in both employment and pay rolls. Stone, clay and glass and printing and paper goods groups increased total wage payments.

Gain in Rock Island.

In Rock Island nine factories increased employment 4.9 per cent and pay rolls 7.5 per cent, thereby compensating partially for losses of 13.3 per cent in employment and 11.3 per cent in pay rolls during the preceding month.

Twelve factories in Springfield reported a drop of 2.6 per cent in the number of workers employed but a 4.7 per cent gain in the pay rolls.

The smaller drop in employment from May to June this year is considered especially heartening because in preceding months this year the decline had been exceptionally sharp. The curtailment of factory operations during the first half of this year, both in Chicago and in the rest of the state, has been greater than curtailment during the corresponding period of either of the two preceding years.

In June, for the second consecutive month this year, Chicago factories reported a more moderate percentage decline than did factories throughout the rest of the state.

Slip in Chicago.

Earlier this year employment in Chicago had been slipping faster than elsewhere in Illinois. The state labor department's indexes show declines of 12.9 per cent in employment and 26.7 per cent in pay rolls of Chicago factories since December, 1931. Similar indexes for the rest of the state show declines of 7.2 per cent in employment and 20 per cent in pay rolls.

The labor department presents no figures covering the period since July 1. The Illinois Chamber of Commerce, however, yesterday reported that a canvass of industries in the state indicated that business was "in a much improved frame of mind."

"Merchandising events," the organization states, "are well patronized, signifying renewed interest in buying on the part of the consumers. Many important Illinois factories report increased volume of orders and a decided change for the better in sentiment."

Coal Mine Opening Cheers.

Reopening of the coal mines as a result of the adjusted wage scale was found to be cheering up Springfield and other downstate cities considerably. Several industries in the state capital, including the Springfield Boiler company, the Allis-Chalmers company, Baker Manufacturing company, and the Posten-Springfield Brick company were reported to be adding employes and obtaining orders which would run them for several months.

Cairo reported conditions improved, due to the employment of about 650 persons during the last month. Champaign said "three new store fronts have been built and two more are being built." Several local manufacturing plants and two wholesale grocers in Danville reported betted volume of business.

Rockford was encouraged by a slight increase in orders at factories and some upturn in retail activity since Aug. 1.

Higher Income Levies Help Tax Exempts

BY SCRUTATOR.

Almost every week or two for the last few months the United States treasury department has announced large offerings of new securities, both for refunding purposes and to provide funds for the various relief measures voted by congress. Invariably Secretary Mills has reported heavy oversubscriptions. His announcements have been broadcast as indicating confidence in the soundness of government finance.

There is, however, another reason for these large oversubscriptions, which have been particularly evident in the last two months. It is the flight of capital from productive investments into tax exempt securities as the result of the onerous income taxes that went into effect late in June. These taxes range from 16 per cent on a taxable income of $20,000 to 63 per cent on such incomes exceeding $1,000,000.

Boosts Other "Tax Exempts."

Other evidence of this transfer of capital lies in reports of a better market for municipal bonds, which are also tax exempt. But the taxpayers of many municipalities recently have realized that bonds mean higher taxes and have shut down on large additional issues in their revolt against excessive taxation. This, together with greater safety, has accentuated the demand for exempt government issues.

There are now about 23 billion dollars of wholly tax exempt securities outstanding, represented by around 15 billions of bonds of states, counties, cities, etc., more than six billions of United States government securities and nearly two billions in federal farm loan obligations. In addition the federal government has several billion dollars of partially tax exempt securities outstanding.

In view of the new income taxes and the availability of such a vast amount of tax exempt or partially exempt securities, is it any wonder that wealthy investors have turned their funds into them? Let's see how it works out.

Helps to Equalize Interest.

An investor whose taxable income is $20,000 can get as much return from a tax exempt bond yielding 3¾ per cent as from a taxable bond yielding 4.46 per cent, also as much from a 5 per cent exempt bond as from a 5.95 per cent taxable bond. However, the discrepancy increases greatly as the investor's income mounts.

An investor whose taxable income is $50,000 can get as much return from a tax exempt bond yielding 3¾ per cent as from a taxable bond yielding 5.43 per cent, also as much from a 5 per cent exempt bond as from a 7.25 per cent taxable bond.

Finally, an investor whose taxable income exceeds $1,000,000 can get as much return from a tax exempt bond yielding 3¾ per cent as from a taxable bond yielding 10.14 per cent, also as much from a 5 per cent exempt bond as from a 13.51 per cent taxable bond.

While few of the tax exempt government obligations afford a yield of 3¾ per cent, still the return is roughly comparable to the above figures. However, there are plenty of municipal obligations that yield 3¾ per cent and more. But taxable bonds of any degree of soundness that afford yields of 10 and 13 per cent are practically nonexistent.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company sales for the four weeks ended July 30 were $64,238,819, as against $77,027,658 in the like period last year, a decrease of 16.6 per cent. Sales expressed in tonnage were 397,468, as against 413,726 in the corresponding period last year, a decrease of 3.9 per cent. Sales for the twenty weeks ended July 30 without consideration of any change in the number of stores during the year, totaled $384,015,295, as against $447,191,874 in the like period of 1931, a decrease of 14.1 per cent. Estimated tonnage sales were 2,309,155, as against 2,420,266, a decrease of 4.6 per cent.

General American Tank Car Has 6 Months' Profit

General American Tank Car corporation reported for the first six months of 1932 net profit of $769,000, after taxes and charges, equivalent to $1.02 a share on 751,638 no par common shares outstanding, compared with net profit of $2,475,000, or $3.02 a share on 818,833 shares then outstanding.

For the second quarter of 1932 net was $390,000, or 52 cents a share, against $379,000, or 50 cents a share, in the first quarter and $1,271,000, or $1.55 a share, in the June, 1931, quarter.

SASKATCHEWAN RELIEF DEBTS MAY BE PAID IN WHEAT AT 70 CTS.

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Under the wheat scheme whereby the Saskatchewan government will accept until November all grain at pegged prices in payment of relief debts, announcement was made today that wheat will be taken at 70 cents a bushel.

The pegged price of 70 cents will be on the basis of No. 1 northern at Fort William. Oats will be pegged at 34 cents per bushel for No. 2 C. W.; barley, 3 C. W., 41 cents; rye, 42 cents, and flax, $2 cents.

At the same time that arrangements were being made to carry out the new policy for the repayment of debts incurred under the Saskatchewan relief commission, Premier J. T. M. Anderson was considering proposals of the Saskatchewan wheat pool for the establishment of a national wheat marketing board. Under that plan, the national board would be established for the handling of this season's crop.

Western premiers were to have discussed the proposals tomorrow, but with the time limited in which to get delegates here the conference has been postponed. It will be held at Calgary now on Aug. 15.

BANKERS FORM GIANT POOL FOR BOND FINANCING

BY AL CHASE.

Approximately twenty million dollars, most of which, it is said, may be supplied by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, is to be made available for reorganization loans aimed to clear up Chicago's present muddled real estate bond situation, as a result of the formation yesterday of a $1,500,000 corporation by three big loop financial institutions. The capital of this new nonprofit corporation to be known as the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company, will be furnished by the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, the First National bank and the Chicago Title and Trust company.

Bankers on Its Board.

George H. Dovenmuehle, vice president of Dovenmuehle, Inc., is president of the new corporation. William G. Lodwick, president of the George M. Forman Realty trust, is vice president and general counsel. The directors include the officers and Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company; W. C. Carroll Jr. of the same concern; Craig B. Hazelwood and Louis K. Boysen, vice presidents of the First National bank, and D. R. Lewis and Leroy Pape of the Continental Illinois.

As about 60% of the cash necessary for refinancing Chicago's defaulted bond issues is said to be needed to pay up back taxes, approximately $12,000,000 of the contemplated $20,000,000 to be loaned for realty bond reorganizations should go into the city, county and state treasuries and be put back into circulation through public pay rolls. This is the prospect held out by the bankers promoting the new project.

Will Control Fees.

Probably the most outstanding feature of the new corporation, which already has received a rather imposing list of applications for cash from various bond committees and mortgage firms, will be its power to put the brakes on the ever mounting fees which some committees and attorneys have saddled on the bondholders.

Every dollar loaned to a bondholders' protective committee or to a mortgage bond house for reorganization purposes will have to be accounted for by the borrower. There'll be no $75,000 fees, such as one well known attorney recently charged as a part of his startling bill to be paid by the bondholders. Plans are under way for a conservative fee schedule which will block racketeering law firms from loading the reorganization bond craft with fees just as it starts to sail into solvency.

"The seriousness of the local situation and the possibilities awaiting the new corporation are indicated by the fact that in Cook county mortgages and real estate bonds totaling approximately $1,000,000,000 were in foreclosure at the beginning of 1932," said President Dovenmuehle. "This has a distressing effect on rental values, which in turn is responsible for additional defaults, further retarding the market for real estate and real estate securities.

Will Break the Jam.

"Real estate bondholders clamor for some return from the properties which are securities for their bonds. Many required changes and improvements on properties are not being made. The operations of the new company will enable the lending of money to get buildings out of receivership and it will hasten the day when owners of securities can realize on their holdings. It'll break the financial log jam that has stagnated the local real estate market."

The Fort Dearborn Mortgage company, which will open for business in the Bankers' building next Monday morning, will operate at cost, plus a small reserve against possible losses. The policy of the company, it is stated, will be to lend money at cost.

It was pointed out that under the company's operating plans, through loans made to various reorganization agencies, receiverships in many cases can be terminated, management set up without hampering restrictions and an important start made toward the distribution among security holders of funds they've been waiting for.

Lack of cash has held in abeyance the conclusion of long pending foreclosure proceedings. Now these can be completed, titles cleared and new securities issued to those interested in the buildings.

It is expected that the Central Republic Bank and Trust company will purchase stock in the new corporation and perhaps other large banks will follow suit.

B. & O. Hopes to Pay Half of $63,250,000 Soon

New York, Aug. 12.—The names and addresses of large holders of $63,250,000 4½ per cent convertible bonds maturing March 1, 1933, are being sought by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

The railroad would discuss a proposal to meet the maturities before the end of this year with a payment of half the face value in cash and the remainder with new bonds. It was understood the plan would depend on a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

WILLARD REPORTED READY WITH EASIER RAIL MERGER PLAN

New York, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The Herald-Tribune says Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, has proposed a plan by which consolidation of eastern railroads could be achieved within several months.

The proposal, which the newspaper says has been broached to several members of the interstate commerce commission, would permit the trunk lines to establish effective control without further expenditures over the railroads allocated to them in the four system consolidation program announced by the commission last month.

Willard suggests that the commission authorize the appointment of instructed directors representing the trunk lines to the boards of those assigned railroads whose control has not yet been assumed by the trunk lines because of depleted treasuries.

Otherwise the trunk lines will have to follow the customary procedure of acquiring control, such as outright purchases of stock or exchange of holdings and wait for a more propitious capital market.

REO MOTOR CAR JUNE QUARTER ENDS WITH LOSS

Reo Motor Car company reported consolidated net loss of $586,905 for the June quarter, as against net loss of $151,451 in the like 1931 period.

Sales of vehicles and parts aggregated $3,151,836, compared with $5,691,997 a year ago.

The B. F. Goodrich company had a profit from operations of $1,022,000 for the first six months this year and not a loss of that amount as was previously reported. The company did, however, have a net loss of $710,000 for the period after write-down of inventory of cotton and rubber to market prices as of June 30. This compared with a net loss of $288,000 in the first six months of 1931.

Seeks New World Pact for the Nitrate Industry

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 12.—M. B. G. Whelpley of Guggenheim Brothers, who has returned to New York from a visit abroad, said today that as a result of negotiations in Europe among all producers of nitrates other than those in the United States, a much better understanding has been reached among the various interests in that industry. He said he felt much encouraged. The Chilean ambassador to the court of St. James participated with Whelpley in the nitrate conference and Whelpley will go to Chile before making an announcement.

INCREASE IN U. S. CURRENCY IS GIVEN LIMIT OF 3 YEARS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—A ruling against any permanent expansion of the currency under the Glass-Borah rider to the home loan bank law was issued today by Attorney General Mitchell. He held that all currency issued against bonds given the circulation privilege by the legislation "must be retired in an appropriate manner" three years from the date of enactment, July 22.

The maximum expansion possible under the law has been estimated at $1,000,000,000. In the opinion requested by the treasury department, the attorney general said: "I find nothing in the legislative history which indicates that it was the purpose of congress . . . to provide for a permanent expansion of the currency beyond the three year period."

Mr. Mitchell observed that the language of the act left some doubt whether its three year limitation requires "that the circulation privilege of bonds deposited pursuant to that section shall cease three years after the date of the enactment of the act or whether the act merely means that after three years no more of such bonds may be deposited and accorded the circulation privilege, without, however, affecting the circulating privilege of bonds deposited within the three year period."

New U. S. Loan Groups Form to Aid Farmers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—The directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation met today with nearly 100 live stock farmers and dealers, Secretary Hyde, and members of the United States farm board to plan for a system of agricultural credit corporations, provided for under the emergency relief bill.

No definite action was taken, but one conferee said he believed the system would be in operation within a week or ten days.

The regional credit corporations are to be set up by the finance corporation within those federal land bank districts where they are found to be needed.

To Lend Farmers Funds.

Through them farmers and live stock men may borrow funds for agricultural purposes when other credit sources will not accommodate them. The regional corporations are to be under the direct supervision of the finance corporation. All paper taken by those new corporations as collateral may be discounted by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Each of the regional corporations is to have a minimum capital of $3,000,000, to be subscribed for by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Among the live stock men at today's meeting were two Chicagoans, Charles Wilson, president of the Live Stock exchange, and Frank H. Connor of the John Clay company, live stock commission dealers. Both of them said the sentiment among those present today was in favor of locating the regional corporations in the large live stock centers.

Expect One in Chicago.

Both predicted that one of the agencies would be established in Chicago, as requested by George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Most of those present today, they said, urged the directors of the Finance corporation to set the interest rate on loans by the regionals at the current rate in the district in whichc the regional was operating.

Meanwhile another federal loan agency, the new home loan bank board, also was striving to get its machinery in operation. Chairman Franklin W. Fort, following a conference with Representative Leonidas C. Dyer [Rep., Mo.], said while no final decision has been reached, he and the other members of the board have come to a virtual agreement that the home loan banks will not be located in the federal reserve cities. Mr. Fort indicated that he wishes to avoid any possibility that the home loan bank system be merged with the federal reserve system.

Loan Awaits Recognition.

MOSCOW, Aug. 12.—(AP)—An authoritative denial was issued today of reports published in New York that soviet Russia contemplates floating a bond issue in the United States.

The soviet government has not attempted to market any domestic loan in America or other foreign countries, it was said, nor does it intend to try to do so so long as there is no official relationship between the two countries.

It was supposed that the reports in New York arose from the fact that a recent domestic loan issued to finance the last year of the five-year plan contained a provision that the bonds might be purchased in foreign currency and would draw interest in the same currency at the regular rate of ten per cent.

America's Gold Stock Shows $2,573,100 Increase

New York, Aug. 12.—(AP)—America's stock of monetary gold increased $2,573,100 today. There was an importation of $101,700 from Mexico and a net gain of $1,000,400 through release of metal from foreign earmark. San Francisco received $1,471,000 in gold from China.

LIQUOR SHARES BOOM IN CANADIAN MARTS ON HOOVER'S SPEECH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 12.—There was a wild scramble on Canadian stock exchanges today for liquor stocks, following President Hoover's statements last night, in his acceptance speech, expressing necessity of a change in the prohibition law. Canada feels it will benefit, at least for a few years, if liquor is restored to the American people as it takes several years to mature the best hard liquors. Such matured stock would not be available in adequate quantities from American distilleries.

New highs were scored on all the liquor stocks at both Montreal and Toronto stock markets. Canadian Industrial Alcohol, makers of whiskies, ryes, and gins, sold at $2.50, whereas earlier in the year it sold down to 50 cents a share. Distillers Seagrams, big liquor interest, soared to 7⅞, which compares with a low of 3½ recently. Walker jumped to 7½, whereas a few weeks before the big conventions and definite moves toward prohibition changes it sold at 2¾. Thousands of shares changed hands.

BULL MOVEMENT MEETS SETBACK IN TRADING HERE

The young bull movement encountered a setback on the Chicago exchange yesterday with leading shares losing from a fraction to two points or more. While the reaction was not severe the net losses were as great as sustained during the current movement.

The volume of trading declined as the market turned down—a development which is usually regarded as favorable. Sales totaled 90,000 shares. All classes of shares followed the general trend. Borg-Warner and Bendix were lower, as were Union Carbide and U. S. Gypsum.

Commonwealth Edison was 3 points higher in the early trading but its advantage was sacrificed in the late realizing. The final quotation represented a one point net loss.

Trading here in National Electric Power preferred and A shares has been suspended temporarily because of the discontinuance of Chicago transfer agent and registrar. Polymet Manufacturing shares have also been suspended under the same ruling.

The exchange yesterday approved the application of the Iowa Electric Light and Power company to list $2,250,000 principal amount 7 per cent notes, due serially to Aug. 1, 1935. Trading on a when, as, and if issued basis to begin today.

With Bins Full, Coffee Users Face Famine

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 12.—With less than a month's supply of coffee in storage in the leading coffee importing centers of the United States, the coffee drinkers of this country are threatened with a coffee famine, although the Brazilian state of Sao Paulo is full of coffee and the Grain Stabilization corporation has more than a million bags which it acquired in exchange for wheat.

This possibility of an actual shortage of coffee confronts the American people because the government of Brazil has had all the ports of Sao Paulo closed since July 11 due to revolutionary activities in that state.

The resulting embargo on exports has shut off for a month shipments of coffee from the great coffee shipping port of Santos, and the Brazilian coffee which takes its name from that port is the kind necessary for the blends most favored by American coffee drinkers.

Kinds of Coffee.

Santos coffee is known as "soft." The other coffees from Brazil are called "hards," and "milds" is the general classification for coffees from other countries—Colombia, Venezuela, Central America, Mexico, Java, Abyssinia, and Arabia.

This country's normal consumption of all coffees is around 1,000,000 bags a month—132 pounds to the bag—and chief ports receiving coffee now have in storage only about 700,000 bags.

Brazilian coffee figures show that New York holds 180,000 bags and New Orleans 355,000 bags. The figures for "milds" are as follows: New York, 286,000 bags; New Orleans, 29,000 bags; San Francisco, 26,000 bags.

None of the 1,050,000 bags of Brazilian coffee held by the Grain Stabilization corporation becomes available until next month, and then only at the rate of 62,500 bags a month, due to the terms of the agreement made by the corporation in exchanging wheat for coffee.

Situation More Acute.

So the situation grows more acute each day, what with America consuming coffee steadily and Brazil shipping a greatly reduced quantity. As to how long American coffee drinkers can have their regular cups if the Brazilian embargo keeps up depends in part on the invisible supplies in the hands of roasters when the embargo went into effect. Coffee importers and roasters realize that another month of closed ports in Sao Paulo would produce a highly uncomfortable position for all concerned.

Since the Brazilian embargo went into effect the price of green Santos has risen from 9⅞ to 11½ cents in this country.

Bright Spots in Business News

First application for a loan under the Reconstruction Finance corporation's recent offer to stimulate employment on the railroads by financing repairs or construction of equipment was announced by the Pennsylvania railroad. The road will seek $2,000,000 for the construction of 1,500 freight cars, thereby providing work for about 1,400 men.

The manufacturing plants of the Richardson & Boynton company at Buffalo, N. Y., Dover, N. J., and Utica, N. Y., have resumed operations, reëmploying several hundred persons.

Substantial reductions in operating expenses are reflected in a report by the Spiegel, May Stern Company, Inc. For the first six months of this year the net operating loss amounted to $320,914, as compared with $781,469 in the comparable period last year.

Chevrolet Motor company showed a gain of 13.7 per cent in the first six months of this year over the same period of 1931 in the sales of fleet cars and trucks for commercial use, according to H. J. Klingler, vice president and general sales manager.

Buying of lead is reported in fair volume with the price unchanged at 3.10 cents a pound in New York. Zinc is slightly easier at 2.75 cents a pound, compared with a previous level of 2.75 to 2.80 cents.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 12.—Wall street's prosperity show finally slowed down today. The reaction, which the street has been saying was long overdue, overtook the stock market in the early dealings and bore it down, with gathering momentum, for almost the whole of the five hour trading session.

Favorites of the upturn were knocked down. Case Threshing Machine, which has been running the shorts dizzy, took a tumble of 13½ points. Auburn crashed 12, American Telephone 7, and American Can 6½ points. Losses of 4 and 5 points or more were suffered by such late stars as Allied Chemical, American Tobacco, Atchison, Brooklyn Union Gas, Coca-Cola, Columbian Carbon, International Harvester, New York Central, United States Steel, Western Union, Union Pacific, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, and others.

Suffers Sharp Decline.

It was the worst of the nine distinct halts suffered by the bull movement since it made its bid on July 9 and served to erase many millions from the paper profits which followers of the recovery have been so joyously running up in anticipation of that long anticipated business turn.

Bull leaders, while expectant of a "technical correction" of some sort in the market after its sensational and prolonged efforts on the upside, were disappointed and chagrined at the scope and abruptness of the reaction. It was about the nearest approach to an old fashioned selling storm witnessed in many months. Everybody seemed bent on getting out of the market, so lately so attractive, and all appeared determined to do it at once. The result was a veritable stampede.

Trading Shows Increase.

Usually when the market is in a mood to play with the bulls, volume dries up on a selling wave. Today it grew greater the more prices slipped. The turnover approximated 3,700,000 shares.

The "shakeout" seemed to have its basis in the common conviction that President Hoover's acceptance speech, particularly his views on economies and the prohibition question had been sufficiently discounted by the sharp advances of the last two weeks. The sharp drop in wheat prices and the downturn in cotton brought recurring waves of fresh selling orders.

Constructive forces made a determined effort to apply the breaks around midday and succeeded for a time in giving the leaders an upward slant, but their success was short-lived. The final hour marked the heaviest selling of the day and closing prices almost without exception were the worse of the day.

Rail Shares Hit.

Railroad shares, which have been vying with the farm implement group for market leadership during the last two or three days since the railway executives began their conference here, were particularly hard hit today. Selling in Atchison, New York Central, Union Pacific and other issues which have been out in front was particularly heavy. Norfolk and Western was off nearly 6 points from its previous close.

Utility shares offered about the best group resistance to the selling pressure and up to the middle of the afternoon Consolidated Gas was holding out with a loss of only a fraction. The close, however, found it off 3¼, with Peoples Gas down 4½, Public Service of New Jersey off 4¼. Such issues as Standard Gas, American Water Works, Pacific Lighting and the like fell 1 to 3 points or more.

In the oil division, Standard of New Jersey receded 2½ points, dragging the rest of the group back with it. The mail order favorites, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward, surrendered 3 and 2 points, respectively, on their recent gains.

PROFIT TAKING CUTS PRICES IN WHEAT MARKET

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

With the good news out of the way in the shape of President Hoover's announcement as to his stand on the prohibition question, longs in wheat started to take profits on recent purchases yesterday and disclosed a decidedly weak technical position.

The selling movement was enhanced by market rumors saying the economic conference now in session at Ottawa, Canada, had agreed on a 2c per bu preferential tariff on the empire's wheat imported into Great Britain.

A dispatch to THE TRIBUNE from Ottawa last night said:

"No decision has been reached as yet, but it has been reported that Canada has asked for a duty of 6 cents a bushel on wheat, with a 3 cent differential in favor of Canadian grain. It is unlikely that negotiations between Britain and Canada will be concluded before next week."

Wheat Suffers Early Break.

Wheat broke 2c per bu shortly after the opening with the December touching 56¾c, with some stop loss orders uncovered on the way down. However, the market received good support on the break from holders of bids, and later there was aggressive eastern buying which lifted prices to around 58c.

There was not the active public buying in wheat on the way up which has been such a factor in the market of late, and a reaction started as soon as the concentrated buying ceased. The decline gradually gained momentum with a new lot of stop loss orders uncovered when the price dropped to a new low for the day and the close was at the bottom with net losses of 2¼@2¾c.

December wheat touched 56c at the last and finished at that figure to ⅛c over, while the September was 2¾@52⅝c, and the May 60⅛@60⅝c. There was considerable comment on the floor toward the last regarding President Hoover's acceptance speech and his reference to agriculture, the claim being made that the statements could not be reconciled with the conditions prevailing.

The traders figure that on the basis on latest estimates the United States had around 300,000,000 bu of wheat available for export during the current season, which started July 1, and the slowness with which the grain has been sold abroad has been freely commented on of late by trade leaders.

Big Recent Advances.

Technically the wheat market was generally regarded as having been in a weak position, and in no condition to withstand any increase in the selling pressure. December had advanced 11⅝c from the recent low to the high of Monday and the short interest had been materially reduced in consequence. The rally which occurred late Thursday after a break also added further weakness to the situation, as the trade saw it. Liverpool December was ¼c under Chicago at the time the English market closed, and net losses abroad were 1@1⅛c per bu.

The continent was reported during the day as showing much more interest in Canadian cash wheat and sales of 600,000 to 700,000 bu were reported in all positions, largely via Vancouver. Winnipeg was affected by this business to some extent and closed 1¼@1½c lower, failing to fully reflect the decline in Chicago, although there was some buying there against sales here by spreaders. December in the Canadian market closed at 60⅝c in Canadian funds, equal to around 52⅝c in gold, or about 3½c under the same future in Chicago.

Country Sells Cash Corn.

Aggressive buying of corn futures by several leading commission houses combined with reports of a better cash demand caused a rally of 1¼@1½c after an early break which carried the September to 33c. At the latter figure it was possible to book considerable cash grain to arrive which had been held at 25c per bu net to the farmer, and hedging pressure and the weakness in wheat caused a sharp decline. The finish, while within a fraction of the inside figure of the day showed net losses of 1¼@1⅝c. September closed at 31⅝@31¾c; December, 33⅛@33¼c; and May, 37⅞c.

Aggregate purchases of cash corn by local handlers during the day were finally placed at 185,000 bu, while the eastern trade bought 114,000 bu. The relative strength shown in corn as compared with wheat caused considerable comment in the trade, as crop reports in the last few days have been generally favorable. It is believed, however, that the relatively high price for hogs is having considerable influence on corn. The average price of hogs in Chicago yesterday was $4.50, or about 14 times that of September corn, while it is usually figured that a 10 to 1 difference makes it profitable to feed freely.

Hedging pressure had a depressing effect on oats, as did the late weakness in wheat. Closing trades were at net losses of ¼@⅜c with September 17c, December 19⅝c, and May 22¼c. There was buying of September against sales of December at 2½c difference.

BUTTER FUTURES WEAKER

Bearish storage news carried butter futures lower again on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. November dropped sharply early, but recovered part of the loss and closed ¼c lower. August was off 5c. October eggs declined 4c early, but closed unchanged. The four markets reported the butter shortage reduced 300,000 lbs, while receipts remained heavier than last year. The news prompted profit taking and fairly active new selling, but new buying and covering came in at the close, holding prices slightly above the day's low. Egg news also was less favorable, the four markets taking out 1,400 cases less than last year. Better buying appeared near the close, however. Hesitancy appeared in both markets, due to the fact that the monthly storage estimate was to appear after the close. Sales: Butter, 102 cars; eggs, 55 cars. Prices follow:

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed easy at declines of 5 to 10 points under liquidation and commission house selling promoted by the weakness of grains, stocks and cotton, which offset the firmness of hogs and lard. Consumption in July, according to the census bureau, was 250,343 barrels, against 250,139 in June and 216,693 last year, and for the season 3,250,166 barrels, against 3,867,597 last season. Crude oil was 3⅜c bid in Texas and 3¼c nominal in the southeast and the valley. Sales were 21 contracts or 3,150 barrels. Bleachable spot closed 4.20c; September, 4.45c; December, 4.58c; January, 4.60c; March, 4.71c.

Buying of January lard was sufficient to advance prices to $5.07½, a new high for the season, but it reacted 5c and closed unchanged to 2½c higher for the entire list. Liverpool lard was 3@6d higher, the spot market leading. Trading in bellies was light for futures, but good for the cash articles. Cash trade generally is a seasonal average. Export clearances of lard were 924,450 lbs, and of bacon 73,500 lbs. Hog prices advanced to new highs on the present upturn, the top being $5.15. Receipts were moderately under those of a week ago, but materially less than last year. Prices follow:
